'Men Shot Down Like Dogs' Cries Curley; Tribute Paid to Veterans

produced each distinguished guest in the best manner of the south. Many Ballots Expected On Commandership Job

Henry L. Stevens, III, small son of the national commander, attired in a smartly tailored, blue and gold Legion uniform, wielded the gavel that called the 14th national convention to order. On Thursday his father will step down, being succeeded by one of the dozen or more candidates now in the field. Selection of a national commander will be more difficult than it has been in years, officials say, and many ballots are expected.

Mayor Curley's remarks created much comment among state departments represented here and was remarked upon nearly as much as was Secretary Hurley's appearance. The Boston mayor was seated among distinguished guests on the speakers' platform.

When Commander Stevens called upon him for a greeting, he did not elaborate on his remarks on the bonus army eviction. Commander Stevens made not the slightest reference to it.

"Let us live together, my comrades, in comradeship," Hurley concluded. "Let us not let any political issues enter our organization."

No Partisanship in France Hurley Reminds Legion
"Remember that those of us who marched shoulder to shoulder in France did so not as republicans and not as democrats."

"Those men who met the enemy of our nation on the battlefields were neither democrats nor republicans; they were greater than either. They were Americans."

A great din of applause echoed through the auditorium into which more than 5,000 persons were crowded.

"What we need today, my comrades, are Americans who are big enough to put patriotism above politics," Secretary Hurley added.

"And I have come to you today not as a public official but as your comrade, as a Legionnaire, and I am delighted by the splendid reception you have given me."

"I had not intended to make a speech to you," Secretary Hurley told the Legionnaires as he was presented by Commander Stevens.

"I came here merely to greet you," he continued, after stating that a commission authorized by congress and over which he recently presided as chairman has prepared a plan "in order to bring about an equality of the distribution of the economic responsibility for war."

"This plan," he said, "in my opinion is that which as Legionnaires we have contended for ever since the great war. That plan, comrades, will be presented to you. It does provide for the prevention of profiteering in war; it does provide for equal distribution of the burdens of war."

"I hope that when that plan is presented to you it may have your approval," the secretary continued.

Men Applaud When Hurley Speaks for Defense
"I am for adequate national defense," Hurley said while the Legion applauded. "I am opposed to the building up of any military system in this nation that could be considered as a menace to the peace or happiness of any other nation."

The Legion applauded for Mayor Curley amounted to an ovation. He spoke of "the splendid and vibrant patriotism that is manifested within the walls of this building."

Mentioning George Washington, he added "I can appreciate how he hearted of that great hero would be saddened and filled with sorrow at the knowledge that some of those victims of our social order who in the hour of crisis stood ready to make the supreme sacrifice that free government might not perish from the earth, because they were victims, because they pleaded for that to which they were entitled, that they were shot down like dogs in the capital of the nation."

A great wave of applause swept the hall.
And Mayor Curley continued "but I am not fearful of the future. No man who is conversant with the history of our country, the old law of compensation never fails; right always rewarded; wrong always punished."

This is Dorothy Millette, who played in "Too Many Crooks" with Paul Bern and Frank Craven. The Dorothy Millette in that show had been identified as the "mystery woman" in the life of Paul Bern, Jean Harlow's suicide husband. Miss Millette vanished from a Sacramento river boat Tuesday night.

CURRY OFFICIALS IN BENCH WHITEWASH

GOLD BEACH, Ore., Sept. 12—(AP)—Circuit Judge J. T. Brand tonight exonerated Sheriff J. H. Turner and District Attorney Grant J. Williams of charges of failure faithfully to execute and enforce criminal laws of the state.

Judge Brand's decision came after one day's investigation of an alleged riot last October 31. In his decision Judge Brand recommended that upon the basis of new testimony introduced at the trial that the grand jury investigate again the nature of the riot.

Today's investigation had been requested by Governor Julius L. Meier.

MARSHFIELD, Ore., Sept. 12—(AP)—J. C. Leith, first witness called in the summary hearing concerning alleged law enforcement in Curry county, testified before Circuit Judge Brand in Gold Beach today that he had been "struck" and knocked down by Moss Averill, Gold Beach resident, in a riot which allegedly followed the shut-down of the Gold Beach Electric company the night of October 31, 1931.

Leith, whose letter to Governor Meier, following a grand jury hearing last spring, resulted in the hearing, is manager of the Gold Beach Water, Light and Power company, a rival power firm.

An attachment on the Gold Beach Electric company was served by Sheriff R. H. Turner on the night in question. Officers and patrons of the Gold Beach Electric company allegedly participated in the melee which followed.

