Oravec and Cannady Prove Great Mudhens, Make Sensational Runs

later gave Williamette the ball on Albany's 42 yard line and Cannady, reversing his field and running twice the distance, scored from there. A little later Adams and Haley figured in another drive, Adams smacking the line to within a yard of the goal, but a fumble and a penalty spoiled that one.

Cannady wound up a large evening by making one 40-yard run that was spoiled by a penalty, and then one for 60 yards that pushed the score up to the final figure. Fans who have watched Cannady's past performances agreed that he "found himself" in this game, piling right through the line to start most of his marathons.

Albany made only one first down in which penalties did not figure. Every man on the Williamette line distinguished himself in stopping Albany's deceptive and spirited attack. It was apparent, however, that the continuous rain and the mud were all factors in favor of the heavier Williamette team.

quiet and unassuming and had been looking for work. He went to the armory last night to enlist in the Oregon national guard and thereby get a small income. "I don't understand why he was shot," Mrs. Gray said. "He was quiet and never annoyed anyone. He never cared much for girls and so far as I know never ran around with any. He did carry a flashlight, but so does everyone else in this neighborhood to provide light at night."

Fischer Mill at Silverton Sued By Surety Firm

PORTLAND, Oct. 21.—(AP)—The American Surety company of New York filed two suits against the Fischer Warehouse company of Silverton. Fischer Flooring Mills, the Silverton Lumber company and others in circuit court here today.

The surety company asks an injunction to prevent all respondents from commencing separate suits to enforce claims on a $4000 warehouse bond, issued July 23, 1931. It charges that a second bond in the amount of $11,000, issued February 1, 1932, was obtained through fraud, alleging that the warehouse company, now bankrupt, at that time concealed its financial condition.

POLICE WAGE FIGHT FOR CIVIL SERVICE

In an effort to insure the success of the city police civil service charter amendment which will be voted on at the November election, the city officers are availing themselves of every possible means of putting the proposition before the public. The slogan of their campaign is, "Help take the department out of politics."

Yesterday the officers rubber stamped several thousand statements, being sent out by Salem merchants, with "Civil service for city police, vote 500 X yes, November 8." All of the merchants whom the officers asked to have their statements thus marked agreed.

All officers are handing out campaign cards bearing the name of the individual presenting them. Slides advocating civil service are being shown at two of the theatres and officers are speaking before club groups for their measure. Posters soon will be displayed and ads placed in the newspapers.

The police civil service amendment, if passed, will be identical with the charter provision voted for the fire department in the May city election.

Graybull youth, and another man named Yokum whose home was said to be in Midwest, Wyo. By 2 o'clock this afternoon the last gun had been fired. A path and a short time later a veritable cavalcade of cars began a descent of the mountainside, carrying occupants to their homes in Sheridan, Buffalo, Salt Creek and Casper.

They had been comfortably housed at the Bridger ranger station atop the Big Horns, or in nearby camps or cabins. There was no discomfort reported, and although the food supply was not lavish, there was sufficient to go around. It was said.

It was estimated here that possibly 125 cars were in the big game district when the storm struck. Most of the hunters, experienced in the antics of early winter in the mountains, quickly sought cover from the elements.

of the British treasury, ostensibly of the war debt question. Late in the day the foreign office denied that M. Bizot was making any such trip.

From sources considered authoritative it was learned, however, that conversations with the British probably would be held. Such discussions would be in line with the consultative agreement reached by France and Britain several months ago.

La Liberté, national newspaper, opened a campaign against the December payment to the United States, on the ground that France has not received preparations from Germany.

Republicans Lose In 1868, Declared

A. N. Moores brought to the attention of this newspaper this week an error which appeared in its Sunday issue. It was there stated that with the exception of 1912 Oregon since 1858, had always given its electoral votes to a republican. Moore pointed out that in 1868 Oregon's electoral votes went to Seymour in preference to Grant. The list used by The Statesman did not show this to be the case but a checkup at the state library verified Mr. Moore's position.

