

FOX BREEDERS PLAN UNIQUE PELT SHOW

Association Will Conduct
Show at Chamber Here
November 29-30

The first pelt show and sale ever held in Oregon will be featured here November 29 and 30 by the Oregon State Fox Breeders' association, with the event to be held in the auditorium of the chamber of commerce.

Plans for the show, and sale were formulated yesterday, at a meeting of the state executive committee held here. State officers are: president, E. N. Walker of Gresham; vice president, E. F. Brown of Independence; and secretary-treasurer, L. A. Wooten of Forest Grove.

The two-day event is expected to attract a number of Northwest buyers, representatives of the New York market which takes virtually all pelts raised.

Display Many Pelts
Between 600 and 1000 pelts will be on display from all parts of Oregon. The annual pelt sales in Oregon are said to run about $200,000.

The state Fox Breeders' association has a membership of about 150, and the number of fox breeders over the state is estimated at 225, with between 12,000 and 14,000 foxes under care.

There are 50 breeders within a 15-mile radius of Salem, officers indicated yesterday. This industry has developed rapidly the past two years.

Football Booster Program Features Chamber Meeting

Program for the chamber of commerce luncheon Monday noon contains a galaxy of Willamette university talent, all of whom will speak or sing as a means to letting the chamber members know of the Willamette vs. Whitman football game to be held on Willamette field next Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

The program will include remarks by Coach "Spec" Keene; music by the university 10-piece orchestra; Miss Mildred Hewitt, song queen, the university quartet, talk by Prof. W. C. Jones of the faculty and pep talk by Walter Erickson, president of the associated student body.

Children of Rural School Organizing Four-H Clubs Again

JEFFERSON, Nov. 12 — The pupils of the Looney Butte school have organized two 4-H clubs. The boys of the school will take up a Forestry project, and the girls will do sewing.

Officers of the boys club are president, James Anderson; vice president, John Finlay; secretary, Edgar Husted. Officers of the girls' club are president, Hazel Farmer; vice president, Millie Olesman; and secretary, Lorena Olesman. Arthur Bainter will be

JOBLESS HOPED FOR New Deal, But Not Especially Hopeful at ROOSEVELT ELECTION

Hangers-on at the U. S.-Y. M. C. A. Employment office on Court street—and they are comprised of common laborers, tradesmen of all sorts, white collar men, transients, jobhunters sincere and those who make merely a pretense of looking for employment—were preponderantly in favor of Franklin D. Roosevelt for president before the election.

So, of course, they are generally well pleased with the election's outcome. But, while before the polling day they talked of better times if Hoover were downed, now they say that there is "not so much added hope."

A marked change in feeling and attitude toward the national government, however, is evident. Before election, many of the employment office crowd talked of communism and hinted at violence club musician and Donald Guenzli will be the yell leader of the two clubs. Mrs. Ethel L. Gulvin will be the club's leader. Other members of the clubs are Billy Anderson, Buddy Elliott, Evelyn Woods, Violet Farmer, Louise Looney, Dorothy Elliott and Evelyn Bainter.

Indian Village is Made by Students; Forming Endeavor

ZENA, Nov. 12 — The pupils of the Zena school are making an attractive Indian village which will be exhibited at the Thanksgiving program. The first and third grades are making bows, fourth and sixth boys, blankets and rugs, fifth and sixth girls, dolls and the seventh grade, teepees. Bows and arrows and animals will be the next articles made.

The young people of the three adjacent districts of Zena, Lincoln and Spring valley will hold a candle light service at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Craig Wednesday night, November 16 to organize a Christian Endeavor society.

160 Bales Hops at Aurora Purchased For England Trade

AURORA, Nov. 11.—Lee Hing and George Clark sold jointly 128 bales of hops to Luckenbaugh, to be shipped to Schiedenburg of England. Norman Gergen sold 32 bales to the same buyer.

Both transactions were made election day, at 17½ cents.

