

'THIRTEEN WOMEN' SHOWS AT CAPITOL

Irene Dunne and Ricardo Cortez Stars in Film Of Necromancy

Are we creatures of free will or are our actions determined by stellar or planetary or other mysterious forces quite beyond our control?

Some who see "Thirteen Women" at the Capitol theatre today will hold that astrology, fortune telling and all manner of oracular claims have been dealt a death blow.

Others will interpret the events in this photodrama as conclusively proving the truth of astrology, clairvoyance or numerology.

Who is right? Down the long centuries have trudged innumerable souls who have held that the Creator of the universe never draws aside the curtain of the future.

And side by side with them have trudged those who believed completely in signs and portents, and that their futures, written in the stars before they even were born, could be ascertained through the mysterious "sciences" of astrology, clairvoyance or numerology.

"Thirteen Women," it is said, may yet be the storm center of a controversy than have raged around any single screen play in the past several years.

Irene Dunne, Ricardo Cortez, Myrna Loy, Mary Duncan and Florence Eldredge form the nucleus of a remarkable cast.

Spencer Tracy, Bette Davis and Arthur Byron who will be seen in the screen version of the sensational story written by Sing Sing's famous Warden Lewis E. Lawes. It opens at the Elsinore theatre Sunday for a three day engagement.

Grand Theatre Brings Tracy Out of Hard-Boiled Role, With Marion Nixon

Distinctly American in theme, yet marking a radical departure from American methods of treatment, "Face in the Sky," which comes to the Grand theatre today, promises to be one of the most interesting screen offerings since the coming of talking pictures. A notable trio of film favorites, Spencer Tracy, Marion Nixon and Stuart Erwin, have the leading roles, and the direction is by Harry Lachman.

The plot concerns a traveling sign-painter, always dreaming of his glorious future. He meets a little country girl who is likewise a dreamer. With the aid of his clumsy helper, the painter assists her in escaping from her drab existence on a Vermont farm, only to fall in love with her. They are separated when the farmer overtakes them, but meet again under unique circumstances in New York City.

In the handling of the story, Lachman is said to demonstrate to American audiences the ability that has made him a sensation in European directorial circles. One of the few American painters to be awarded the distinction of the Legion of Honor by the French government for his work, Lachman brings a keen sense of artistry to his screen efforts.

Tracy, hitherto famous for his "hard-boiled" portrayals in pictures, is cast in an entirely different type of role. Miss Nixon is cast as the New England girl whose dreams lead her far beyond the confines of the farm and whose dainty features become the "face in the sky." Erwin here returns to the "dumb" roles that originally made him famous.

Sam Hardy, Sarah Padden, Frank McGlynn, Jr. and Russell Simpson head the supporting cast. Myles Connolly wrote the original story, the first to deal with the traveling fraternity of sign-painters, and Humphrey Pearson is credited with the screen play.

MUSEUM AT O. S. C. TO BE OPEN TODAY

Fence Rail Made by Lincoln On Display, Also Rare Firearms Collection

Upon request of Corvallis business men who cannot visit the state college museum during week days, but who wish to be present on Lincoln's birthday when they can see a fence rail made by the Great Emancipator, the museum will be open from 2 to 4 o'clock this afternoon.

The rail was obtained by Dr. John M. Bloss, second president of the Oregon State Agricultural college who visited the Illinois home of the Lincoln especially for that purpose.

Besides the great age of the fence rail and its historic value, it is a reminder of the possibilities open to every honest American boy making the most of his opportunities.

The rail also recalls the life-long friendship of President Lincoln and "Jerry" Clark, the latter of whom came west and helped to establish Alsea valley upon the map of Oregon, and endeavored to persuade Lincoln to accept the appointment as territorial governor of Oregon, while Mrs. Lincoln with the keenness of seeing presidential possibility in her great husband, succeeded in dissuading him. It is a question as to what would have been the influence upon American history had Lincoln not heeded his wife's advice.

Yet the historic fence rail is but one of the thousands of valuable specimens in the college museum recently housed in the old armory building, with the fire arms in the veterans' quarters of Memorial Union building. Citizens of Salem will be interested in the rare collection of firearms donated by Donegan Wiggins and the late Charles Lisle of Salem.

You wouldn't be seen in one. You know better. You don't want to draw the attention—that kind of attention—from your friends or from anyone else.
