Although at this stage of any sport season Spec Keene is usually pessimistic, he came right out yesterday and announced that he was going to have a fine-looking basketball team this year. The new uniforms he has selected, he admitted, are just about the snappiest toggery a Bearcat quintet has ever worn.

Basketball differs from football in that it isn't quite so exclusively a scholastic sport. Basketball players may be, and often are, developed entirely independently of any school. Football players might be. but seldom are. Did you ever hear of a pro gridder who wasn't recruited from the college ranks? There may be some but we don't know of any.

-0-But basketball players have almost as much chance to develop in the independent ranks as on a school team, and that is one factor which makes school basketball teams so unpredict-

You know pretty much what any given school's football team is going to be like next season, if you know what it did last season and how many veterans it is going to lose. The incoming talent, especially in the colleges, is not going to cut a great deal of ice. If you don't believe that, look at the Webfeet this year; though Callison had a great squad of frosh last year whom he had personally coached, only one of them, Stan Kostka, has been a regular in the season just about to end. -0-

But a basketball coach may pick up ball players apparently out of thin air and weld them into a great team; not quite overnight, but before a season is over with. --

Don't get any notion those last four paragraphs have anything to Here, for instance, is something conference meeting.

Albany Democrat-Herald:

"The Oregon Statesman, Salem newspaper, is handing Albany college the 'razzberry' because it appears that Albany college has gone against its 'athletic de-emphasis' announcement of a year "To tell the truth, both boys whom the Statesman infers are 'proselytes,' Cunningham and George, were sent to Albany college by former local students, who coached the boys or knew them in their respective home towns. 'Would the Statesman have us believe that such is not the condition in Willamette university, or any other school its type or size? Or do all of Spec Keene's athletes enter the dear old Jason Lee establishment to take up the Methodist ministry?"

We hope most of our readers recognized in our reference to "de-emphasis" at Albany, which called forth the foregoing outburst, an attempt to be humorous. What we meant was that any "over-emphasis" there in the past must have been misdirected, judging from results.

-0-Of course the practice of gradutes who are out coaching, sending their best athletes back to the alma mater, is a form of proselyting, though not in our opinion objectionable in any way. Believe it or not, Bob, we hope Albany keeps on proselyting any way it pleases until it beats Willamette at football some day; because then Willamette will have a good, scrappy rival close to home, with transportation costs at a mini-