Leith declared Averill was a participant in the "riot" and said several others also were involved. He said he could not state definitely that E. R. Costello, his employee, was struck but that he did know Costello received several bruises in some manner.

BANDITS IN TERROR RAID IN MANCHURIA

Many corps were carried off when brigands attacked the Harbin-Impo train. The train engineer was slain, but an injured porter, who had hidden under a car, climbed like the locomotive and brought the train safely into Harbin. Many of the 150 passengers were still tied up as left by the bandits.

The attack on the Changchun-Harbin express train occurred late at night and the maimed and dying were found lying in the debris at daylight when the Associated Press correspondent reached the scene.

Death Escaped by Hiding Stolen Coaches
Villard had saved his money and passport by hiding them inside his shirt. He and many other passengers possibly escaped death in the wreck because they were in steel coaches.

In another bandit raid on a golf course at Harbin, George C. Hanson, United States consul general, and a party of Americans and British fought off their assailants. Two British men were wounded.

MAHATMA GIVES BRITISH THREAT

cause the government, but said he would hold to his decision even if he were released from the prison where he has been kept for months as a result of the conflict between the government and India's nationalists.

Official sources were unable to say what steps the government was taking to prevent the mahatma from killing himself by starvation. It is suggested there was a faint possibility of the Indians agreeing among themselves on a solution of the electorate problems which would prove satisfactory to Mr. Gandhi.

At Start of Fast
"Forcible feeding of the aged rebel was considered but it was admitted that if the mahatma were determined on starving it would be most difficult to prevent him. Commentators said the mahatma probably would be released from prison when he started his death fast."

Mr. Gandhi based his action on a statement he made at the round table conference in London—a statement that he would "resist with my life the grant of a separate electorate to the depressed classes."

In a letter to the secretary for India he wrote: "This was not said in the heat of the moment or by way of rhetoric. It was meant to be a serious statement."

The mahatma's assertion was not taken literally then. Any form of separate electorates, the nationalist leader said in one of his letters, would perpetuate the present status of the untouchables.

No Compensation, Says
"I feel," he wrote, "that no penance the caste of Hindus may do can in any way compensate for the calculated degradation to which they have assigned the depressed classes for centuries."

In a telegram sent the mahatma August 9, MacDonald set forth the government's position that the depressed classes under the cabinet's plan were not deprived of the electoral powers of the Hindus but in addition had special seats allotted to them for 20 years. MacDonald said this was only a modified and not a permanent form of special electorates.

The official figures were: Mrs. Ferguson 476,074; Sterling 472,741.

The committee adopted the tabulation and certified the candidates to the state convention. C. I. Francis of Wichita Falls, a Sterling partisan, acquiesced in the report.

He said he believed there had been "gross irregularities" in the voting and requested that the official returns be preserved under seal.

The total from Guadalupe county was not included because there was doubt about the accuracy of the returns from that county.

LUBBOCK, Tex., Sept. 12—(AP)—A petition charging wholesale frauds and asserting a count of the ballots legally cast in the August 27 primary would prove him the winner by at least a 10,000 majority, was filed today with the state democratic executive committee today by Governor R. S. Sterling as the first step in his contest against the nomination of Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson for governor.

Twenty-five petitions will be circulated for Griggs, Herman Lafky, attorney supporting him, announced after the meeting. Names were taken last night of persons who will circulate the petitions.

The evident concern of the supporters of Mr. Trindle indicates the power of the movement," Herman Lafky, local attorney supporting him, announced after the meeting. Names were taken last night of persons who will circulate the petitions.

The evident concern of the supporters of Mr. Trindle indicates the power of the movement," Herman Lafky, local attorney and one of the instigators of the movement, said last night. "I believe we can obtain, within a few days far more than the required number of signatures for the nomination. Mr. Trindle won in the primaries by a narrow margin; some of his support has slidden since the spring election; as I believe he will be, we may look forward to some real competition for the republican and democratic nominee this fall."

Lafky explained the small attendance at the nomination meeting as due to short notice and the fact that many quiet supporters of an independent candidate dislike to take a public part in his behalf.

of Washington, we witnessed a spectacle, alien to the pages of our history—when federal troops, moving under the orders of the president of the United States, attacked and drove from the capital city these self-same war veterans who such a short time before had saved this nation in its hour of need.

"These war veterans marched into Washington, exhibiting their deplorable condition—hoping a tireless and inept congress would hear their appeal. Regardless of the technicalities of law and police regulations they should have received at the hands of the government a becoming sympathy and leadership."

"That they did receive such sympathy and leadership from that able soldier, General Glassford is to his everlasting credit."

"And when it came the time that he had to enforce the government's orders he went about his task manfully and unflinchingly. But in the midst of his own police operation he has his authority struck from his hands by the appearance of sabers, gas bombs, fire brands, bayonets and tanks. An awesome spectacle this display of force commanded by the very head of the army himself."

