DENTISTS ORGANIZE CHILD STUDY CLUB

Group Gives Dental Work To Health Department, Offers Information

Nine local dentists have organized a study club with one of its purposes the providing of dental service for the Marion county health department. Dr. O. A. Olson, city council member of the department executive committee, announced last night the formation of this Salem Children's Dentistry Study club agrees to give at least one half day's service each month to destitute children recommended by the health officials.

This plan returns to the health department the dental and orthodontic work discontinued last summer when a part time staff dentist was eliminated to cut expenses.

"The depression has brought on considerable neglect of children's teeth," explains a report of the club. "For this reason, this organization is to make a study of this problem and how these little folks can be better cared for."

The members of the club will furnish dental information to the dental societies and other public organizations, give lectures and hold group clinics on preventive dentistry in childhood. Each member is required to prepare and read a paper once a month on some branch of this subject.

Although the club was started only two months ago, already it has attracted attention outside of the state. A California college has requested full information about the club and suggested that its members visit the dentist at some time during the winter.

Problems being studied include advice to parents concerning diet to build strong, healthy teeth that resist decay, development of painless technique for children, extraction of infected teeth, instructions in care of the teeth.

Members of the club now are Dr. D. X. Beecher, Dr. David B. Hill, Dr. W. A. Johnson, Dr. O. A. Olson, Dr. B. F. Pound, Dr. Louis B. School, Dr. J. Vinton Scott, Dr. L. E. Springer and Dr. Kenneth Waters.

TANGLED CHECK WEB REVEALED IN COURT

Convicted man is Witness Against Pete Little; Bail is Reduced

A case of unusual circumstance was given hearing in justice court yesterday afternoon, when a convicted man now in the county jail appeared as chief witness in the state in forgery charge against Pete Little. The chief witness was E. R. Porter. Little was bound over to the grand jury by Justice of the Peace Miller Hayden.

Because of nature of the case, the prosecution was handled for the state by Lara Bergwitz, who defended Porter when he himself was up on forgery charge.

Little is accused of forging the name of Beniah Davis, a fictitious person, to a check for $8.40 made by L. G. Stone and cashed by E. R. Porter, operator of a service station north of town on the river road.

Tale is involved. According to Porter's story on the witness stand yesterday, the check was filled in by Porter at Little's request in the latter's office at Gervais, where Porter suggested the name of Stone. The check was made out September 3, last, when Porter and Little were returning to town from Quincy where Porter went to give a message to a Mrs. Roy Hunter at request of Little, who in turn was said to be working for a fourth party.

On that date, Little met Porter at the A. M. German hop yard north of town.

It was this same check, for which Porter was bound over to the grand jury following his arrest in September. When Porter was bound over he was out on parole from Woodburn justice court, where another check charge had been filed against him.

Little made no statement in court yesterday. He is represented by Oscar Hayler of Dallas. His bail was lowered from $1000 to $500 by Justice of the Peace Miller Hayden.

Porter's case has not yet been reported upon by the grand jury.

Cost of Traction Appeal Would be $15,000, Declared

Appeal to the United States supreme court of the case involving a reduction in fares on the traction lines of the Pacific northwest public service company in Portland, would entail an expense of approximately $15,000, without gaining any relief for the patrons. Charles M. Thomas, public utilities commissioner, declared Friday.

Thomas' announcement followed a conference held in Portland yesterday with Frank S. Grant, city attorney, and Colonel A. E. Clark. It was brought out at the conference that even though a favorable decision was received in the United States supreme court there was no hope of reparation because of the impaired financial condition of the company.

TONIGHT about the most important football game as far as Salem people are concerned is the C. P. S. Willamette contest. They tell us it will have an important bearing on the championship of the Northwest conference. If present weather conditions hold, it will be a great opportunity for us to see the Willamette boys in action.

And speaking of college reminds us we were graciously invited to be a host or patron at a fraternity affair this evening. Guess we are getting old. It wasn't so long ago that we forced ourselves to dance with patronesses at fraternity dances in order to make a fine impression. But those do change, and now we are in the latter class.

A Willamette graduate of last spring asked us, while we were attempting to get out "this column, if state employees ever discussed politics. With Willamette university just across the street from the capitol building we farm near Milwaukie. Thiessen claimed this was paid and had the notes in his possession. Barnett was to have returned the mortgage after it had been cancelled, but failed to do so and brought foreclosure proceedings.

Judge Latourrette held that the mortgage had been paid.

WOOLEN MILL RUNS AT FULL CAPACITY

Pickens Tells Ad Clubbers About Woolen Products Manufactured Here.

K. H. Pickens, of the Kay Woolen mills, yesterday told Salem Ad clubbers something of the woolen goods manufacture and sales. With a series of charts made at the local mills he explained how different materials were made up in manufacture. The local mills manufacture woolen castings, suitings, fleece goods, shirt material, and blankets. The quality ranges from the blankets which sell for low prices to high-grade fluff wool blankets of attractive patterns, and to fine count cloths for women's wear.

The mill deals entirely with jobbers, wholesale houses and the cutting up trade, marketing its goods chiefly on the Pacific slope. It maintains a very small retail department in which it disposes of mill ends, goods falling to pass inspection, etc.

The first half of this year was one of the best in the history of the woolen manufacture, with buyers holding off placing their orders. Since July 4 however the mill has been operating steadily at full capacity. The price of wool had strengthened and is now 14 cents a pound, but the manufacturers have not been able yet to move their selling prices up as much as the increase in raw material warrants.

The tariff on woolen goods is more effective in the finer goods, especially worsteds, than in the coarser wools which American mills can manufacture about as cheaply as those abroad. Pickens expressed the opinion that while there should be a tariff on raw wool, the present rate of 34 cents a pound is too high.

Members of the Salem Ad club went to Silverton last night to help business men there form an Ad club.

The governor's staff at the capitol was enlarged yesterday. At least it had a start that way. A two-months old Cocker Spaniel was sent about the executive offices. He was a gift to the governor's secretary and it is understood he will be called Tommy in honor of the donor.
