Bearcats Look Faster but Lose to Union Oil 33 to 29

GIFT SHOTS AID OILERS TO WIN

Willamette Rallies, Takes Big Lead Second Half; Defense Improves

Demonstrating that they have improved both on offense and defense in the last two weeks, the Willamette Bearcats held the excollegians of Union Oil company to a 33 to 29 score in a bitterly contested basketball game on Willamette's floor Saturday night.

Unerring accuracy at the gift line was the factor which gave Union Oil the victory, Vern Harrington's proteges sinking 13 out of 15 tries there. The Bearcats, though not as accurate in shooting as is their wont because of too much "cramming" in the past week, worked their plays better and outscored the visitors in the matter of field goals. Union Oil climbed to a 16 to 11 lead at half time, but early in the second half, with Spec Keene's rangiest combination on the floor, the Bearcats staged a speedy rally and soon had a substantial lead. The role played by Jack Connors in this attack was an eye-opener to the fans.

Near the close the oilmen rallied right back, but principally from the foul line. "Chief" Mc-Lean, back in Portland after a semester at Southern Oregon Normal, tossed in a long one that really decided the contest.

As evidence of Willamette's improvement on offense, Ralph Cairney, the visitors' ace scorer in the first game, was held to one field goal. Vincent Dolp proved to be the hard man to corral this time. as he piled up a high point total

Field goals were evenly divided among six Bearcats, each getting

Now, about this eight-inch golf cup-well, what do you think? Gene Sarazen suggested it, and from many angles his argument sounds convincing.

Sarazen's point is not so much o eliminate the putts that trickle past or over the 4 1/4 inch cup (we never supposed it was that big), as to place a bigger premium on what he calls the "second shot," which to him and the other experts is the approach shot. Not all who attempt to play golf, identify the second shot with the idea of getting on the green.

The boys who flirt with par all the time, put those second shots up to within 9 or 12 feet from the cup a big share of the time, and could sink them with one putt, he figures, in an eight-inch cup. As it is, they usually take two putts, being not much better off than the fellow who approaches to within 25 feet. So, says Gene, there is not the premium there ought to be on deadly ap-

The eight-inch cup, says Gene, would make birdies much more feasible provided these second shots were accurate to the degree that the expert tries to make them accurate; and that would put more punch in the game, make it more spectacular. For the duffer, he doesn't predict much benefft, contrary to what most golfers would think. There's something in his point of view : putting is not difficult to learn, the only trouble being that the average duffer refuses to learn it by constant practice, which is about the only way to acquire it. On the contrary, one may practice approach shots the wrong way for years and get no better steadily.

But-did you know that the large cup was tried out in an informal tournament on the Salem Golf club course nearly a. year ago, and the general ver-dict that followed, was that neither the duffers nor the bet-The consensm. - that, after was 23 to 17 for Linfield.

That Lyness fills the bill is evidenced by the fact that he has at least twice defeated Jones, the more recent occasion being just a few weeks ago in Bellingham. The other resulted in the belt, now held by Pete, being transferred from Jones' slender waistline to the slightly more substantial one of Lyness. Jones demonstrated last Tues-
