

HOUSE PASSES 11 MEASURES IN DAY

Cougar, Wolf Bounties are Restored; Divorce Bill Back to Committee

The lower house yesterday spent more hours in session than it has any day of the regular session with the result that nine house bills and two senate bills had been passed by the time the day ended.

and cougar" bill went through readily with Nichol making a sturdy plea for the resumption of $20 bounties paid private hunters of cougars for each one killed and $30 paid for wolves. Nichols contended the full-time hunters of the game commission killed only 17 cougars last year compared with nearly 300 obtained under the bounty system. He said cougars killed 12,500 deer annually in Oregon.

Two measures slightly changing legal practice in the state, introduced by Representative Paulus of this county, went through without opposition.

A bill by Representative McCloskey of Coos county changing the date slightly for fishing in the Coquille river went through readily.

The house referred to the ways and means committee a bill to reduce fees in divorce actions, it being thought the reduction might be inadvertent in view of the state's need of revenue.

New Claim List Filed in Bank of Stayton Cleanup

Total claims now reach $213,197.60 and in the savings, $122,501.32.

Power Hearings To be Tuesday

A public hearing will be held Tuesday night by the joint railroads and utilities committee of the senate and house for the purpose of considering two bills having to do with hydro-electric development.

One of these measures was introduced by Representative Lewis while the other is known as the state grange bill.
