HAMBURGER TRIAL LURE TO WAIF DOG

PORTLAND, Ore., Jan. 10.—(AP)—The court was engaged in the solemn trial of a man charged with selling adulterated hamburger when into the chamber casually walked a dog, seemingly of an origin as varied as that of the hamburger being discussed. Seriously, as benefitted his surroundings, the intruder surveyed the spectators and attachés. Perhaps the voice of District Judge George N. Woodley was particularly pleasing to the pup. Or maybe the speaking of the word "hamburger" was an irresistible lure.

A committee of 25 went inside and appeared before a joint session of the senate and assembly. Walter Lambert, San Francisco, committee spokesman, presented a bill embodying relief demands, which was read by the assembly. Lambert then went outside the hall and called for an immediate answer on how it would be handled. Jeff Goodman, of San Francisco, read a list of 11 demands of the unemployed, ranging from an outright gift of $50 to each man to immediate pardons for Thomas J. Mooney and Warren K. Billings.

TRIAL OF COUSINS ON AT VANCOUVER

VANCOUVER, Wash., Jan. 10.—(AP)—The trial of Jesse Cousins, 48, Proebisil, Wash., farmer charged with first degree murder in connection with the fatal shooting September 23 of Ernest R. Vlasich of Tacoma, federal prohibition agent, moved rapidly today after nearly a day and a half had been consumed in selecting a jury. What was considered important testimony was offered by Peck Sowdrows of Chehalis, Wash., who said he was with Vlasich September 13 when the Cousins place was raided. At that time Sowdrows testified, Vlasich saw Louis Cousins, brother of the man being tried, but did not see Jesse. Vlasich knew Louis, Sowdrows said, but not Jesse. Police had quoted Vlasich as saying in the hospital that he and Ballard Turner, fellow federal agent who also shot in the September 23 raid who died before reaching the hospital, had been shot by Louis' brother. Louis Cousins, called by the state testified only that his brother had operated a still on their place.

ELKS' BUILDING IN ALBANY HAS BLAZE

ALBANY, Ore., Jan. 10.—(AP)—One of the most disastrous fires in this city history today destroyed the Albany Elks temple and most of the contents of three stores on the lower floor, causing aggregate damage estimated at more than $100,000. The fire started in the rear of a drug store, firemen said, and spread through two other stores on the first floor to the second floor. Firemen said origin of the blaze was undetermined. The Corvallis fire department was called upon for assistance, but before the flames could be brought under control all equipment and furnishings of the lodge hall were destroyed and fixtures and supplies of the lower floor stores were badly damaged. The fire crept from the drug store up the wall between the Elks building and an adjoining structure which was but slightly damaged. The flames spread rapidly over the top of the lodge rooms after reaching the roof. The Williamette Valley Veterinaria association will hold its annual meeting at the chamber of commerce here today, followed on Thursday by a convention of the State Fox Breeders association and the music committee of the Marion County Federation of Community clubs.