BOYS! GIRLS! Enroll now in the BIG PRIZE CONTEST

46 prizes Not a drawing

Woolpert and Legg

Druggists

Court at Liberty Tel. 3444

during the coming winter. They were bitter in their denunciation of the federal government and blamed it for their present lean state of existence.

Questioned yesterday, most of the men at the job office seemed to have forgotten much of their grudge. A "change" had been accomplished, they pointed out. Now they will see what comes of it.

Asked how he felt about the election, one of the men predicted a war in the near future.

"Always has been during a democratic president," he explained.

Another unshaven, but bright-eyed one chimed in to qualify his companion's remark with:

"If they don't cut down the war debts, there'll be another war."

Returning to politics, a third man said he was glad of the way the election went, because "we were not getting anywhere with Hoover. We'd better change."

"Say, how did prohibition come out," one of the men asked the reporter.

Told that the Oregon dry law had been repealed by a large majority, this man expressed approval but declared he didn't want to see saloons come back.

"I'll tell you," said another, "the saloon was bad because of the treats. We'd stand around and before we knew it, it had got us. But I think prohibition is worse."

None of the dozen or more men in the employment bureau waiting room said he favored the saloon and most averred they did not want to see it return.

Another unshaven, but bright-eyed one chimed in to qualify his companion's remark with:

"If they don't cut down the war debts, there'll be another war."

Returning to politics, a third man said he was glad of the way the election went, because "we were not getting anywhere with Hoover. We'd better change."

"Say, how did prohibition come out," one of the men asked the reporter.

Told that the Oregon dry law had been repealed by a large majority, this man expressed approval but declared he didn't want to see saloons come back.

"I'll tell you," said another, "the saloon was bad because of the treats. We'd stand around and before we knew it, it had got us. But I think prohibition is worse."

None of the dozen or more men in the employment bureau waiting room said he favored the saloon and most averred they did not want to see it return.

Another unshaven, but bright-eyed one chimed in to qualify his companion's remark with:

"If they don't cut down the war debts, there'll be another war."

Returning to politics, a third man said he was glad of the way the election went, because "we were not getting anywhere with Hoover. We'd better change."

"Say, how did prohibition come out," one of the men asked the reporter.

Told that the Oregon dry law had been repealed by a large majority, this man expressed approval but declared he didn't want to see saloons come back.

"I'll tell you," said another, "the saloon was bad because of the treats. We'd stand around and before we knew it, it had got us. But I think prohibition is worse."

None of the dozen or more men in the employment bureau waiting room said he favored the saloon and most averred they did not want to see it return.

Another unshaven, but bright-eyed one chimed in to qualify his companion's remark with:

"If they don't cut down the war debts, there'll be another war."

Returning to politics, a third man said he was glad of the way the election went, because "we were not getting anywhere with Hoover. We'd better change."

"Say, how did prohibition come out," one of the men asked the reporter.

Told that the Oregon dry law had been repealed by a large majority, this man expressed approval but declared he didn't want to see saloons come back.

"I'll tell you," said another, "the saloon was bad because of the treats. We'd stand around and before we knew it, it had got us. But I think prohibition is worse."

None of the dozen or more men in the employment bureau waiting room said he favored the saloon and most averred they did not want to see it return.

Another unshaven, but bright-eyed one chimed in to qualify his companion's remark with:

"If they don't cut down the war debts, there'll be another war."

Returning to politics, a third man said he was glad of the way the election went, because "we were not getting anywhere with Hoover. We'd better change."

"Say, how did prohibition come out," one of the men asked the reporter.

Told that the Oregon dry law had been repealed by a large majority, this man expressed approval but declared he didn't want to see saloons come back.

"I'll tell you," said another, "the saloon was bad because of the treats. We'd stand around and before we knew it, it had got us. But I think prohibition is worse."

None of the dozen or more men in the employment bureau waiting room said he favored the saloon and most averred they did not want to see it return.

Another unshaven, but bright-eyed one chimed in to qualify his companion's remark with:

"If they don't cut down the war debts, there'll be another war."

