"No Favor Sways Us: No Fear Shall Awe" From First Statesman, March 28, 1851-

THE STATESMAN PUBLISHING CO. CHARLES A. SPRAGUE - - - - Editor-Manager SHELDON F. SACKETT - - - - Managing Editor

Member of the Associated Press The Associated Press is exclusively entitled to the use for publica-an of all news dispatches credited to it or not otherwise credited in its paper.

ADVERTISING Portland Representative Gordon B. Bell, Security Building, Portland, Ore, Eastern Advertising Representatives Bryant, Grifflith & Brunson, Inc., Chicago, New York, Detroit, Boston, Atlanta.

Entered at the Postoffice at Salem, Oregon, as Second-Class Matter. Published every morning except Monday. Business Iffice, 215 S. Commercial Street.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES:

Mail Subscription Rates, in Advance. Within Oregon: Daily and Sunday, 1 Mo. 59 cents; 3 Mo. $1.25; 6 Mo. $2.25; 1 year $4.00 Closwhere 50 cents per Mo., or $5.00 for 1 year in advance. By City Carrier: 45 cents a month; $5.00 a year in advance. Per copy 2 bents. On trains and News Stands 5 cents.

The Change

CES, they wrote history yesterday. With "X's" for axes, they wrote it. There is no mistaking the language. To change the figure, they nailed Hoover and the republicans to the crosses. Neither this fact, nor the extent of the popular result is at all surprising. We are worshippers of a deity called prosperity in this country; and when a high priest offlegating at this shrine fails to conjure up good fortune, he is cummarily removed and another installed to woo the angri god. The republicans long claimed access to the inner shi ine of this god; but events of the last few years have shatterid the claim, and the old party shibboleth of the "full dinnet pail" could not be used.

A change of party in this country means a change of dynatty which reaches far down from the top. There will be great displacement, not merely of office-holders but of political programs and policies. We will see again what happered in 1912 when Woodrow Wilson was elected, and in 1900 when Warren G. Harding led the "restoration".

There is a vast uncertainty as to what will happen now. Rogsevelt himself is gravely deficient in qualities of leadership, of courage, and of stamina. His campaign showed a high degree of vacillation. Everything depends on which way he falls, and whether he stays there. Will he draw his addisors from the ranks of the conservatives of the east or from the radicals of the west? Will he listen to William Randolph Hearst? Will he make Al Smith his minister without portfolio, and would Al Smith accept? Will he call an extra session of congress and what will he do with it if he does assimble? How long will he serve before the independents dectare war on him? The coming months will give us the answir, which frankly no one may predict at this moment.

So far as the immediate business situation is concerned, the election will not deeply affect conditions. There will be no swift upturn because of the "change". There will be no sherp downturn. Rather we believe there will continue the slow rebuilding of the business structure, and a gradual restorstion of normal economic life in this country. The causes went into the hands of a receiver short time before received for disof the depression are not primarily political; the remedies | yesterday. Liabilities were listed | bursement from the federal gov- the one that the Huntington famwill not be political, primarily. There will be little which at $2,640,000 and assets at $2,-Resevelt can do, in addition to the Hoover program, which wid hasten the return of sound prosperity.

Franklin Roosevelt may make a good president, or a pour one, or a mediocre one. He is not without capacity, not cavalry and a large amount of without personality which is engaging. His antecedents are wi plesome. His campaign speeches have been so two-faced It appears now that a campaign however that one cannot say what line of decisions he will against the Utes may keep the solfollow, or even if he will be consistent in a line of policy. Oir own prediction is that in the main he will follow the economic program as outlined by President Hoover. The tariff will be rewritten with democratic names as authors, but thi schedules will be little changed. The R. F. C. will be contirued. While there will be many schemes for currency inflation, etc. Roosevelt will probably incline to the views of L. Carter Glass in the region of banking, and that means other products already sold and a ediservatism. The effort to bring back beer will result in a coart fight. Repeal of the 18th amendment is not here by a log ways, because congress will argue a long time over the test of a resubmission amendment.

The star of Hoover passes into eclipse; but the longer range view of history will not accept yesterday's verdict as final. His gallant fight for reelection has redeemed what uld have been otherwise an ignoble defeat. In time to come. at the country emerges from the morass of economic insecurity, it will pay tribute to Herbert Hoover for having in the deluge, found some firm ground to stand on, and there to take his position to preserve the integrity of the traditional American system.

