HUGHES DENIES HE IS ONLY DIRECTOR

Says 14 Remain, Charities Board; Strict Accounts Board; Strict Accounts Kept, he Asserts

S. A. Hughes, member of the board of the Associated Charities, denies that he is the only member left on the control board after the resignation of ten which was announced last week. He also takes issue with criticisms made against the work of the Associated Charities in the resignation letter which was signed by a large number of the group retiring.

The letter of Mr. Hughes is as follows: "There are several misstatements in The Statesman article of Nov. 5 regarding the Associated Charities and the resignation of ten of the members of its general board. There were 24 members of this board, instead of 17 as stated by the Statesman. I am not the only member left; there are fourteen of us still on the job.

"The efforts of the promoters of Community Service have not been in the direction of consolidating the two organizations, but have been direct efforts to put Associated Charities out of business, to confiscate all of the progress and facilities that have been accumulated by that hard-working organization, and to get a strangle hold on all of the funds contributed in Salem for charitable purposes, so as to turn those funds all over to the Red Cross for the payment of Red Cross salaries and for 'investigation' rather than the relief of want.

"I tried to cooperate. Says 'The manager of the Associated Charities has vainly tried to cooperate with Community Service. The Salvation Army and the American Legion have had the same experience. Community Service's own proposition was to cooperate with all three of us in a financial way, but a few, but a few months ago Community Service withdrew such support from all three and hooked up solely with the Red Cross.

"Strict account is kept of the operations of Associated Charities, and a statement of receipts and disbursements is issued every month. Had it not been for the hustling ability of its manager it would have been out of business long ago. It was relieving distress, and doing it efficiently and economically, before Community Service was born, and can continue to do so if necessary. It is not going to quit the job and allow the destitute to suffer, even though Community Service prefers to capitalize the Red Cross."

Woman Arraigned, Reckless Driving

Mrs. Walter Gilchrist, arrested yesterday on reckless driving charge growing out of an accident here early last month in which Geneva Lacey sustained a broken leg, pleaded not guilty in justice court late yesterday afternoon. Trial was set for November 23 at 1:30 o'clock, and meanwhile Mrs. Gilchrist is out on her own recognizance. Complaint in the case was made October 11 by J. O. Lacey.

At 1 o'clock other states will begin to report. The rural polls in Georgia close at 4 o'clock back there and those in the cities at 7. Most of the polls in South Carolina also close at 4. In Virginia the polls close at sunset, which has been set at 4:58 p. m., or shortly before 2 o'clock our time. Many other states close their polls at sunset but the exact time this year was not available here.

At 2 o'clock many of the polls in Maryland close and returns should be available shortly afterwards. Tennessee will also be

Mr Buyer, Shipper, Farmer and Consumer

Are you aware of the fact that the freight truck and bus bill is dangerous, explosive, consists of 6000 words? Do you understand it? If you do you will vote No. If you do not you should vote No.

This measure is misleading and confusing. If carried will be one more step to putting Oregon's independent transporting systems now serving the people in the hands of monopoly.

THIS BILL IS SKILLFULLY WRITTEN so as to cause confusion. It is purely and simply a measure to drive out of business the small truck owners. IT IS A RAILROAD BILL—written and prepared for the benefit of the railroad to remove truck competition.

Who is paying the expense of trying to promote this bill?

The safe rule is to vote "No" on a measure you do not or cannot understand. Do you understand this 6000 word measure?

FATHER ISN'T "GIRL SHY"

J. Darnis Lloyd, 62-year-old father of Harold Lloyd, famous film comedian, is shown with Ellen Marshall, 48-year-old actress, whom he plans to wed at Los Angeles. The couple recently filed notice of intention to wed at Los Angeles. After the ceremony they will go on a world tour. The elder Lloyd is connected with his son's film undertakings.

WELL, thank goodness that's over with—if goodness had anything at all to do with it. The noise has ended, the debates of old have been closed, the radio again can feature music and things people enjoy hearing, and all that remains is to vote. This can be done before 9 o'clock today, if one so desires and follows the urge to vote early.

Today one won't have to read election propaganda—the law does not permit. But tomorrow as the result of the tireless work of thousands of news reporters, writers, editors and statisticians, the decision of the voters will be made known. In fact it will start early this afternoon. But tired newshounds will continue to work around the clock until all votes are in.

Was it not four years ago that the outcome of the presidential election was known by 7:30, a half hour before the polls in Oregon had closed? It may be almost so today. But there is a tremendous interest in how the state will go despite the national outcome and interest in the candidates and issues locally.

Returns from one state will be missing tonight—that of Kentucky. The law there does not permit the counting to start until 10 o'clock the next day. This is the first presidential election in which the delayed vote count has been in effect. It is hard to believe that such a law will prove permanent.

A survey of various state laws and of the difference in time between the east and west coasts reveal that the first returns could be received, if released to the press when polls do close, as early as 12 o'clock noon today, Pacific coast time. The Rhode Island polls close from 3 to 5 o'clock over that state, eastern time.

That gives the time schedule, so listen to your radio or keep in touch with this paper in accordance. It would be hard to

MEASURES BEFORE VOTERS EXPLAINED

Ellis and Fisher Speak at Chamber Luncheon Upon 12 Issues Faced

Explanation of 12 of the 13 measures before the voters today was made at the chamber of commerce luncheon yesterday by Earl Fisher, state tax commissioner, and William P. Ellis, attorney, both members of the local chamber. The 13th measure, the college merger bill, had previously been presented to the chamber members.

Fisher pointed out that the income tax measure up is for revenue and to reduce the state property tax; that the six per cent limitation measure proposes to change only the words "the year" to "three years" in the phrase "in the year preceding". He said the higher education appropriation measure seeks to restore the $500,000 cut out of the original appropriation by the governor.

The tax supervisor and conservation proposal would place over 2800 tax levying districts in the state under a state board of three non-salaried men whose decision could be appealed. He spoke briefly on the other taxation measures, including the oleo tax.

Ellis told of provisions of the bus and truck law, which would eliminate large trailers and govern speed of oil trucks and other heavy equipment. The measure to repeal the state bone dry law, won't interfere with national enforcement, present laws of search, seizure, drunken driving and stills. It provides for a prohibition commissioner.

Justice would be speeded by the proposal for criminal trials without a jury, although this proposal still leaves a trial by jury if demanded. The Rogue river fishing bill Ellis characterized as a "fight" between fishermen and sportsmen in that section. The state water power proposal gives the state right to all water for power, permits the state to enter the power business and has possibility of a $55,000,000 state debt.

give much definite information until about 5 p. m. however, as the early returns will be scattered and those from rural districts will be hard to obtain.

This column has been all about election, but since that was the only thing discussed around the statehouse yesterday and for the past few weeks, we made a special effort to obtain the time of poll closing to answer many questions, and using the space for that purpose. But whatever else you do today, don't forget to vote—and vote right, which everyone will admit they do anyhow.
