Interesting Facts

Viewing the legislature from the outside and then looking as we go by hotels late at night and early in the morning it is no wonder to us that some of the legislators do not feel much like business as usual during the day. Night parties sure do give head aches.

J. G. Marr, Salem groceryman was approached the other day by a man who wanted to split some wood for his dinner. Marr gave him the wood. Just the man finished his work a salesman came in and invited Mr. Marr to go to dinner with him. Marr, who is Scotch, had a happy thought. He said to the salesman, "I'm pretty busy now and it is hard for me to leave. You take this man in my place."

If you want to attend church today we refer you to Saturday's Statesman. Thirty-six notices of different church services will be found there.

Sixty-seven spikes were pulled from the rails over which President Hoover traveled near Athens, Ohio, October 30. Near St. Paul another attempt to wreck the president's train was frustrated and after the shooting of a railroad guard in Nebraska the train was prevented and 26 sticks of dynamite were found.

President-elect Roosevelt takes office in just four weeks from yesterday.

Friday's not the only day that you can find good advertising in the Statesman. Turn to the back page of today's paper. Also on the society page.

Mr. and Mrs. Waldo Marsters celebrate their birthdays on the same Saturday evening. Mr. Marsters is in the book-keeping department of the Ladd & Bush bank.

Kenneth Thompson, local attorney found a large sign on his car Saturday evening reading "For Sale by Assignee". Perhaps some other attorneys were drumming for business.
