1933 Almanac is Offered Public by Phone Company
The 1933 telephone almanac has been received and copies are ready for distribution free at the telephone office, according to Mr. H. V. Collins, manager for the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph company here. The booklet for the new year is said to be one of the most interesting ever prepared.

The telephone almanac is published annually by the American Telephone and Telegraph company. In typical almanac style it contains data on historical subjects, listing the anniversary of some important event for virtually every day of the year.

No More Deputies To be Appointed Burk Announces
A. C. Burk, newly elected sheriff who takes office here January 2, announced yesterday that he would name no additional deputies until he has held office some time and might not make any additional changes in the personnel of his office. Burk has already announced that Newell Williams would be chief deputy sheriff and A. M. Dalrymple would be deputy in charge of tax collections. Burk said additional appointments or removals would depend upon how well present deputies discharged their duties after he took office.

CARD OF THANKS
We wish to thank our friends and neighbors for their kindness and sympathy during the illness and death of our wife and mother, Byron Longcor, Mrs. Carrie Phillips.

A lot of sales tax suggestions were heard in the offices of the Oregon tax commission yesterday. With two Idaho representatives and one from Washington here discussing such proposals, the air was so full of GOVERNOR JULIUS L. MEIER is working on his message to the special session of the legislature, which convenes next Tuesday, and expects to put the finishing touches on it today. It was reported the message would be available for newspapers Friday or Saturday, but not to be released until delivered. The message, it was understood, would be a short one.

There has been so much activity around the capitol this week that one could almost assume that the legislature was already in session. While few legislators have been seen so far, it was thought that before the end of the week there would be quite a number around the rail.

And it won't be long now before the "railbirds" will take charge of the lobby on the second floor, and in so doing prove something of a handicap to newsmen who will be forced to make various corners their headquarters. There should be chairs put around for them so they wouldn't sit on the new desks.

And now for the seating arrangement of the house. Looking from the speakers' stand, which no doubt will be occupied by Earl Snell and reading from left to right and noting the middle aisle, the representatives will be seated as follows:

First row—Semon, Horan, Sailer, Miller, Eckley, Allen—aisle—Snedegar, Dammasch, Loneran, Beckman, Delch and Wells. Second row—Lang, Oakes, East, Scott, Kelly, Day—aisle—Gordon, Keasey, Graham, Pagot, Hall and Lewis. Third row—Myers, Christian, Price, Ryan, Bolton, Winslow—aisle—Walker, Huntington, Lynch, Staples, Hilton and Dickson. Fourth row—McAlister, Johnson, Weatherford, Childs, Ducrest, McPhillips—aisle—Hill, McCornack, Stockdale, Herron, Bennett and McCloskey. Last row—Cooter, Oleen, Herman, Judd, Clarke, Nichols—aisle—Gouley, Paulus, Abrams, Mrs. Martin, Turner and Snell.

The seating arrangement in the senate was given several days ago. It is observed that this year there will also be two women in the assembly, but instead of two in the house as usual, will be one in the senate. Mrs. Hannah Martin of Marion county in the house and Mrs. Dorothy Lee of Multnomah county in the senate.

According to press dispatches, instead of prosperity being around the corner, it appears now that technocracy is just around the corner. It was declared that technocracy was one of the most important factors for the restoration of prosperity. If that's the case, take our order now for a package or quart, however it comes. The quart sounds more understandable.

Dozens of students are living on a meal a day, it was made known in a news dispatch from Pennsylvania. Gosh, if the legislature does what the Marion county tax equalization league asks of it, a lot of state employees will be living on less than a meal a day—and a lot more people too, some opine.

Here's a warning to such tax fans as Jerrold Owen, Al Lindbeck, Sheldon Sackett et al. A former national tennis champion yesterday committed suicide by leaping from his penthouse atop a five story building. He got so used to leaping after his case, he thought nothing of a few more stories.

APPRECIATION FOR CARSON IS VOICED
District Attorney John H. Carson was yesterday presented by the Marion county grand jury a testimonial of appreciation "For splendid services you have rendered as district attorney." The appreciation continues: "We have been in session for more than 14 months, and have had many important matters brought to our attention for consideration. In your labors you have been untiring in presenting the evidence to us. At all times you have conducted the investigations with uniform fairness and impartiality, and at no time have you attempted to influence our action in matters before us for consideration. "We commend you for your extreme fairness to all parties concerned, and for your desire to extend the same courtesy to all, regardless of station in life. You have spent 12 years in the office of district attorney, and it is our desire to compliment you for the excellent services you have rendered, and for your desire to continue success in your chosen profession."