An Editor Runs for Office

DITORS rarely make good candidates for office. They know all the rules of politics, know them so well, they often get tangled up in them if they try to run for office mselves. We have been interested however in the candidecy of W. W. Robertson, editor of the Yakima Republic for farty years, for the state legislature. He conducted a unique, aid in many respects, perfect campaign. He didn't use his elitorial column to boost his wares; but he took a separate space and headed it "Running for the Legislature". In the maries he told what he stood for, gave fair consideration to other candidates, didn't urge people to vote for him unless ey wanted him; and when he was nominated expressed rebet some other "better" man had not been chosen.

Col. Robertson continued his column intermittently sring the final campaign, and made it quite as interesting his regular contributions which are always scintillating. here is a sample, so deliciously human it ought to win votes, ren for an editor:

"A woman writes me a snappy letter in which she inquires what makes me think I can get myself elected. Nothing does and I don't. The trouble with me is I am an editor, and editors just naturally can't run well for office.

"This particular woman has a son who was taken in on a liquor charge a couple of years ago, and we said something about the matter in the paper. She thinks we printed the little story because we were bent on persecuting her boy, and hence I deserve defeat. Many people have similar grievances.

"A man met me on the street some time ago and said that if the paper didn't let him alone he would be compelled to resort to violence. I asked him who he was and when he gave his name I told him I was sure the paper had never mentioned

"I know you don't use my name,' he said, 'but I read between the lines, and I understand that when you say anything about that old reservation rancher Hix you mean me, and you are trying to ridicule me. "One of my best loved female relatives says she wouldn't vote for me if she lived here because we don't agree on prohibition; yet she always votes for another man who believes just as I do. My trouble in her case is that as an editor I have to say what I think and the other boy diplomatically keeps quiet.

"Ed Howe through his Atchison Globe made his town known all over the world. He seldom abused anyone, and always paid his bills; but he says in his remarkable autobiography that he was the most unpopular citizen and he didn't believe any editor

"I am conscious of having many friends here and I am thankful for them; yet as an editor I know better than to bet on myself in this campaign."

The wizardry of radio kept one mystified Monday night, ough in the presence of unrealized forces. From Northampton, sas., came the voice of Calvin Coolidge; from Washington the sice of Ogden Mills; from Chicago, the fine, strong voice of Mrs. outh; from Iowa, the voice of Sen. Capper; from far-off Nevada the sart Hoover; then a leap back to New York and the by his nose up the principal street.

"Move Over"

Yesterdays

. . . Of Old Salem Town Talks from The Statesman of Earlier Days November 9, 1907 PORTLAND .- The Title Guaranty & Trust company of this city

OMAHA .- Colonel Frank West and eight troops of United States scene of the Ute Indian troubles.

diers busy all winter. At its banquet at the Elks hall last night, the Salem Business Men's league voted unanimously in favor of the asset currency to begin circulating here teday. This currency is based upon two-thirds the market value of prunes and like proportionate value of bonds deposited with the Portland clearing house by the Salem banks.

November 9, 1922 PORTLAND.-Walter L. Pierce of LaGrande, democratic nominee for governor, had such a lead over Governor Ben W. Olcott on returns tabulated last night that republican leaders here conceded his Incomplete city election returns this morning showed Giesy winning over Vandevort for mayor; Poulsen over Frazier for recorder; Birtchett over Moffitt for chief of police. Almost every precinct in the city has a decided majority for Pierce for governor.

The 1927 Portland exposition tax amendment has been defeated in Marion county, as have the single tax, income tax and compulsory school measures.

New Views

Yesterday Statesman reporters asked: "Well, what are we going to do when election is over?" The

O. D. Bower, sheriff, candidate: "Go sit on the sea shore and watch the waves roll in, maybe, supreme court and was a large Think I'll win? Well, there are a property holder in Salem - and lot of things to catch up on his estate is yet a large holder of

C. J. Jackson, real estate man: 'Nothing much, I guess. Can't tell till I see what happens."

Daily Thought

'Kick, and there's trouble brewing, Whistle and life is gay. And the world's in tune Like a day in June, and the clouds all melt away.' -Wilcox.