Returning to politics, a third man said he was glad of the way the election went, because "we were not getting anywhere with Hoover. We'd better change."

"Say, how did prohibition come out," one of the men asked the reporter.

Told that the Oregon dry law had been repealed by a large majority, this man expressed approval but declared he didn't want to see saloons come back.

"I'll tell you," said another, "the saloon was bad because of the treats. We'd stand around and before we knew it, it had got us. But I think prohibition is worse."

None of the dozen or more men in the employment bureau waiting room said he favored the saloon and most averred they did not want to see it return.

Another unshaven, but bright-eyed one chimed in to qualify his companion's remark with:

"If they don't cut down the war debts, there'll be another war."

Returning to politics, a third man said he was glad of the way the election went, because "we were not getting anywhere with Hoover. We'd better change."

"Say, how did prohibition come out," one of the men asked the reporter.

Told that the Oregon dry law had been repealed by a large majority, this man expressed approval but declared he didn't want to see saloons come back.

"I'll tell you," said another, "the saloon was bad because of the treats. We'd stand around and before we knew it, it had got us. But I think prohibition is worse."

None of the dozen or more men in the employment bureau waiting room said he favored the saloon and most averred they did not want to see it return.

Another unshaven, but bright-eyed one chimed in to qualify his companion's remark with:

"If they don't cut down the war debts, there'll be another war."

Returning to politics, a third man said he was glad of the way the election went, because "we were not getting anywhere with Hoover. We'd better change."

"Say, how did prohibition come out," one of the men asked the reporter.

Told that the Oregon dry law had been repealed by a large majority, this man expressed approval but declared he didn't want to see saloons come back.

"I'll tell you," said another, "the saloon was bad because of the treats. We'd stand around and before we knew it, it had got us. But I think prohibition is worse."

None of the dozen or more men in the employment bureau waiting room said he favored the saloon and most averred they did not want to see it return.

Another unshaven, but bright-eyed one chimed in to qualify his companion's remark with:

"If they don't cut down the war debts, there'll be another war."

Returning to politics, a third man said he was glad of the way the election went, because "we were not getting anywhere with Hoover. We'd better change."

"Say, how did prohibition come out," one of the men asked the reporter.

Told that the Oregon dry law had been repealed by a large majority, this man expressed approval but declared he didn't want to see saloons come back.

"I'll tell you," said another, "the saloon was bad because of the treats. We'd stand around and before we knew it, it had got us. But I think prohibition is worse."

None of the dozen or more men in the employment bureau waiting room said he favored the saloon and most averred they did not want to see it return.

Another unshaven, but bright-eyed one chimed in to qualify his companion's remark with:

"If they don't cut down the war debts, there'll be another war."

Returning to politics, a third man said he was glad of the way the election went, because "we were not getting anywhere with Hoover. We'd better change."

"Say, how did prohibition come out," one of the men asked the reporter.

Told that the Oregon dry law had been repealed by a large majority, this man expressed approval but declared he didn't want to see saloons come back.

"I'll tell you," said another, "the saloon was bad because of the treats. We'd stand around and before we knew it, it had got us. But I think prohibition is worse."

None of the dozen or more men in the employment bureau waiting room said he favored the saloon and most averred they did not want to see it return.

Another unshaven, but bright-eyed one chimed in to qualify his companion's remark with:

"If they don't cut down the war debts, there'll be another war."

Returning to politics, a third man said he was glad of the way the election went, because "we were not getting anywhere with Hoover. We'd better change."

"Say, how did prohibition come out," one of the men asked the reporter.

Told that the Oregon dry law had been repealed by a large majority, this man expressed approval but declared he didn't want to see saloons come back.

"I'll tell you," said another, "the saloon was bad because of the treats. We'd stand around and before we knew it, it had got us. But I think prohibition is worse."

None of the dozen or more men in the employment bureau waiting room said he favored the saloon and most averred they did not want to see it return.

Another unshaven, but bright-eyed one chimed in to qualify his companion's remark with:

"If they don't cut down the war debts, there'll be another war."

