Point P. T. A. met at the school Thursday night with Mrs. Hugh Rogers as president. The program of music and a talk by Dean Walker on consolidation of schools and higher education was greatly enjoyed. Mr. Walker does not favor asolidation of schools. He says it has been tried out in Michigan and California where he has visited and from an economical and educational standpoint it has not proved satisfactory.

Mrs. Edward Harnsberger. chairman of the program committee, announced that this community would take care of its own charity work this year, and that Mr. and Mrs. Byron Ruddell, Mrs. Charles Whipple, T. J. Primus and herself were a committee to handle the work.

Last year they joined with Independence in charity work.

OAK POINT, Oct. 22-Oak Constance Bennett Teamed With Neil Hamilton: Support Good

> There is nothing calm about the sets when Constance Bennett makes a picture. The Marquise de la Falaise de la Coudray has inherited too much of her father's colorful temperament to trade a lot of duliness for a little dignity. So it turned out that the Warner Bros.' stage where Miss Bennett and Neil Hamilton and a considerable cast of players were making "Two Against the World," under the direction of bouncing, poisterous Archie Mayo, was a noisy place, full of hard work, pleasant associations and many good natured arguments.

There are other sets on the same studio grounds, equally efficient, where the atmosphere generally is the exact opposite. Ruth Chatterton's picture, "The Crash," for example. It is almost painfully quiet.

The Star a Fighter The hushed feeling is more noiceable than on a set where George Arliss is working. Miss Chatterton is severely aloof. Mr. Arliss is a mild gentleman whose There are 63 pupils enrolled in quiet insistence is always backed by a friendly smile. Miss Bennett is not aloof and she is not quiet. She fights for her opinions openly, in front of the assembled cast and > crew. Miss Bennett and Miss Chattorton are probably the two most interesting women in Hollywood today. They frequently work in pictures that are of the same gen-eral "type." Yet they are as different from the studio workers' standpoint as two people could be -and both are popular in their own way with the studio staff.

Miss Chatterton is always cool and calm. Is she argues about a scene or a line or a situation-and she does sometimes-it is in a far corner of the studio or some priing and got a four-point buck. Vate office and her irritation is expressed most often by a mere slight tapping of a dainty toe. Miss Bennett, on the other hand, is almost never calm. She
