HIGHWAY WIDENING BEGUN AT BROOKS

Department is Negotiating For the Right of way At $200 Acre

Widening of the Pacific highway right-of-way from 60 to 80 feet north from Gouley's corner at Brooks has already begun in preparation for road improvement work soon to be started there. Negotiations are under way on the part of the highway department to obtain needed additional right-of-way north from Woodburn to Aurora.

The average price paid to be paid by the highway commission is $200 an acre for the 10-foot strip purchased on either side of the present highway. North of Woodburn much of the right-of-way to be acquired will be on the east side of the highway.

Owners Reluctant — Surveying is going on along the highway where the widening is to take place. Negotiations were made last week with owners of business establishments along the highway at the edge of Woodburn. Owners of these establishments were in the main reluctant to have the right of way extended on their side of the road, and of course indicated they would expect to be reimbursed for the cost of moving their buildings back to put them in position to continue business. Reports, as yet not officially verified by the highway commission, are to the effect one purchase has been made of 20 feet additional right-of-way on the east side of the road and negotiations are under way for the purchase of the remainder of a 20-foot strip.

Last spring when the matter of highway widening was before the commission, a 160-foot right-of-way was talked. The commission then proposed that Marion county buy the right-of-way but the county refused.

The closing day of the state fair, and every indication there will be a big crowd and a big day. Pets, juniors, costumes, kids, parades, Portland delegations plus all the other things on a larger scale are on the program for the fair. The 11th annual state fair will close tonight on the profit side of the ledger.

And talk about a Saturday in Oregon for sport lovers and for entertainment. In addition to the state fair with its rodeos, and the world series game, which starts at 11:30, there are two big football games in the state, let alone a championship baseball team in action on the coast. Too bad they couldn't have been strung out.

The sporting period started out in Salem last night with the game between Willamette and Monmouth Normal. Today the University of Oregon plays Santa Clara college at Eugene, while the Oregon State takes on Stanford at Portland. It is predicted the Oregon-Santa Clara game will be the better of the two set for Saturday.

Wonder what Queen Mildred and Princess Augusta and Pauline will feel like to step down to just one of the rest of us. The statehouse was well represented in this trio, as both princesses are employees, Augustus at the banking department, and Pauline in the insurance department. They made a fine railing trio this week.

September, which hid edison last night, proved to be the driest September for years, registering .01 of an inch of precipitation. And it was this September which saw the big American Legion convention and produced more perfect weather for the state fair. Wonder what the record will be for October.

Surgeon College Honoring Ellis Soon, St. Louis

Dr. R. V. Ellis of Ketchikan, Alaska, well known to many people in Salem where he for four years attended medical school at Willamette university, is shortly to be made a fellow of the American College of Surgeons, according to word received here.

"Because of your years of practice and professional standing, it was unanimously recommended that you be not required to submit the usual case histories," Franklin H. Martin, director general of the college, informed Dr. Ellis. Dr. Ellis will thus be able to receive the fellowship at St. Louis in October, instead of waiting several years. He will make the trip from Alaska at that time.
