

Indians and Salem High Gridmen in Annual Clash Tonight

LAVELLE FEARS TEAM ATTITUDE

800 Redskin Rooters Will Accompany Squad Here; Game at 8 o'clock

The annual gridiron duel between Salem High and Chemawa Indian school, an event which has been growing in importance and public interest since it was instituted as the annual Thanksgiving day game here three years ago, will be held tonight at 8 p. m. on Sweetland field.

Final announcement to this effect was made Thursday by Coach Les Lavelle of Chemawa, the Indian school eleven being technically the home team this year. There were rumors that the game would be switched to the afternoon because of the threat of fog. If weather forecast is correct, there will be no fog tonight, but in any case it is too late, Coach Lavelle said, to make any change in the time of the game. Fans who saw the Parrish-Leslie game Wednesday night, were able to follow the play fairly well, especially those on the bleachers at the south side. From the grandstand it was difficult to pick out individuals. It is not likely that there will be any thicker fog than on that occasion.

800 Redskins Will Root for Their Team
Tonight's game is expected to be a colorful affair, with 800 "native Americans" on the sidelines rooting for the Chemawa team and probably an equal number of paleface rooters supporting the winners of the red and black.

Coach Hollis Huntington's men underwent some severe punishment in their game with the big Tillamook team last week, and not all of them are in top condition but it is probable that all of the regulars will get into the game. The Indians rested last week end and should be fresher.

Despite Salem high's numerous defeats this season, the student support has not faltered. One of the peppest rallies of the year was held at the high school Wednesday afternoon, and at that time Coach Huntington and some of the players hinted that, win or lose, the team might put up its best game of the year this afternoon. Captain Les Welser, Melvin Engle, Sam Earle and Andy Helverson were some of the players called upon for talks.

Last Game for Two Salem High Players
This game will mark the last appearance for Welser, and also for Fink, tackle, as high school gridmen. The Chemawa eleven includes a greater number of players who will perform for the last time.

Between halves there will be a special attraction, an Indian dance in which a number of the Chemawa students, all dressed in the costumes of their native tribes, will participate.

The Indians have won two of these Thanksgiving day tilts and Salem high one. Here is the record:
1929—Chemawa 13, Salem 7.
1930—Salem 14, Chemawa 0.
1931—Chemawa 7, Salem 2.

CHEMAWA, Nov. 24.—(Special)—Chemawa's Braves held their last hard workout Tuesday night in preparation for the final game of the season with Salem High. "Dummy" scrimmage was the order of the day with some attention given to blocking and line charging.

In contrast to the situation a year ago, nearly every member of the Chemawa squad is in good condition. Ray Pratt has a sore shoulder and Bruno is suffering from a boil on his arm and a strained muscle, but the ailments and disabilities are all of a minor nature.

Lavelle Worried at Nonchalant Attitude
Coach Lavelle is not so certain, however, of his boys' mental condition. That old dusky gentleman in the woodpile, overconfidence, has appeared suddenly and for no apparent reason. The student body has already arranged to greet the victors. It is a difficult matter for the team in its constant association with the atreous student body, to escape the contagion.

The coach, on the other hand, is certain that this game will be a hard fought affair in that nobody knows beforehand how it will turn out.

Many of the Chemawa players will be playing their last game for the Indian high school, Captain Meachem, Vivette, Walters, Churchill, Belgrave and Jell will be inducted into the team because of their age or graduation this year, and Thursday they will be trying to keep Chemawa's record intact, of no defeats and of not being scored on by a legally constituted high school team.

Tumbling Being Taught to Girls in Gym Classes

DALLAS, Nov. 23.—Girls' gym classes are now practicing tumbling under the direction of Miss Helen Hull, girls physical education teacher. It is planned to select a team within the next two weeks which will practice together and give tumbling exhibitions at the basketball games this winter. It is expected that the tumbling classes will take up all the time before the Christmas holidays with the regular girls interclass basketball series starting soon after the holidays.

The junior girls won the interclass volleyball series by defeating the seniors in the final game. In the first round games the juniors won over the freshmen and the seniors beat the sophomores.

NOTRE DAME SHOWS WAY TO ANNAPOLIS ELEVEN

Unable to stem the Notre Dame attack, a fighting Navy eleven was defeated, 19-0, before 60,000 spectators at Cleveland Stadium, Cleveland, O. This picture, snapped during the first quarter, shows Basas, Irish fullback, going through left guard for a gain of four yards.

CURT COMMENTS

After today there will be a slight lull in sport news, but bear up, fans, it'll be basketball season before you can catch your breath after a big football campaign.

Some of our readers, after glancing over the names of Chemawa's football players, picked Hoptowitz as the most appropriate designated gridman. Hoptowitz does hop to it, we'll agree.

But there is a new man out there this year who merits some special notice when he lines up against Salem high, another of those lads with the expressive names; Frank Dogeagle. He had never played football until this season, but went right out and won a regular job on that otherwise experienced Chemawa eleven.

Back in South Dakota, however, young Dogeagle is reported to be a special attraction, an Indian dancer in which a number of the Chemawa students, all dressed in the costumes of their native tribes, will participate.

SOMEbody wanted to know how long it had been since Whitman was shut out, prior to last Saturday, in a Northwest conference game, evidently surmising that it was quite some time. It happened, however, once in the 1930 season, though Whitman won the championship that year. It played Pacific a scoreless tie in Portland.

We rather expect the Trojans will keep right on at their winning pace today against the Washington Huskies. But we're pulling for the Huskies, though we never dreamed of wishing anybody in Seattle any luck.

Today also might be Oregon's turn to cop; the Webfoot must be burning around the ears after all the panning they took from Los Angeles sport writers. But don't bank on Brovelli and Steponovich being out of there.