FARMERS REJECTED STRIKE, ASSERTED

Bladine Says Strike Urged By Bonus Army Returning From Washington

The farmer in Iowa found that the strike there didn't help the producer; it tied up his market and paralyzed business. As a result farmers near Des Moines turned out shortly after the Iowa "strike" started this summer and helped patrol the highways and keep them open.

Lars Bladine, publisher of The Telephone Register at McMinville, brought this observation to the Salem Ad club Friday noon in an interesting sketch of farm conditions as he had seen them in Iowa. After a long period as newspaper owner there, Bladine in the '20's became collector of internal revenue for the federal government in the state and has made his residence there until he resigned this spring to locate permanently in Oregon.

Bladine said the farm strike was urged by returning members of the B. E. F. in Washington who had nothing else to do so turned to a "chickadee" organization to try to boost prices. In Polk county where Des Moines is located the strike lasted only three days as the growers themselves turned in to clear the roads. In Sioux City Bladine said the strike was more extended but no violence occurred. As a group the American Farm Bureau federation, which Bladine compared to the grange here, opposed the strike; the Farmers' Union, more radical, favored it. When the latter organization found that $10,000 annual salary as head of the insurance organization, his leadership lost strength.

Speculation Is Blamed "As a collector of revenue for years in Iowa I saw much of distress," Bladine said. "I could invariably lay it to three things: speculation in stocks, speculation in farms, speculation in fancy cattle or hogs."

"History is full of times like these," Bladine averred. "We all forget so easily. The younger generation comes on and knows nothing of the things the fathers worried about. Just a little sunshine and everyone feels fine. As individuals we are great kickers."

Bladine in opening his remarks said Iowa's great wealth had come in the bush days of 1817, 1818, 1918. Then with $50,000,000 bushels of corn at war prices, with millions of hogs, with a poultry and egg crop more than the world's gold production, the state land pushed to unheard of heights. Farmers who had been families for scores of generations changed hands at speculative prices several times a year.

Politicians Take Advantage Bladine said politicians had used the distressed times of recent years to play upon the credulity of voters. At first the deflation came after the war-time boom losers blamed themselves; as the hard times extended themselves, the people looked for a scapegoat and usually chose the party in power.

Bladine said the residents of Oregon should be happy, first because they lived in the greatest, the most wealthy nation in the world, and second because the coast and Oregon was a paradise of loveliness. He cited the wonderful highways, the entrancing mountains, the richness of soil and stream as sources of continual pleasure to the Oregonian.

The Dalles Bank Is Closed Under Moratorium Plan

THE DALLES, Ore., Oct. 21.—(AP)—Doors of the First National bank of The Dalles were closed today. It was said a moratorium similar to that now in force at Pendleton would be put into effect.

Mayor Fred E. Thompson, proclaiming the moratorium until November 1, said it was caused by extensive withdrawals and was imposed as a means of protecting depositors and also to avert forced sale at ruinous prices of wheat and other property held by the bank.

Bank deposits at the last call totaled $1,592,069.96.

Early New York Paper Described

A little four-page paper, the size of a modern mail circular, but the forerunner of a great daily, dated nearly a century ago is the possession of John T. Alexander, Albany. This particular copy of the New York Sun, printed September 3, 1833, is made up largely of auction and legal notices and marine advertisements interspersed with a little news. The paper was sent to Alexander's father, Dr. W. F. Alexander, early Oregon pioneer who was for 15 years a subscriber to the Sun.

Thomson Elected Audit President

CHICAGO, Oct. 21.—(AP)—P. L. Thomson, New York, was re-elected president of the audit bureau of circulation today. All other officers, with the exception of David B. Plam, Troy, N. Y., vice-president, were re-elected. Plam did not seek re-election. Ralph Starr Butler, New York, was elected in his place.

WILLAMETTE WOMAN HURT

Mrs. Robert Young of Williamette, Ore., was taken to Salem General hospital yesterday afternoon suffering from injuries received as the result of an automobile accident near here. Her condition last night was good.

