MASONIC LOT RENT ONCE $1.50 MONTH

Actress in Pantaloon is Shock to Women; Early Salem Days Depicted

Days when a cinder bicycle track covered the ground where now stands the postoffice; and when he and Gay Hensch rented for $1.50 a month the lot where now is situated the Masonic building, were reviewed at the chamber of commerce yesterday by Hal Patton, Salem native of 60 years standing.

He told how merchants contributed from 50 cents to a dollar each to have main streets sprinkled, and how those who were too "tight" to pay this sum were in the limelight because the space in front of their stores were left unsprinkled.

The early fire department, hand drawn and with two or three men constituting the department; house-to-house selling of the baker; and the shock that chilled women of an audience at the old opera house when an audacious actress appeared in long pantaloons—these were among memories recalled. Patton told of organization of the first chamber of commerce many years ago, when two Chinese were taken in to boost the membership, which cost the merchant but 50 cents a month. Annual election of officers of the chamber will come next Monday noon.

REMEMBERING WAR DEAD

Notwithstanding the unsettled political situation of his country and the added burden it places on his shoulders, President Paul Von Hindenburg, of Germany, still finds time to remember his war-time comrades. Here the 85-year-old soldier-statesman is shown as he paused to make a contribution to the fund for the upkeep of the graves of Germany's war dead as he entered the Garrison Church in Berlin for services.

The state highway commission meeting at Portland tomorrow was scheduled during the annual meeting of county commissioners and county judges, which means there will be many delegations there. In addition, considerable federal highway work will be laid. Hal Hoss and Leslie Scott both have addressed the commissioners on highway matters.

It looks like we will have to call a special session to call off this cold spell. Monday was forward to with great relief as was then we were informed the spell would be broken, but Monday came and still little noticeable change. In the meantime sickness and frozen radiators continued to increase in large numbers.

Well, the predictions of this column for several weeks was finally borne out yesterday when Governor Meier issued the proclamation declaring a special session the first week in January, for a two-fold purpose, tax raising measures and unemployment relief. The legislators will have a busy five days if they complete that task.

That session is just three weeks from today. The night before there will be a general caucus at the Marion hotel in Salem, while Sunday night it is expected there will be a get-together in Portland before they come to the state capital. It was further understood the Multnomah county delegation will hold its session in Portland next Monday night.

The best information available indicates this will be the ninth special session since Oregon's admission to the union, two of them held before that. The last one was in 1921, the one prior in 1920, others in 1909, 1903, 1898 and in 1886. The other two were held in 1850 and 1852.

While no tax measure has yet been drafted, it was believed a general sales tax modeled somewhat after that of Mississippi's new tax law, now in operation for six months, would be considered. Comment from Mississippi business firms and organizations stated that when it was first proposed there, most people were opposed, but now there is little opposition.

The special session likewise means an extra week of legislators at Salem, it means organization will be perfected by the time the regular one takes up January 9. It means the governor will deliver a short message at the extra meeting and his regular one at the one a week later. It was believed the governor would not directly recommend any particular tax.

Ralph Watson, political editor of the Oregon Journal, was here yesterday looking for a place to "park the body" during the legislature. He said both he and Larry Smith, who covered the session two years ago, would be down here.

NEWBERG SPAULDING PLANT REFINANCED

$275,000 Debt Funded by Bond Issues; Stock Control Trusteed

Funding of the outstanding debt of the Spaulding Pulp & Paper company at Newberg has recently been announced and re-collateralization for the mill avoided. While immediate reopening of the mill is not contemplated, its officers are convinced that the new financial set-up and a reasonably profitable market will permit the mill to operate satisfactorily.

Under the debt funding plan, current liabilities of $275,000 have been transferred for a bond issue of $350,000 which is to be divided into two series of bonds, equally secured by a first mortgage. One series of $250,000, however, will pay interest of six per cent annually only out of mill income. Another series of $100,000 will pay six per cent annually from issuance. Of this series, $50,000 has been sold to stockholders of the company and a certain few of the creditors, 50 per cent of the sale being for cash, the remainder on or before 18 months.

The cash and funded liabilities clear up the company's obligations and leave some money for working capital.

More than 60 per cent of the $768,000 outstanding capital stock has been trusted to seven directors who agree to vote as a unit and thus to control the company.

Committee of trustees now in charge of the company is: Fentress Hill, chairman; O. M. Allison, secretary; C. K. Spaulding, E. Fred Emery, J. C. Compton, R. Moore, H. R. Crawford, H. B. Van Duzer, R. V. Woodin. Mr. Compton has been elected president; Mr. Emery is vice president, and Mr. Allison is treasurer in addition to being secretary. Company directorate is composed of the seven trustees first named.

Plant and equipment of the mill were carried on the company's books at $867,850 at the end of 1931. Thus stockholders feel their equity of value once the pulp market turns up.

Tuition Refunds Running Back to 1927 Are Sought

Search of the records on high school tuition back to 1927 was made at the courthouse Monday by Portland attorneys who indicated they might shortly start suit to recover interest charges paid during the years 1927 to 1931 inclusive. On tuition taxes paid this year the county collected no tax for that portion of the tuition charges represented by high school's interest on their investments.

The state supreme court ruled such charges illegal in an opinion given in September. The total for the county amounted to about $15,000. Attorneys estimated that at least $50,000 was represented in interest charges in the payments already made but local attorneys were doubtful if the moneys could be recovered by suit where taxes had been paid without protest.

These community clubs are more attentive than many Salem audiences, yet they are better informed generally than similar groups in cities. The members of these clubs read a lot and think a lot—but in the city we always seem too busy. It should be a pleasure to talk to them.

The report showed 413 arrests in the general law enforcement division of the state police department, with fines of $8863.88.

Christmas Party Plans for Legion Start This Week

Tentative plans for the joint American Legion and auxiliary Christmas party meeting to be held here next week will be outlined at a meeting this week of the entertainment committee, Chairman J. T. Delaney announced last night. He expects to have the plans completed by the first of next week.

This party, an annual affair, probably will be in two sections, one in the afternoon for children of legion families, the other at night for legionnaires and auxiliary members.

NORTHWEST STATES PONDER SALES TAX

Conference Proposed; Plan Is Declared Successful In Mississippi

The states of Idaho and Washington, as well as Oregon, are considering a sales tax, according to information received here Monday by the state tax commissioner. In a letter written by L. F. Parsons, secretary of the Idaho chamber of commerce, Governor Ross, of Idaho, was quoted as favorable to a conference of representatives of the three commonwealths to be held in Portland before the year ends.

Special consideration of the Mississippi plan of sales tax is being given, both here and in Idaho. It was learned. Reports from there indicate general satisfaction after the act has been in force for six months. Opposition to a sales tax is anticipated in all three north-west states.

The reaction of the Mississippi sales tax was indicated in the information from the Idaho chamber of commerce. Letters from two large business firms, one bank and from the Mississippi farm bureau federation were enclosed. Excerpts from them follow:

The Mississippi farm bureau federation: "Public was at first probably against the passing of this law. However, we are quite sure that the majority of the public is in favor of it since it has been given a fair trial and it is true that a number of leaders, who were bitterly opposed to its passage, are now strongly in favor of this law. It has produced more than estimated and contributed more to the balancing of the state budget than any other one item."

Hancock county Bank: "It has not worked a hardship on the merchants as they thought it would. About 90 per cent of the people on the left coast of Mississippi were bitterly opposed to the tax, but since it went into effect there is practically no opposition and it is working so smoothly and efficiently that all seem to be pleased. As regards complaints from laborers and farmers, we have heard practically none."