Williamette is a "farm" for Oregon Normal school in the matter of producing basketball players as well as gridmen. We understand that five former Williamette hoopers are enrolled at Larry Wolfe's institution, and the queer part about it is that these five are properly divided up into forwards, center and guards, so that they would make a corking good team. Of course that doesn't mean that these five men will be Wolfe's varsity; he has some other good basketball men.

The ex-Bears are Kitchen and Benjamin, forwards; Baldwin, who was a freshman center three years ago; Allen and Ashby, guards.

Kitchen and Benjamin are nicely assorted as to size, speed and style of play, while Allen and Ashby are likewise varying types of guards, Allen shinning on tight defense and Ashby on speedy floor play.

Church Basket Ball League to Meet Monday

Next Monday night a meeting of representatives of the church league basketball groups will be held at the Y. M. C. A. with Bob Boardman, Sunday school superintendent, as requested to be present if possible, Frank Neer will preside.

Last year the Presbyterian boys won in one division and the Congregationalists in the other, with the former coming out ahead in the final playoff.

M'EWAN TAKES CASE TO COURT

Restraining Order Sought Against Officials who Ousted Head Coach

WORCESTER, Mass., Nov. 23.—(AP)—Alleging breach of contract, Captain John J. McEwan, recently suspended as head football coach at Holy Cross college, asked the superior court today to restrain the college trustees from interfering with the carrying out of his duties.

Captain McEwan asserted widespread publicity which resulted from his suspension had caused him great mental anguish and explained that the steps leading up to it resulted from interference with his football policies and an alleged refusal by the college authorities to provide him with the equipment he deemed necessary for his football team. He informed the court his annual salary was $8500 under a contract running through the 1933 season.

The former Army and Oregon coach, an all-American center in his playing days at West Point, also charged that "the defendant wrongfully and without cause and in direct violation of his contract purported to suspend the plaintiff and refused to allow him to continue the performance of his duty."

Unless reinstated in his position as coach prior to November 28, McEwan said he would "suffer irreparable injury to his reputation as football coach and his ability to secure further positions as coach will be irreparably damaged."

Captain McEwan differed with other athletic officials of Holy Cross during most of this season. Three weeks ago he announced Bart Sullivan, track coach at Holy Cross for more than 20 years, would not be permitted by him to continue as trainer for the football team.

Medford opposes Jefferson today
PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 23.—(AP)—Both untested and each scored upon but once this season, the football teams of Medford high and Jefferson high of Portland will meet here tomorrow afternoon in a struggle for the mythical championship of the state.

Eric Waldorf, Jefferson coach, uses the double wingback system with end runs, tackle slants, line plunges and aerial maneuvers generally mixed.

Medford on two previous occasions has won the mythical state title, once defeating Grant high of Portland and again, Benson Tech of this city. Jefferson took the title from Marshfield last year in a post season game.

Both teams will enter the field with their full strength, and with prospects for a dry field, both coaches are predicting a speedy game.

Beavers Face Detroit on Muddy Field

DETROIT, Nov. 23.—(AP)—

Only one injury bothered the westerners tonight. That was the wrenched knee of right tackle, Adolph Schwammel, who will not be able to play tomorrow. The Oregon boys also seemed destined to fight their battle on a muddy field, only recently cleared of ice and snow.

The element of revenge has entered the rival camps. For Detroit it is an opportunity to erase the memory of the defeat of 1929 when Oregon ended the Titans' 20-game winning streak. Oregon State hopes to regain inter-sectional prestige lost in the defeat by Fordham last Saturday.

The tentative starting lineup of the Oregon State team was announced tonight as follows: K. Davis, re; Miller, rt; Leaf, lg; Curtis, qt; Tuttle, rg; Field, rb; E. Evans, re; Fangle, qb; Blossone, lb; Moe, rb; Joslin, fb.

The state board of control, following two meetings Wednesday, held in abeyance a proposal by the Portland General Electric company whereby the state would receive electrical energy for state departments and institutions at a rate 15 per cent less than charged under the present contract.

Under the proposed contract the state would receive electric energy at 14 mills per kilowatt hour. The saving to the state would exceed $4000 annually, exclusive of a cut of $10,300 a year made by the electric company effective May 1, 1931.

Senator W. E. Burke of Yamhill county protested against signing the proposed contract unless the company would make it retroactive as of the date of the previous reduction. Burke is chairman of the committee appointed by Governor Meier to investigate the construction of a state power plant at the state penitentiary under a 1931 law.

Burke said he had obtained figures indicating that a state-operated plant could furnish electrical energy at six mills per kilowatt hour.

Robertson Shows Nation's Problem As New Creditor
A new position for the United States—that of a creditor nation—embarrasses its foreign trade, involves its tariffs in endless debate and creates a paucity of trained, competent foreign representative for this country. Such was the viewpoint expressed Tuesday at the Salem Kiwanis club by Charles A. Robertson of West Salem. He is a former attaché at American consulates in Europe.

Major Robertson showed how the World War changed our national status economically and how succeeding years, with the extension of credit to foreign countries, has made the problem of international finance exceedingly complicated.

Mission to Serve Dinner Thursday Says Rev. Coulon
The Open Door Mission, upstairs at the northwest corner of Chemeketa and Commercial, will serve Thanksgiving dinner from 1 o'clock Thursday, Pastor H. W. Coulon says. In this manner the church will take a share in helping those who cannot otherwise enjoy a Thanksgiving dinner.

Friends of the mission are asked to aid in this cause by contributing foodstuffs, as there is no regular source of income to provide for the undertaking. The mission feeds from 50 to 70 homeless and helpless persons daily, in addition to distributing clothing, Coulon says.
