BEAUTY OPERATOR IS SUING KAFOURY

Loretta Mae West, a beauty shop operator, brought suit in circuit court Tuesday to recover $2350 in damages from the Kafoury Department store, Inc. She claims this sum as a result of alleged misleading statements made to her by N. C. Kafoury in May of this year in connection with sub-letting her 13 x 37 feet of floor space in a store project Kafoury was undertaking here. She claims he told her he had arranged the lease for the project in the Oregon building whereas the lease by Kafoury was never executed.

On the strength of Kafoury's allegations, plaintiff contends she lost $1600 on sale of her beauty shop in Portland $899 on new equipment purchased for Salem and never used, $406 expense in connection with the deal and $1000 in travel costs and loss of trade while the deal was pending.

Judge L. G. Lewelling late yesterday took under advisement the case of R. O. Lewis and Homer Hulse who appealed to him on a writ of review against the recent refusal of the civil service commission here to reinstate them in the Salem fire department.

The two men claimed the civil service commission had acted illegally in refusing to hear their protests when Fireman Olson was reinstated and they were released from the fire department payroll. They held they had priority to Olson and were in good standing otherwise in the department.

AIRMINDED CABINET MINISTER

Although British statesmen are popularly believed to be sticklers for tradition, refusing to move with the times, many of the members of the present cabinet are keeping pace with the forward march of progress. Here is Sir John Simon, Foreign Minister, all equipped for an aerial journey from London to Geneva, Switzerland, to attend the disarmament conference. He is being given a bon voyage by little Angela Manning, daughter of Sir John's stepson.

THERE is one big saving being effected at the capitol which has never been brought to light, and since so many departments are availing themselves of this privilege, we feel it should be given cognizance. That is the governor's private long distance phone connecting his office here to his store in Portland.

The line is a full time leased arrangement and is being paid for by Governor Meier personally. People wishing to call anyone in Portland from here do so over this phone. Taking down the receiver connects them immediately to the store and from there to outside numbers or to the governor. And this without any cost to the users around the state buildings. And the governor is generous with the use of his phone.

State officials and employees are in line for a greater salary reduction if the legislature acts favorably upon what Governor Meier will recommend. A five to 25 per cent cut in being worked out including everybody on the state payroll. The governor who is to urge it and Hansen who is working out the schedule, both will take the maximum reductions.

A new system will be used in presenting the budget this year, Henry Hansen says. He will have the complete simplified budget out on December 1 or December 15 at the latest, giving legislators a month to study it before the session opens.

Following this up and for the first time in Oregon history, he will prepare measures for every department's appropriations and in blank form turn it over to the ways and means committee to save time and work on the part of that body. This should bring out the appropriation bills in the middle of the session instead of at the end.

A conference of the state board of control which is expected to turn into a meeting of the board, has been called for the governor's office in Portland today. The meeting will start about 10:30. Plans, budget estimates and other matters will occupy the time of the board members for what is considered will be a long session.

Today, the 19th of October, is an important date, at least in the mind of Sam Koser, former secretary of state. Not only is it the anniversary of the surrender of Cornwallis in 1781, but it is the birthday of Mr. Koser. By round-about methods we were able to learn it is his 61st anniversary.

October seems to be a lucky month for particular office of secretary of state. The last two secretaries and the present one all were born that month. In addition to Sam Koser's birthday, that of a former secretary of state and former governor, Ben Olcott occurred October 15, and Hal E. Ross's October 7. Olcott was born 60 years ago and Ross 40.

DECIDE CRITICISM OF POLICE EMPTY

Claims Anent Gambling due To Mistaken Idea of Powers, Asserted

Report exonerating city policemen from blame in alleged gambling at the state fair was submitted at the city council meeting Monday night by the special committee headed by Alderman H. H. Vandevort. The council adopted the report without discussion.

The report sets forth that Victor Barth appeared before the committee at the hearing Saturday, and says:

"We feel the criticism of Mr. Barth was unwarranted and resulted from misunderstanding on his part as to the legal rights of officers in making an arrest. The police department did all in its power to protect the interests of the public at the state fair and should be commended for the manner in which they did protect the public considering the small number of policemen which the city had to assign to duty."

The report indicated the only complaint Barth had was that police refused to arrest without a warrant.

The report concludes: "Under the law an officer has no right to arrest a citizen without a warrant, except when the citizen is caught in commission of a crime, and we feel that no censure can be given the department in their refusal to make a requested arrest on bare statements of Mr. Barth."

Barth had a warrant drawn for arrest of a gambling operator at the fair after he stated, city police officers refused to arrest.

The council hearing was result of considerable censure directed at the police and fair management for the way in which gambling was conducted on the fairgrounds during the fair. The report makes no attempt to place blame for unusual activity, in gambling at the fair.

Yamhill School Case is Argued

The state supreme court Tuesday heard arguments of attorneys in a suit brought by Roy E. Will and others, of Yamhill county, involving the preparation of budgets for high school districts, the right to levy taxes, and the legality of the organization of the Amity high school district and the proposed Dayton high school district in Yamhill county. The district boundary board of Yamhill county and several school districts there were named as defendants in the suit.

Budget Group to Convene Monday

The citizens' budget committee will meet at the city council chambers Monday night, October 24, at 7:30 o'clock. It was announced following the council meeting Monday night.

Miss Aileen Phillips, secretary of Hal E. Ross, figured out that should all the more than 400,000 names be copied, it would require the steady employment of one girl for more than a year. How fast then can 30 girls do 100,000 names. They are scheduled to complete the job Friday night. Figure it out yourself.

We haven't heard of many hunters having any extra luck in hunting birds the past few days. In fact the reverse has been the story. But perhaps the remarks are made for the benefit of our friends who expect gifts of fine bird dinners.

State Fair Bond Interest to be Met This Week

A further retrenchment in operating costs of the fair will include an additional salary reduction for Mrs. Ella Wilson. In charge of exhibits, it was learned yesterday.

POSTAGE DECREASE NOT POSSIBLE NOW

Persons Buying Envelopes With 2-Cent Stamps are Said ill Advised

No change in the present three-cent letter rate is probable for some period of time, and because of this persons ordering two-cent stamped envelopes on assumption that the postage rate will decrease shortly are advised not to do so, in a postal bulletin received yesterday by Postmaster John H. Farrar of the local office.

The bulletin in full is: "Requisitions are being received in the department for 2-cent stamped envelopes to bear the return card of local patrons which are unavailable under the present rate without the affixing of extra postage. It is probable that some post-office patrons are ordering 2-cent envelopes in the belief that the old rate will be restored at an early date, based on newspaper publicity for which the department is not responsible."

"No change can be made in the present 3-cent letter rate without the enactment of legislation, and it is improbable that any action will be taken at an early date. Therefore, post-office patrons should not place orders for 2-cent special request envelopes in anticipation of an early change in the postage rate. Purchasers should be advised of these facts before orders for 2-cent printed envelopes are accepted."
