District Demurs To Folquet Suit

Demurrer of the Woodburn school board to a claim of $2800 made by the Folquet heirs is being considered by Judge L. G. Lowell before whom the matter was argued last week. The Folquets arranged to sell the bus and contract their father had for $1500. The board objected and refused to go on with the contract on the ground that it was made with the senior Folquet and terminated at his death. His heirs then brought suit to recover the full amount of the contract yet unfulfilled. Custer E. Ross, representing the school board, contended in court that the contract for hauling students ended with Folquet's death.

HIGHWAY WIDENING JOB TO BE RUSHED

Salem-Aurora Section Will Be Finished Within a Year, Prediction

Highway construction in Oregon will be rushed at maximum speed during the coming winter months with the result that thousands of men who otherwise would be idle will have lucrative employment. This was announced at the office of the state highway commission by R. H. Baldock, state highway engineer.

In addition to contracts already awarded additional jobs aggregating a cost estimated in excess of a million dollars will be considered at a meeting of the highway commission to be held in Portland Thursday, November 2. Work on many of these contracts will be under way within the next few weeks and will continue throughout the entire winter. In a few remote cases it may be necessary to defer actual construction operations until next spring because of weather and soil conditions.

Baldock declared that he especially was interested in the early completion of widening operations on the Pacific highway between Salem and Oregon City. This improvement calls for a 20 foot pavement on an improved grade and alignment. Nine miles of this section, extending from Salem to a point a short distance north of Brooks, already has been completed, with the exception of filling the shoulders. Work is now under way between Brooks and Aurora.

Complete Within Year
The prediction was made by Baldock that the Salem-Aurora section would be completed by October 15, 1933, with the exception of a short stretch through Canby from the north end of the Molalla bridge to the south end of the Canby-New Era cutoff. Baldock indicated, however, that the plans of the highway commission might be curtailed seriously by legislative action.

Funds for paving the recently graded Canby-New Era cutoff have been budgeted and the contract will be awarded next month. This will be 20 foot concrete pavement and will connect with the 20 foot concrete surface already laid from the top of the New Era hill into Oregon City. Crews of men already are at work on the two units between Brooks and Horsehoe park, and from Horsehoe park to Aurora.

Among the outstanding improvements that will result from the contract to be awarded early in November will be elimination of the dangerous curve entering Aurora from the south. The new road will follow the old county highway skirting the west edge of Aurora along the Southern Pacific right-of-way, and connect with the existing route at the lower end of Main street through the property now occupied by the Aurora post-office building.

To Eliminate Curve
The long e-curve north of the Pudding river bridge will be eliminated by a deep cut diagonally through the hill. The new road, connected with the present highway at the summit of the grade. Dirt from the cut will be used in widening the grade across the Pudding river fill and along the Barlow flat to the Molalla bridge.

While some state money has been expended in work already completed and now under way the entire widening project will be financed out of federal emergency relief funds, except for the 17 miles of pavement resurfacing from Brooks to Aurora which cannot be started until next July. Emergency relief funds involved in the recent appropriations must be expended before July 1 of next year.

In virtually all contract jobs the state highway commission has made it plain that skilled labor shall be paid not less than 60 cents an hour and unskilled labor not less than 50 cents an hour. The work day has been designated at six hours.

McNarys Leave For Jaunt East

Senator and Mrs. Charles L. McNary left Saturday last night bound for the midwestern states where the senator will take an active part in the campaign for reelection of President Herbert Hoover. The first stop will be made at Chicago, where the senator will speak by radio for the president. Later he will go into Indiana and campaign for Senator Watson and from there will go into West Virginia.

The McNarys will be in Washington, D. C., from election time until the short session of congress convenes in December.

Absentee Ballot Much in Demand

The heaviest demand in many years for absentee voters' ballots is being made at the county clerk's office here. Under the Oregon law voters who will be away from their registered residence on election day may vote by mail. These ballots should be marked and in the clerk's hands at least six days before election. They are distributed to the various counting boards on the basis of the voter's residence and are included in the totals released election day. Senator and Mrs. Charles L. McNary were the first absentee voters to cast a ballot this year.

Inaugural Held For New Head of Linfield College

Nearly 100 representatives from colleges and universities throughout the United States attended inauguration exercises for Dr. Elan Jonathan Anderson as president of Linfield college, Sunday. From Salem went President Carl G. Doney to represent Willamette university, C. A. Howard, state superintendent of schools, and Mrs. Sheldon F. Sackett, to represent Governor Meier and Mills college. Dr. Anderson was inducted into office by Dr. Olof Larzell, professor of anatomy, school of medicine, University of Oregon, and president of the Linfield board of trustees.

Dr. Anderson's address was titled "The Future of the Denominational College." He became the tenth president of Linfield and the successor of Dr. Leonard W. Riley, president for 25 years and now president emeritus of the college.

Tax Collection Speeding Up as Deadline Nears

Tax collection of the last-half of the 1931 city, county and state levy is speeding up at the sheriff's office at the courthouse. Only 11 more business days remain until the last-half of taxes becomes delinquent. Saturday, November 5, marks the closing day for payment. Thus for the 1931 transportation and tuition taxes have not been extended on the tax rolls at the sheriff's office due to the impossibility of determining just what they would be while the supreme court was considering the legality of the levies.

There is now no penalty for tax delinquency under the Oregon law. Delinquent taxes bear interest at the rate of two-thirds of one per cent a month.

STEINER TO SPEAK HERE FRIDAY NIGHT

The state convention banquet of the Young Republican club which meet at the Marion hotel Friday evening will be the only opportunity of this campaign for Salem voters to hear Senator Frederick Steiner, according to word received yesterday. The senator was scheduled to address a republican rally at the armory following the Friday evening banquet but informed local headquarters yesterday that this attendance at the rally would be impossible because of conflicting engagements.

As a result, the rally scheduled for Friday night will be postponed until Wednesday, November 2, when Burton Pitts, district attorney of Los Angeles county and one of the outstanding republican orators, will be the principal speaker.

The Friday banquet which follows the business sessions of the Young Republican league during the afternoon will be open to the public. A charge of 75 cents will be made and an invitation has been issued to all republicans of Marion county to attend and hear Senator Steiner, Earl Howe, Rufus Holman, I. H. Van Whake and other state candidates.

GOVERNOR CANNOT PROTEST RELEASE

Neither Governor Meier nor Charles P. Pray, superintendent of state police, have any legal authority to protest against the release of James McIver from the Malheur county jail, as requested in petitions received in Salem Saturday from the residents of the Rockville and Shearville districts. Pray declared Monday.

McIver was arrested by the Malheur county officers on a charge of attempting to burn the home of Daniel Haylett, Jr., and attacking Mrs. Haylett and her two children. McIver was held in the amount of $1000, which McIver has announced he would furnish.

The petitions asked Governor Meier to recommend that McIver be held in jail pending disposition of his trial.

Rickey—Everlasting flowers and autumn fruits formed the decorations of the spacious living room of the Stella C. Culver colonial country home Saturday night, when Mrs. Culver entertained a group of friends.

The guest list included Mr. and Mrs. E. Too Koe, and children, Viola, Marvin and George, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Martin, Harry Martin, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. T.