Returning to politics, a third man said he was glad of the way the election went, because "we were not getting anywhere with Hoover. We'd better change."

"Say, how did prohibition come out," one of the men asked the reporter.

HOGS, MUTTON ARE STEADY PAST WEEK

PORTLAND, Nov. 12.—(AP)—Cattle receipts were 1498, calves 53 for the week. Steers showed more or less weakness from the start. Trading in general appeared with a loss of around 25c with an early top of $5.25 and $5 thereafter. Most of the sales of good steers were around $4.25-4.75; low grade was down to $3 and lower. Yearling heifers sold at $4.35-4.50, with heavier stuff $3.85 down; a lot of mixed steers and yearling heifers sold at $6.50; high medium cows sold at $3, with some good sorts up to $3.10-3.35 and low cutters and cutters $1-2; bulls were around 50c-52, but a few sold at $2.50; calves and vealers had a spread of $2-5.50 in a steady market.

Hogs receipts were 4369 for the week. Trade was generally steady. No real tops arrived in the lamb alleys, the best available moving at $4, with strictly choice quoted to $4.25-4.50, common and medium sorts were $3-3.75 with thin throwouts in nominal call around $2; yearlings er in the week. This was the closing top on light butchers. Heavy butcher sorts were down to $3 with a large per cent $2.25 and better; packing sows were $2.50-3 generally with the bulk 2.75 and better; feeder pigs sold at $3.35-3.50.

Sheep and lambs receipts were 2525 for the week. Trade was generally steady. No real tops arrived in the lamb alleys, the best available moving at $4, with strictly choice quoted to $4.25-4.50, common and medium sorts were $3-3.75 with thin throwouts in nominal call around $2; yearlings were $3-2.50 with strictly choice quoted to $2.75 and better; cull to choice ewes were 50c-1.25.

Tompkins Loses To W. B. Duerst

W. B. Duerst, farmer of Bellevue, defeated Morton Tompkins of Grand Island as member of the legislature from Yamhill county. Arthur McPhillips, McMinnville banker, was reelected. Peter Zimmerman was elected joint senator for Yamhill-Washington-Tillamook-Clatsop counties.

DRIVE A CAR?

Your eyes need a checking up even if you don't suspect trouble. We invite you to call for an examination.