RAIN which started falling late yesterday will not interfere with the running off of the big games today, even though it may cut down the attendance. One thing about football—it is played under the shine, and fans never need request a rain check. The local contest here last night was some damp itself.

There are some really good games in the far west today. Locally the big interest is in the W. S. C.-O. S. C. contest at Corvallis, which at the present time appears to be about an even contest, although we wish personally that we could predict for Washington State college, our Alma Mater. And there are several other even contests today.

L. L. Thomas, Marshfield merchant and at present vitally interested in the defeat of the school merger bill, was a business visitor at the state capitol yesterday. L. L. not only predicts defeat of the so-called merger measure, but he likewise believes Linn county will beat Hector MacPherson, advocate of the bill, for the state legislature.

Things politically are warming up. There isn't an hour passes a day but what some candidate, or someone vitally interested in the state or national campaign, comes to the press room to glean what information he can. We are reminded that election now is less than three weeks off, and so many people yet are undecided.

Many do read this column. This was attested yesterday when quite a number of comments were heard favorable to the remarks we made concerning Dr. E. E. Lindsay, secretary of the state board of higher education, who is scheduled for the skids. Criticism has not been against Lindsay, but against the board, and we were sincere in our expressions of yesterday concerning this situation.

We have often been asked why we do not record the personal observations made in the capitol group of buildings every day—and to date we have answered that we refrain from such personal comments because we ourselves may be embarrassed at times. But since we have been put on the spot by the ability of several press room members of adding to our column at times, we lift the barriers and may even go so far as to play the role of Walter Winchell.

To start off with we wonder who the young man was who was engaged in an interesting conversation late yesterday afternoon with one of our readers. The conversation was conducted over the lobby rail on the second floor of the capitol building. The discourse did appear interesting. Perhaps we may make this column a little more personal after all, as per suggestions.

The high school principals were having a great time yesterday in the house of representatives' chamber, not only discussing educational matters but in speaking from the floor of the house. Seriously speaking, however, the interest in the conference was great and no doubt high school heads leaving here this afternoon will carry away with them some mighty fine ideas. More than 100 attended.

Gosh, but some counties are

PRINCIPALS ATTEND STATE CONVENTION

More Stress on Physical Education Advocated; Closes This Noon

Greater stress on physical education in high schools was advocated by R. E. McCormack of Pendleton here yesterday at the opening session of the annual convention of the high school principals' association. It should be reorganized and given a place in every secondary school curriculum in the state on the same basis as other subjects, he declared.

McCormack's report urged that every student devote daily a regular recitation period to physical education, and that credit toward graduation be given for this work. Employment of health specialists for students and that a standard program be provided for physical education also were recommended.

"Perhaps the best way to evaluate physical education in a school is to measure the progress pupils make under the influence of the program," McCormack's report read. "To do this at the present time seems almost impossible. The hereditary and environmental conditions affecting pupils are so numerous and variable that one can never be certain as to how much of a pupil's progress in physical education is due to the school program and how much is due to outside factors."

Advantages Told Other features of the opening session were an address by C. A. Howard, state superintendent of schools; president's address, by John C. Johnson of Lapine, and a discussion of character education by H. R. Johnson of Bend.

The afternoon was given over to an address by James M. Burgess on a "State Organization of Honor Societies"; report of the committee on administration of high school libraries by Ethel Ricker, Mill City, and a discussion of Smith-Hughes work by O. D. Adams, director of vocational education.

Burgess stressed the advantages to be derived from honor societies in the school, provided they are conducted along sane lines and with a view of promoting higher standards of education. He made it plain that these honor organizations should not be confused with secret societies, which have caused the school officials considerable trouble and worry. The annual banquet was held in the parish hall of St. Paul's Episcopal church last night with C. A. Howard acting as toastmaster. The convention will close at noon today.

Initial Program At Y. M. Elicits Good Reception

Interest in the Y. M. C. Miss Caroline Parker acted as piano accompanist for Miss Moore. The musical efforts of the young women were well received, numerous encores being accorded each number on the program.
