Albany High Presents Veteran Team as Threat to S. H. S.

Red and Black Weakened by Injuries: Perrine out For Rest of Year

A feeling of confidence in Albany circles that Albany high school will Friday put an abrupt stop to the long string of defeats it has suffered on the gridiron at the hands of Salem high, appears to be well founded, judging from information received here in advance of the annual renewal of gridiron rivalry, and also from the present weakened status of the red and black squad.

Coach Carl Ellingson has now been at the Albany institution long enough to have his system well fortified with material. With the exception of the tackles, his team could look exactly like the one that opposed Salem high here a year ago, only with another year of beef added.

Last year's fleet backfield is almost intact with Bayne at fullback. Bates and Montgomery at the halves and Davis, who was a reserve and saw action in many of last year's games, at quarter in place of Merritt. Most of Line Stars

From 1931 Return Moule and Baker returned this fall for the end positions and Holloway and Keilblock at guard along with Patterson, center. For tackles, Coach Ellingson had to break in a couple of men not so experienced, but he found a couple of big and willing ones in McKenzie and Ehrlich.

This veteran crew will line up against Salem's relatively green outfit, weakened since last Saturday by several injuries suffered in the Bend game. Johnny Perrine, the back injury which he suffered last spring renewed, has given up football for the year in order to let those back muscles mend so he can play basketball and baseball. Wauseka Hauser, halfback, is another casualty along with Coons and Doerfler, ends.

Patched Backfield Will Start Friday

Several other of Coach Hollis Huntington's men were somewhat bunged up and jarred in the Bend contest, and the team is against Albany. Lee Weisser has gathered at Los Angeles last sumbeen assigned to the signal calling job in place of Perrine, and isn't any coaching "type" for it is possible that Martin, a there are all sorts of men there, guard, may be moved back into the ball toting ranks, Ike Wintermute, speedy but inexperienced, may be another to find a place in this patched-up back-

Albany, in contrast to Salem, took a total rest over the last weekend and that fact, together with the spirit which always flames when Albany attacks a Salem team, will make the Linn county team doubly dangerous.

Last year Salem defeated Albany 21 to 6, but only the hardest kind of fighting accomplished it. Albany threatened Salem's goal line a number of times unsuccessfully, then was handed a touchdown as a gift.

OVER-CONFIDENCE FEARED BY KEENE

That perennial bugaboo to football coaches, over-confidence, is reported to have taken up residence in the minds of certain members of the Willamette university squad, and it bodes ill for the team's success in the next

It's true that Albany college has not been an outstanding threat in Northwest conference circles, and right there is where the trouble rests. For the past several seasons Willamette teams have "let down" when they saw the Pirates approaching, with the result that they have in most instances barely scratched out with a victory, after being placed on the defensive for most of the

This year Albany is vastly improved, especially on defense, and any slight lack of drive on Willamette's part might well prove fatal. Coach Keene is trying strenuously this week to prevent such an occurrence, but is far from satisfied with his players'

if ball-carrying prowess on the gridiron counted towards winning an election, the chances of the G. O. P. for keeping its candidate in the White House would be still better than they are. Here are three noted grid stars who recently called on President Hoover to offer their support in his campaign for re-election. Left to right in the group, are: Albie Booth, former Yale star, "Red" Cagle, once a mighty line-crasher for Army, President Hoover and Eddie Hays, Harvard halfback. They flew to Washington in a plane named the "Forward Pass."

There were times last summer when it seemed as though Billy Sullivan wasn't going to make good with the White Sox after all; but he snapped out of that and now what do you suppose has happened? Billy scored three points in the "most valuable player" poll, meaning that three sport writers thought he was tenth best or one thought he was seventh best, or something like that. Anyway he was one of only two of the Sox to get such mention. Nice go-

One of the high school teams which will be in the running for the informal "state championship" game in Portland

Thanksgiving day, will emerge out of Bend's clash with The Dalles this weekend. Both are undefeated to date and have been winning most of their games by large scores. The Dalles, coached by Beryl Hod-gen, is back in the running again after a few comparatively lean years.

Could you tell me why, in these times of depression, we should be called upon to feed W. J. Lee and son when they seem amply able, both physically and financially, to feed themselves? Furthermore, is there any particular kind of seed that their diet may require? A. Nony Mous.

We'll admit, Nony, that this question had us stumped for a while. You see, that first initial "W." in Mr. Lee's name stands for Warren, which means a place where rabbits are fed; and the part of the firm disguised under the "& Son" ists of Clarke Lee, and Clarke is just an older form of "clerk." So you see there is no-body there but the warren and the clarke of the warren and the rabbits; the clarke is so busy recording the rabbits' pro-gress in learning the multipli-cation table that he has no time to feed them, and that's why the public is supposed to do the feeding.

Now as to the choice of seed, you realize that the word "seed" is rather broad in its meanings about that queer game up at Bend and that perhaps the broadest last Saturday, until we read the definition is "that from which Bend paper, was that Salem in- anything springs." Now if we are tercepted two of Bend's three going to be thorough in this buspasses and the other one was the iness we should select whatever animal, vegetable or mineral mat-Which makes the outcome even ter the most things spring from queerer. So we would advise feeding monkeys to the rabbits. We had hoped to arrive, in this discourse, at a contemplation

By ALAN GOULD NEW YORK, Oct. 19 .- (AP). Further reduction in the price of college football tickets in some parts of the country has resulted from a continued drop in attendance, amounting so far this year to approximately 20 per cent, as compared with 1931 figures covering the country's major intercollegiate groups.

Decreases in the Pacific Coast conference have been relatively "slight," the reports say, due to the balancing influence of a third increase in attendance at Stanford's games. Between 65,000 and 80,000 are expected to see the Indians play Southern California at Palo Alto, Saturday.

Admit Chemawa To Sport League

CHEMAWA, Oct. 20. - The Chemawa Indian school was admitted to the Willamette Valley Interscholastic league for the coming basketball and baseball seasons, when the league meeting was held in Silverton recently. This is considered a great boost for these sports here, as in the past the Indian school has at times had difficulty in acquiring a full schedule of games.

Fumble of Punt Helps Jefferson to Beat Washington

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 19-(AP)-Aided by a fumbled punt, Jefferson high school defeated Washington high, 6 to 0 in the football game here today.

Early in the first period, Jimmy Garber, Colonial safety fumbled a punt on the Washington 19, and Melvin Viken recovered for Jefferson. Herbert dashed around right end, to score the touchdown in one play. His kick in the try for point after touchdown, hit the cross bar and fell backward.
