'BACK STREET' NEW SHOW AT ELSINORE

Fannie Hurst Story With Irene Dunn and John Boles Featured

One of the outstanding screen dramas of recent years comes to the Elsinore today.

The picture is "Back Street," adapted from the widely read novel by Fannie Hurst, with Irene Dunne and John Boles in the featured roles, and directed by the master of human, domestic drama, John M. Stahl.

"Back Street" tells the story of a woman who considered no sacrifice too great to make in the name of love, and a man who gave freely of his love but at the same time retained his social position as a husband and father. The story covers a span of 20 years, and is said to give an especially affecting picture of the trials of two people whose love is outside the law, notwithstanding its sincerity and depth.

It is Universal's most ambitious production of the season, "Back Street" presents to Miss Dunne and Boles the most sympathetic roles of their careers.

IS AT HOLLYWOOD

"The Last Mile," as a stage play, was laid entirely within the one setting of a great prison death house. It's the story of the doomed men-faced with the inevitable, yet hoping; their last fight made, and lost, yet watching, waiting, dreaming of a chance to fight again.

The world wide film at the Hollywood today, "The Last Mile," in motion picture form, is a faithful reproduction of this sensationally gripping play: It's action laid almost in its entirety within the same setting as the play, its characters practically the same.

With the added scope of the motion picture, the film version, naturally augments the production with more realistic sets, greater and more effective lighting, for the action which lays bare the quivering souls of seven condemned men.

Sam Bischoff directed the film at the California Tiffany Studios, with Arthur Edeson at the camby Preston S. Foster, Howard Phillips, Alan Roscoe, George E. Stone, Paul Fix, Al Hill and Daniel L. Haynes. And the prison officials are played by Frank Sheridan, Alec B. Francis, Edward van Sloan, Albert J. Smith, Kenneth MacDonald and William Scott.