By R. J. HENDRICKS The old Huntington home is the One Arm Brown again: present Swart home. And J. W. P. Huntington:

all kinds of rumors afloat, especially since it became certain that the money had not been deposited in the bank of Ladd & Bush, which had opened for business March 29 of that year; nor could had received the money on de-

* * * It became rumored that the money was hidden about the Hunington house - and in the few ears that followed literally hunireds of people searched for it, igh and low in the building. which was before long vacated and had no renters, because of the su-'haunted," and in the ground under and around the building.

to the place of starting.

The Murphy heirs sold lot 8 on February 8, 1908, to Ida Muths for $1000. It now stands in the name of Wm. and Chas. R. Iwan, with a comfortable home on it, presumably built by the Murphys.

voice of Franklin D. Roosevelt. The radio has removed the last vestige of isolation which has hedged our great men. Their voices now come right into the homes of the country. Those who listen to the addresses form impressions first-hand, instead of second-or third-hand. The change is something which public leaders of the future must reckon with.

Monday night the campaigners were all weary. You could tell it in their voices. The arguments were all used up too; they all had to fall back on God, and home and native land.

No, there will be no stock market crash today. When Wall street betting odds are as decisive as those in this election, the stock market is braced for the same result.

giving, Christmas, New Year's follow in short order.

BITS for BREAKFAST

(Continued from yesterday:) ernment a large sum in gold set ily occupied. it be found that any other bank

The deed records show that J. feet by 165 feet on July 9, 1853, from C. M. and A. W. Cartwright. his wife, for $1000, the description beginning at a point 264 feet north of the northwest corner of block 53, Salem, and running thence north, east, south and west 5 5 5 property as lots 7 and 8, block 54, being near the northeast corner of Division and Front streets. street. That is how it appears now. 5 5 5

R. P. Earhart, who had been in his final term ending January 10, 1887, was the administrator of the estate of the deceased superintendent of Indian affairs. The residence property was on January 15, 1876, sold by the administrator to J. J. Murphy, for $700. the original price of the land, and the improvements. J. J. Murphy was for a long time clerk of the such property.

* * *

Lot 7 was sold to Mrs. B. T. Swart on July 25, 1912, by the Murphy estate. That let contains the original Huntington home. It stands now as it was then, in good repair, Mrs. Swart is the mother of Renska Swart, well known Salem business woman and writer.

The fellow who lost his bet will now proceed to roll a peanut could be demanded by either casion, with refreshments in "No lies nose up the principal circot."

The death of J. W. P .Huntington heard division of opinion concern-The writer has in the past and the known fact that he had a ing this, with the claim that the

But Chas. L. Parmenter, the well known contractor, was born September 13, 1859, in the house in which he and Mrs. Parmenter live, at 809 North Commercial street, and has lived there all his ife, and the Huntington house is just back of his. The Parmenter and Huntington homes had a common alley. Mr. Parmenter played as a boy with the Huntington boys. He cannot be mistaken shout the Huntington house being the present Swart home, which is at 738 North Front street.

And Frank Haas, who for about perstition about the house being | 62 years has lived in the Mrs. N. J. Hass home next north of the Judge L. H. McMahan home at 791 North Front street, was also a playmate of the Huntington W. P. Huntington purchased 165 children. And he made many searches through the "haunted" house, in common with other boys of the neighborhood-hunting for the last gold.

That is the story—excepting the mysterious conclusion. The small price the Huntington home property brought at the sale of 1876 Later platting identified that was partly due to the great depression of that year; a part of the aftermath of the Civil war and the greenback fight, that ended in and on the east side of Front the resumption of specie payments -putting the country on the gold standard, from 1879, from which it has not departed. At that time the Indian service at the Grand it took $11 in currency to buy a Ronde agency, a great friend of $10 gold piece, and the difference Huntington, and afterward for had been much greater, especially And he gave Charley Genteel a over eight years secretary of state, during the dark days of the great room and employed him about the armed conflict. * * *

gold. R. P. Boise recalls that it was thought to be about $4000. Mr. Parmenter thinks it was more. That was a small sum considering He also recalls that its discovery was thought to be connected with

The Safety

Letters from

Statesman Readers

Monmouth, Ore., Nov. 5, 1932

Oregon Statesman. As a subscriber to your paper am going to ask you a question which I would like answered in your daily Statesman.

people, men, women and young exchange their labor for room and board, can they, after being ever could, boarded and roomed for a length of time (by the state law) collect wages for their labor. Most any farmer could help some of those that are out of labour, about it, and publish it. but there seems to be an impression that those they help may turn and collect wages also for their time, which the most of us are not able to pay.

