A DISTINGUISHED ANGLER IN ACTION

The Capitol Battlefront

THE press gallery has been waiting for a speech from Representative Lang from Baker county, self-avowed friend of the forgotten man. Mr. Lang yesterday volunteered the information that there would be no speech; he had not brought his notes to Salem! Even if he had them, he would not speak, Lang said for he had promised his constituents to make no addresses and to introduce no bills. Instead his policy is to consider carefully all bills offered and to use his best judgment upon them. Repeat of unneeded legislation is one of his objectives. Mr. Lang, now 71, has been ill for a number of days since arriving in Salem but is better now and to exercise his joints makes it a point to climb the stairs daily although the chore is a bit harder than it was before he was ill.

Governor and Mrs. Meier have received an elaborately engraved invitation from the inauguration committee at Washington inviting them and their "aides and staff" to be present at the big affair March 4. Elegant paper is used; the names of the governor and his wife are engraved in the same style of writing as the invitation indicating that each bid is a separate matter. Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Garner join in the invitation made through Admiral Grayson, chairman of the inauguration committee, and in turn through his assistant, in charge of inviting governors. Legislative duties may prevent the governor's attendance; otherwise he would probably be among the other forgotten men at Washington for while he will receive attention because of Governor Roosevelt's interest in all state executives he can hardly rank as a Roosevelt partisan, having spoken several times for Hoover in the heated campaign of last fall.

The most entertaining conversationalist in Oregon politics is W. A. Delzell. Just now he is bidding his time and doing eight hours work as a member of the state industrial accident force but happier days are surely ahead for so deserving a democrat. Report persists that he will in due time be master of the stamps, postal cards and letter carriers in the Salem postoffice. Delzell enlivened the situation in Oregon politics two years ago by initiating "Chick" Sales and producing a much read dissertation on current improvements at the capitol. Then he sought nomination on the democratic ticket for congress in the first district and was surprised and chagrined when he lost out by a handful of votes.

For 35 years Hogg Brothers have operated a large furniture store at Oregon City and have been established at Tillamook several years.

The assistant manager for the Salem store is William Mangum. Carl Hogg expects to move his family here from Oregon City in the near future.

Syndicalism Law Repeal is Given Divided Report

The senate judiciary committee late yesterday decided to report out the bill to repeal the state criminal syndicalism law with a divided report. A majority of the members of the committee voted for repeal of the act. Members of the American Legion appeared before the committee and defended the law. The opposition argued that the syndicalism act was a war measure, and there was no reason why it should be retained on the statute books in time of peace.

LIMITING VOTE TO TAXPAYER DOWNED

Two measures which would limit the voting on tax levies and bond issues to property owners, were defeated in the senate Thursday following a brief debate. The measures previously were passed in the house, but were received in the senate on a divided report.

Senator Chinnock, chairman of the taxation and revenue committee, declared that the bills were not sound and if approved, would deprive thousands of taxpayers from voting on tax and bond proposals. He referred particularly to persons who pay taxes on intangible, income, motor vehicles and gasoline.

Senators Zimmerman and Staples favored the bills. Staples declared that the time had arrived when some drastic action should be taken to prevent future bond issues and other unnecessary state and county obligations.

COLUMBIA ROUTE BEST ILLUMINATED

Oregon's own Columbia river gorge is the most adequately lighted air route in the world, Homer J. Merchant, northwest traffic manager for United Airlines, told members of Lions club yesterday noon while showing moving pictures of a passenger flight from Oakland, Calif., to New York City.

Among the additions to be made soon in flying equipment, he said, is a mechanical pilot that will keep a plane on a course determined by the human pilot while the latter devotes his time to checking his navigation. A fleet of higher speed, low-winged monoplanes with twin engines will soon be placed in service, he announced. The old passenger planes may be remodelled for express service.

Merchant stressed pilot requirements maintained by United Airlines. Each pilot every 30 days undergoes a thorough physical examination and also must fly a plane at least one hour "under the hood", that is, fly by instrument. Salaries of pilots range from $500 to $800 per month. For every pilot in the air, the company has four ground experts.

This winter United Airlines is operating its mail schedule 97 per cent efficient, Merchant reported.

The lecture and movies were shown to a large crowd of young men at Fraternis club and to approximately 100 persons at Salem airport last night.

Yeggs Find Safe Unlocked, Steal $200 From Store

Breaking a show window to gain access to the Doughton-Sherwin hardware store, 286 North Commercial street, at 8:15 a. m. yesterday, two yeggs stole approximately $200 and papers of little value to them, from an unlocked safe. I. M. Doughton, one of the proprietors, said the safe was used more for fire protection than a strong box. Little money ordinarily had been kept there.

Police said but slight clues were left by the yeggs. H. Wells, restaurant cook en route to work, reported hearing the glass shatter and seeing two men running away from the scene. They headed toward the river, he said.

STARRED IN THRILLING SEA DRAMA

A photo of the S.S. American Merchant which wrote a new chapter in the story of sea gallantry when its gallant crew battled a storm-whipped sea to rescue 22 sailors from the sinking British freighter Hunter City, 1,676 miles east of New York. The captain and three men of the doomed ship were washed overboard and drowned in the raging gale before the American Merchant reached the scene of the disaster. Last is Captain Giles C. Steadman of the rescue ship. The courage and seamanship played a prominent part.