"The splendid in his hastily donned uniform—only less impressive than had he donned gold braid. Clash With Veterans Called Comic Opera

"This comic opera spectacle of generals commanding battalions was a revealing thing to us old soldiers and relieved an otherwise deadly occasion."

"On the night these harassed and hungry veterans straggled along the roads out of Washington, leaving behind their food and pitiful belongings which had suffered the flames of war, no rations from a well equipped army were offered them; no medical corps moved along the line seeking out the possible injured; and no spring ploughing awaited these men—that they might do homage to the god of seasons and with a new pride—eat, in the midst of plenty."

"The resolutions of the Roman holiday reflected against the cold white face of Abraham Lincoln, seated eternally in his nearby memorial, could but blush in the blood of life, he would rise in the right and majesty of his God-anointed love and beyond the execution of the law, handled the whole situation in a regrettable manner, which contributed to this said incident."

The resolution is one of about 500 which will be considered by the resolutions committee.

Search Fruitless For Robins; Wife Fears Foul Play

CHICAGO, Sept. 12—(AP)—Detectives and federal agents today continued without result their search for the missing Colonel Raymond Robins, prohibition and peace advocate.

Authorities said nothing was learned to substantiate statements of three of Colonel Robins' friends that they saw him here last week or reports by others they saw a man answering his description.

Anonymous postcards were mailed here today to the Associated Press and the city news bureau stating Col. Robins could be found at 155 North Clark street at a lawyer's office on the 13th floor. The Clark street address is also that of the two news organizations.

Dr. Daniel A. Poling, national head of the allied prohibition forces and an associate of Col. Robins, arrived today from Portland, Ore., to assist in the search. He conferred with investigators and friends of the missing man but said nothing tangible concerning his whereabouts had been developed.

Dr. Poling telephoned Mrs. Robins today from Chicago and the latter reiterated her opinion that Col. Robins had met with foul play at the hands of Florida bootleggers.

MRS. CALLIE HEIDER CERTAIN OF PLACE

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 12—(AP)—The nomination, equivalent to election, of five district vice presidents of the American Legion auxiliary responded ably at tonight's session of the organization. The five will be formally elected Thursday.

Those chosen were: Mrs. Clemency Schall of West Haven, Conn., eastern division; Mrs. Callie H. Heider of Sheridan, Ore., western division; Mrs. A. C. Corvin of Poplar, Mont., northwest division; Mrs. Roland B. Howell of Tallahassee, La., southern division, and Mrs. O. H. Albee of Marshalltown, Iowa, central division.

Legion Auxiliary Praised
PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 12—(AP)—Faced with the most difficult year in its history, forced to fight to maintain every point of its program, the American Legion auxiliary responded ably at every turn and wound up the year in a stronger position than ever.

Mrs. Frederick C. Williams of Tuckahoe, N. Y., president, stated in his report here today at the opening session of the auxiliary's 12th annual national convention.

Her statement was seconded by Henry L. Stevens, Jr., national commander of the American Legion, who declared in greeting the auxiliary that "the support of the women has made the American Legion the greatest force for good today."

The auxiliary, despite the fact that "reduced family incomes made payment of dues a real sacrifice," leading to a month by month falling off that brought the organization a large membership loss for the first time in its history, launched a rally that checked the decline and brought the enrollment for 1932 to 402,441 members, a loss of only 9,622 from the record high enrollment of December 31, 1931, Mrs. Williams reported.

CROWD DECIDES ON WATER BOARD HELP

SILVERTON, Sept. 12—In spite of the fact that several hundred people turned out to the mass meeting called at Silvertown Monday night discussing the Silvertown water system and rates, little ill feeling was expressed.

With the exception of a few remarks made, hitting directly at the salary paid the department office force and a few veiled remarks directed at the present superintendent, Charles Davis, and at Dr. C. W. Keene, chairman of the water commission, no personalities were indulged in.

Several present expressed the opinion that the water department could be managed for considerable less expense. To these Mayor L. C. Eastman, who was acting as chairman of the evening, suggested they go to the water commission and present any plans they may have to carry out the management on a lower rate.

The only definite accomplishment was that at a motion made by Alf O. Nelson and seconded by P. L. Brown a committee of three be appointed by Robert Scott and that this committee be instructed to go before the next meeting of the commission and make complaints or suggestions that its members believe are for the benefit of the people. Mr. Scott will announce the committee this week.

The meeting was the outgrowth of several petitions and called meetings by a group of Silvertown citizens that is out for the express purpose of lowering water rates. Robert Scott is chairman of this group.