But some serious minded men attended the tri-state session yesterday. L. F. Parsons, secretary of the Idaho chamber of commerce, Benton district commissioner of finance of Idaho and George F. Yantis, scheduled to be speaker of the house in Washington were in session. They exchanged condolences with each other over the tax problems, and it appeared Washington had the worst situation to face of any of them, then Oregon and lastly Idaho.

Yantis, an attorney of Olympia and a very fine fellow, was not a stranger to several people here. Your correspondent and his editor both are well acquainted with him. Yantis was not previously slated for the speakership since he is a democrat, but with Washington's legislature being two to one democratic for the first time in a century, he now comes to the fore.

YIELD TAX PLANNED FOR LUMBER RELIEF
Provision for a so-called yield tax, based upon a percentage of the gross stumpage value of the forest product at the time it is removed from the soil, will be considered by the 1933 legislature.

The proposed measure is said to have the support of the forest committee of the Portland chamber of commerce and many other organizations. The method of taxation proposed by the sponsors of the bill automatically would measure the producing capacity and encourage and stimulate and private ownership of timber tracts, officials declared.

Taxation experts have pointed out that one of the glaring faults in the present ad valorem tax system is that it affects timber land as if it were a crop. This crop has been taxed year after year and has resulted in such an accumulation of overhead charges that the industry has reached a point where the chances of a profit virtually have disappeared.

Brush Collegers Enjoy Numbers by Pupils of School
BRUSH COLLEGE, Dec. 28 — An interesting Christmas program was sponsored by the Brush College school at the recent meeting of the Brush College community club. A Christmas play "Everywhere, everywhere it's Christmas tonight," was given by the school. The play showed Christmas events in several lands. A tableau of the manger scene provided a fitting ending to the play. Mrs. A. E. Utley was accompanist for carols. Pupils of the Brush College school met at the school house Friday morning and enjoyed exchanging Christmas gifts. Miss Ruth Bennett, teacher of the primary room at Brush College school, was unable to teach last week because of a severe case of flu. Mrs. Mary Sehon, principal, taught Miss Bennett's classes in her absence.

NEWS PRODUCTION DEPICTED, ROTARY

Members of the Statesman staff presented the program at Rotary club Wednesday noon, making it a "vocational" feature. R. J. Hendricks, editor emeritus, sketched the history of early Oregon newspapers. C. A. Sprague, present editor, introduced Miss Genevieve Morgan who explained the writing and handling of news matter; Ralph Kletting, advertising manager, who discussed the advertising side of the newspaper; Ed Donnelly, shop foreman, who took his hearers through the mechanical department in newspaper production; and Gus Hixson, circulation manager, who told how newspapers are distributed to the public. Ronald Christmas of the bindery department, sang two numbers which were well received. Carlo Abrams, chairman of the vocational committee of the club arranged the program. An exhibit showed a page form of type, its page matrix, the stereotype cast of the page, and the finished product. Side by side with it was Volume 1 of The Statesman, as printed by A. Bush, the founder, in 1851. The volume is owned by his son A. N. Bush and is kept in the vault of the Ladd and Bush bank.

GIVE YULE PAGEANT
UNION, Dec. 28 — The young people of the Union church presented the Christmas pageant, "The Star Shines" Christmas night. A cast of 24 actors portrayed the Christmas story. Miss Phyllis Koenig coached the play.

ROBERT S. EAKIN FUNERAL IS TODAY
Harold E. Eakin of Salem and Gertrude Eakin of Chehalis left last night for LaGrande, where they were summoned by message early yesterday that their brother, Robert S. Eakin, city attorney at LaGrande, had died suddenly. Funeral services for the brother will be held at LaGrande today. Robert S. Eakin was well known in Salem. He was graduated from Willamette university in 1909, and from the law school two years later. He worked for a time in the office of the state board of control. He resigned to engage in law practice in LaGrande with the late Judge Thomas M. Crawford. He was born in Union, Ore., December 4, 1885, and 1924 was married to Netta M. Kiddie, sister of Fred E. Kiddie. Besides the widow, two sons, Robert and Lawrence, survive. Mr. Eakin was a past grand master of the A. F. and A. M. lodge of Oregon and during the 20 years he spent in LaGrande, became a leader in community affairs.