Thanking you, A Subscriber.

ing-were with Ted and Pldge, always treat its men as humanly as fused to open the gate. "I'm driving," Ted declared. The others poured into the back with eagerness; they had business to do so. there. Ted hurried out of town, mill with some of the properties of then suddenly slowed down and the steel they had handled. Pidge, asked. trailed the car ahead. It parked particularly, had lost his contours along the road and Ted parked on the opposite side. "What're we stopping for?" Pat with one hundred and ninety his own way.

shouted. "We're playing policeman," Ted

A Football 66 []

CHAPTER XXXVII

Romance

answered. The other car started hurriedly and Ted followed; stopped and he stopped. "What're we on, a local?" Pidge asked. "Yes-change holds here." "But don't put your neck out." Pat contributed.

Barb, by artful glances and conversation, conveyed to Ted that since it seemed to be done, he might place his arm about her; but when he had done this, as per schedule, she had let him know there were limits.

But by that time the car across the road had started again, dashing quickly down the concrete, turning the first corner. Ted plunged ahead, careened at the corner.

"Say, boy-you gone nuts?" Pidge howled. Ted trailed at a safe distance-a an hour.

Ted and Pidge spent the summer at the Riverside experimenting with the daily newspaper idea. They put lances, with carte blanche to move new." about as they saw fit, work wherever it was safe, interview whom they pleased.

ing and editing; Pidge contributed humor, gossip and exercised his flair for headlines.

The men approached the innovation with a "what-the-hell-is-this-Lee Heisenberg got hell from his job alone. wife when he brought home a load of scrap instead of dishes in his bucket; and that Davie Bahr, at sixty-three, was a papa again-what

Each accident was reported carefully with full details explaining how it happened, why it happened and how it could have been avoided

When the summer had ended Ted was instructed by Eli Potter Scott to name two young men in the office department to carry on the work. It was to be given a trial 1 of a year, covering the entire plant, argument-and he stayed on. after which the safety record of the a tip of a woman who nursed Mr. Huntington in his last sickness. He recalls rumors that Huntington had delirium tremens, as he was a periodically heavy drinker.

Charley Genteel lives in the basement of the Gideon Stolz home at 575 Court street, Mrs. Lenta Westacott, not long deceased, daughter of Mr. Stols, who owned and occupied that home, took care of Charley, and the family still takes care of him, for he is old now, and not capable of doing much work, though for two generations he was a faithful laborer and gardener.

Some years after the death of Huntington, and after Judge J. J. Murphy bought the Huntington property on Front street, a man came from somewhere or nowhere and rented the "haunted" house. premises. Charley remembers that the man called himself Myer, but There are several versions of he does not recollect his given the story of the finding of the lost name, or that he ever heard one. * * *

The renter one day disappeared - supposedly with the money. Frank Haas says that, some years ago, when his memory was better than it is now, Charley Genteel told him that he saw the money, and that the stranger counted it and that it was $7000 in gold. Charley does not now remember how much it was, or was supposed to be. He thinks more than $4000. It is supposed that the renter found the money under the porch, evidences of digging there having been seen after his departure. It may be that the stranger had a "hunch," and some old residents thought the mysterious woman nurse gave him the "hunch," from words she overheard from the sick man in his delirium.

Charley Genteel thinks the man As the times are hard and was a German, and that likely he went back to Germany with the men and women are wanting to gold. But that is only a fancy, which he cannot now explain, if he If any one now living can throw more light upon this old story, the Bits man would be pleased to hear Program is Special

For Ex-Service Men PAIRVIEW, NOV. 8 .- Ex-service men of this district are invited to attend the special program of (The terms of the agreement the Fairview community club, Don't go home yet. Here's Armistice day Friday; then Thanks- be binding. If the contract was ular songs of the world war will for board and room in return for be presented in addition to a spelabor, no additional compensation cial program suitable for the oc-

Riverside would be checked against | squad journeyed to Bloomington After the dance the crowd piled other plants; decreased accidents to open the season with Indiana, into cars and made for the country.

