It is planned to make these affairs a weekly attraction, and their purpose is to provide recreation in a lively and wholesome way. All the young people of high school age are eligible to attend, the only rules being those of common sense, which would govern the student in a cultured, well ordered home.

COMMUNITY FAIR OCCUPIES GRANGE

NORTH HOWELL, Oct. 27.—Committees will soon be at work arranging the exhibits for the fourth annual community fair to be held at the grange, to be held all day and evening November 4 at the grange hall.

C. E. McIlwain, prominent farmer and onion grower of this district, has been called for duty on the federal grand jury and will report in Portland November 9. Mr. McIlwain accompanied by J. E. Waltman, Arthur and Stanley Vinton recently had a narrow escape from possible injuries when his car turned over on the road near Hebo. The men have been wishing and were returning home when the mishap occurred. No one was seriously injured.

Miss Evanel Esson, who enrolled as a freshman at Oregon State college when the term opened in September, has returned home and will stay with her parents for the present.

MORE CHICKENS GO VIA ROBBER ROUTE

PLEASANT VIEW, Oct. 27.—John Shelling went to feed his chickens one morning last week and found that thieves had entered the building during the night and taken 10 choice hens and two large fine roosters. There was quite a flock in the opposite end of the building unmolested.

Merle Pearson is having an addition built onto his barn. Laurence Robertson of Turner is doing the work.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Wippar have gone to Silver City, Idaho, to visit Mr. Wippar's sister, Mrs. Lena Burningham.

Frank Woods, who went to Hood to work through the apple harvest for N. W. Bone, brought back two small truckloads of apples and had good luck in selling them at a fair price. The varieties were Spitzberg, Newtown and Delicious.

Rickreall School Grounds Scheduled For Improvements

RICKREALL, Oct. 27.—Materials are being assembled for some needed improvements on the school grounds here, which will include a parking place for cars and a cement sidewalk connecting the two walks to the high and grade school buildings, also a new steel flagpole to be set in concrete midway between the two buildings.

The will be placed in the ditch along the highway and the grounds graded and gravelled to the roadway. A row of posts painted white will act as a dividing line between the walk and the parking space and will be an aid to parking at night. T. W. Burch, builder and cement worker, will have charge of the work.

SCHOOL PLAYSHED NEW P-T PROJECT

LYONS, Oct. 27.—The Fox Valley school district Parent-Teacher association will hold the regular meeting Friday night, November 4, at the schoolhouse. It is hoped a large attendance will be present, as some important business is scheduled. A plan is under way for financing the erection of a much needed playshed at the school.

The P. T. A. hopes with the aid of all members of the school district and school patrons to be able to make a substantial start on the building. A subscription paper has already been circulated, with quite a number of donations signed in way of cash, work and materials needed. The school district board is especially requested to attend the meeting.

A family by the name of Lyons who are newcomers here from the east are moving into the house on the Ransom farm. They have three children of school age who will be an addition to the Fox Valley school. The school has an increased attendance over that of last year, which is a good thing for the district in order to hold the two-teacher apportionment which represents considerable finance for the school.

Bits for Breakfast

Taylor, Salem pioneer, long on the forces of the Salem postoffice:

One Arm Brown and M. L. Savage became great friends, and Brown was a frequent visitor at the Savage home. He would often spend several days there. Lute says Brown always carried his stub arm in a black silk sling, and he never saw it loose. Lute says Brown wore a short beard and had very black eyes, and was a small man. But he was handy with a gun, and always ready for a fight. He spent a night at the Savage home just before he went away for the last time to Washington, and he corresponded from there with members of the Savage family, until his death, in the early eighties.

Lute says Brown was a great story teller. He was fond of telling an incident out of his own experiences, when he was traveling on official duty over towards the Siuslaw coast country, with a companion. Night overtook them, and they knocked on the door of the rude log cabin of a settler. They got a gruff reception, and the man of the house-thawed out only after One Arm offered him a drink of whiskey from the bottle he generally carried on journeys.

Brown and his companion were given supper and a place to sleep in the loft, reached by way of a ladder. They could hear the conversation below. Along toward daylight, Brown's companion overheard an answer of their host to his wife's question, in which he said, "Kill 'em both."

Brown's companion shivered in fear the rest of the night, in expectation of losing his life—but in the morning the matter was explained when two well fried chickens were presented to the travelers, as they were ready to be on their way, after a good breakfast.

INITIATION IS NOV. 4 GERVASIS, Oct. 27.—Gervais chapter, O. E. S., is planning a pot-luck supper to precede its meeting Friday night, November 4. The supper will be served in the large hall below the lodge hall. Initiation will be the main order of business at the lodge meeting.

Lute Savage, one of the veterans among the guards of the Oregon state penitentiary, son of Morgan L. Savage, the famous 1847 pioneer, remembers One Arm Brown very well. The Savage donation claim was on land now occupied by the state hospital and prison, and the Savage home was between the main plants of those two institutions, and a little to the east.