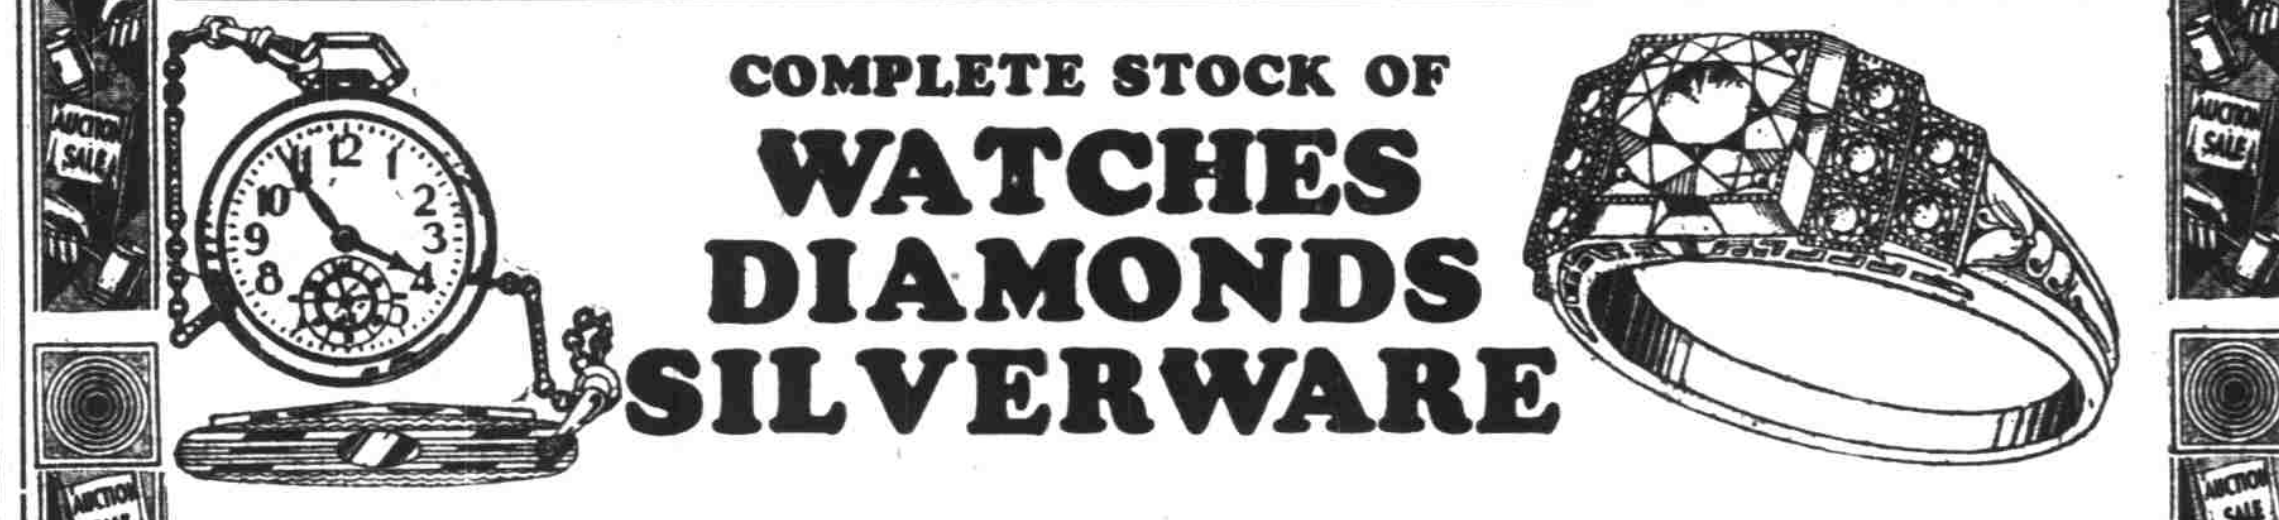

Thompson-Glutch
OPTOMETRISTS
838 State St.

PUBLIC AUCTION SALE!

STARTS Tues., Nov. 15th 2:30 P. M. BURNETT BROS.

COMPLETE STOCK OF WATCHES DIAMONDS SILVERWARE

Make Your Selections
EARLY
Do Not be Disappointed
Quantities Limited

GIFT
HELD UNTIL CHRISTMAS

FREE
Every Lady Attending This Extraordinary Sale
Tues., Nov. 15th
2:30 Sharp
Will Receive a Beautiful
Souvenir Free

BUY NOW AT Your Own Price

Remember...
Buy Early at
Your Own Price

TO THE PUBLIC
We are determined to close out our present stock together with the new seasonable goods recently purchased
NOTHING RESERVED . . .
You can buy with perfect confidence
OUR GUARANTEE . . .
stands back of every article sold
REMEMBER . . .
We are not going out of business
BURNETT BROS.

A Deposit
Holds
Any Article

2:30 Two Sales Daily 7:30

Afternoons GIFTS THAT ENDURE AND EN-DEAR Evenings

BURNETT BROS.

S. L. Stevens, Auctioneer Salem, Oregon

PRE-THANKSGIVING

Disposal

AT SHIPLEY'S

SALE STARTS MONDAY AT 9 A. M.

SILK
HOSE

55c

2 pair $1.00

Full Fashioned pure thread silk hose in semi-service and chiffon.
Cradle foot and all new fall shades

WOOLEN
DRESSES

1/2
PRICE

ALL
FALL
HATS
In Stock
Substantially
Reduced

SILK
DRESSES
at Reduced Prices

ALL
WINTER
COATS
SPECIALLY REDUCED

SHIPLEY'S