Pat and his girl, a townie—Pat couldn't be bothered about import the Steel Corporation was no electory obviously a football team; but the Steel Corporation was no electory obviously a football team; but the Steel Corporation was no electory obviously a football team; but the Steel Corporation was no electory obviously a football team; but the Steel Corporation was no electory obviously a football team; but the Steel Corporation was no electory obviously a football team; but the Steel Corporation was no electory obviously a football team; but the Steel Corporation was no electory obviously a football team; but the Steel Corporation was no electory obviously a football team; but the Steel Corporation was no electory obviously a football team; but the Steel Corporation was no electory obviously a football team; but the Steel Corporation was no electory obviously a football team; but the Steel Corporation was no electory obviously a football team; but the Steel Corporation was no electory obviously a football team; but the Steel Corporation was no electory obviously a football team; but the Steel Corporation was no electory obviously a football team; but the Steel Corporation was no electory obviously a football team; but the Steel Corporation was no electory obviously a football team; but the Steel Corporation was no electory obviously a football team; but the Steel Corporation was no electory obviously a football team; but the Steel Corporation was no electory obviously a football team; but the Steel Corporation was no electory obviously a football team; but the Steel Corporation was no electory obviously a football team; but the Steel Corporation was no electory obviously and the steel Corporation was no electory obvio mosynary Institution-but-it would an officious student manager re-

"I've got my orders not to open possible when it was good business this gate for anybody," he insisted. Barney hobbled out of the bus. Ted and Pidge came out of the "Weren't they expecting us?" he

That was Barney-out on his feet and become a rugged young giant but still fighting his own battles in He spoke plainly in the dressing pounds of tough stuff. "Wait till old Pap sees me," he

"I've been hobbling about on this leg; doctor's been after me to stay in beds I may have to-but I'm here today and I want you to start off right. Get that spirit you had

He cracked it out, eyes glaring;

"The country will be watching you today; they'll want to see if

Win today and the rest will start

"Now go on out there and start right. The man who watches a play turns in his suit. I want to see leven fighters out there all the time today-eleven winners. I don't want you to go out there to die

"I'm sending you out there to Stone got away for a forty-two yard run for a score in the second period; in the third Pidge intercepted a pass, brought it back to

"We gained enough ground to

"Why didn't we get them then?"

"If you'd block once in a while

"You can't block and be all-Am-

Stone sneered. Barney hobbled in

On Monday he wasn't at the game and gave them the Navy of-

"The trip used up the Old Man us. I don't give a damn what you and that goes for everybody. The anybody don't want to help, let him wasted few pretty words.

Bob was plenty he-man and Barney was out Tuesday with his meanw

get to hell out."

erican-vou've got to run to be we might," Pidge answered.

make four touchdowns," Ted said minion team."

fight to win.'

cried expectantly. "Wait till Barney sees you," Ted amended.

"Looks like I'm all set to surprise everybody," Pidge chuckled, at the Army last year-this is "and the first one I surprised was winning school; this is a New Domyself.

Barney wasn't feeling well. He had spent the summer at coaching poured it into them; stiffened their schools and came up to the season backs. tired; had been bothered with pains here and there-unfamiliar symptoms for Barney, who had never you have the stuff to come back stopped driving himself.

"Two bad seasons and they'd worrying; lose today and they'll all shoot me against the wall with the prime their guns for you. rest," he had said to friends who had tried to get him to ease up. Football coaching being the precarious thing it was, Barney got the money while he could.

The pain jumped from back to leg; he dragged it around the prac- gamely. guy couldn't get fresh at fifty miles tice field with the aid of a stick; finally began coaching from a chair. When they tied the Old Man to Barb was watching him curiously. a chair he was in bad shape-when he let them do it, things were even

"What you should do," Doctor in part of each day in the plant, Blake said, "is to go to bed and spelling men on the rolls, furnaces give the infection in your blood a the seven-yard line and bucked it and shears of the skelp mill, the chance to be cleaned out; give us a blooming mill soaking pits and chance to find out where it's comrolls, the converting mill metal ing from; stop the source, then a was nervous, uncertain; missing yard; labor gangs. They were free little rest and you'll be good as signals, missing blocks, afraid of it-

"But I've got these boys out here," Barney objected. "I've got in the dressing room. to make a comeback this season. Each afternoon they labored in We're building a stadium and must Stone asked sharply. an office of the safety department, play all our games away from turning out their four pages of home. We must have a good seatypewritten copy which was later son or we can't pay for that stadistributed throughout the bulletin dium next year when we open it. boards. Ted did most of the writ- I'll be all right-this will go away." all-American," Pat added.

"If you don't take care of yourself you'll never see that stadium." to see that the trunks were packed "Don't kid me now, Doc," Bar- and the chatter ceased. ney laughed.

"Let Bob handle the teamstuff" attitude; but they came back they'd have to get along without lecture. Bob Walsh reviewed the every day to read again and find you if you weren't here, you know." out that Big Fritz's woman was Bob Walsh, the assistant coach, sick; that the reason Albert Mc- had been one of Barney's boys Mahon was late was because he years before; a hearty, aggressive, and the Doctor kept him in bed. couldn't get his Ford started; that capable chap but not ready for the He'll try to be here tomorrows Doctor Blake went to the presi- and when I say we I mean all of > dent and the Athletic Board. "Forget football for awhile," think of me or of each other off kindly President Adams urged, the field; but once in a suit you're you must think of yourself and of going to work or get off the squad; your family now." "I'll be all right," Barney in- Old Man is in a tough spot and if

"Pay no attention to his medical terms," Doctor Blake advised. "He knows just enough about medicine to hurt himself."

The President was impressed.

sisted, "just a little embolism."

But he was on edge when the Card Series Opens For St. Paul Folks

With Second 20th

ST. PAUL, Nov. 8 .- The first of the series of seven 500 card Mullen, who has been ill for the parties was held Sunday at the past week, is still confined to her Knights of Columbus hall. Eighten tables were in play. The women's first prize was won by Mrs. Steve Coleman and second by Mrs. emnized November 16 at the Holy awarded to Tony Honoski of Bessie Rector, sister of the bride, Woodburn and second to Law- will act as bridesmaid and Lester rence Gooding. John Davidson re- Bunning will act as best man.

leg propped up on a chair, barking Barney immediately gave him an out instructions and criticism. Wednesday he didn't show up. (To Be Continued) > ceived the door prize. The next party of the series will be held November 20. Sister Marion Theresa, who has been teaching at St. Helens, is visiting at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Mullen. Mrs.

The marriage of Miss Reba Rector to Henry Opitz will be sol-Joseph Blanchett. Men's first was Rosary church in Portland. Miss

Daily Health Talks

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

When the attack is mild it is referred to as a called grippe. When the infection occurs among a great number of persons, assuming the nature of an epidemic, the disturbance is cold, but if it is more severe it is usually regarded as influenza. It is difficult to distinguish between the different forms of infection. Indeed ties believe they are identical. Anyhow, my readers are anxious to dodge the evil effects of the ailment, whatever its name or nature. The common cold is an acute infectious disease, of which the exact cause has not been discovered.

Dr. Copeland

many authori-

act cause has not been discovered. It is most frequently met in the winter and spring.

Everyone is familiar with the symptoma of this disorder. The sufferer complains of a "cold in the head," headache, chills and pains all ever the body. An annoying cough may follow, with considerable pain and soreness in the chest.

How can we prevent this troublesorme and disabling ailment? Chilling of any portion of the body and excessive fatigue lower the resistance to infection, hence great care should be taken to avoid ex-

ANY letters come to me, posure and overexertion, particuasking how to prevent the common cold. "Grippe," influenza" and "catarrhal fever" are by contact, it is best to keep as some of the names given this con- much as possible out of crowded poorly ventilated places. Guard against cold and dampness. Make sure that you receive suffi cient sleep and rest.

If you have a cold, give it the proper attention. Do not subject yourself and others to any unnecessary dangers. Stay at home if you do not feel well. If fever, chills and body pains persist, stay in bed, heeding the warning signs of Mother Nature.

Just a day or two in bed may save you many weeks of unnecessary and possibly dangerous illness. Warmth, proper medicine and simple but nourishing foods will hasten recovery.

Let me give you a few rather specific directions. If you feel a cold coming on, go home at once and get into a tub of water as hot as you can stand. Stay in it half an hour, drinking during that time a lot of hot water or hot lemonade. Rub off briskly with a coarse towel, then go to bed at once, be-tween blankets. If things proceed

Answers to Health Queries

S. E. C. Q.—What should a girl height as determined by examination of 19, 5 feet 7 inches tall, weigh?

A.—She should weigh about 135 pounds. This is about the average is a matter of little or ne significance. sight for one of this age and comiss, see the