

Willamette Wins N. W. Hoop Title; Beats Pacific 43-30

KLOOSTRA STAR IN FINAL GAME

Outcome is Never in Doubt; "Green" Bearcat Squad To Lose Only One

FOREST GROVE, Ore., Feb. 21 (AP)—Willamette university won the mythical northwest conference basketball championship here today, defeating Pacific university 43 to 30, in the final game of the season. The Bearcats dropped one game, to Whitman, but have played more contests than the Missionaries.

The conference officials last Christmas decided to omit the basketball championship for this season, but all honors go to Willamette. The Bearcats beat the Badgers all the way, holding a 23 to 16 margin at halftime. Kloostra, forward, starred for Willamette and Jim Corrigan, center, for Pacific.

Lineups: Willamette: Kloostra 18, Lemmon 11, Rieke 2, Kaiser 5, Hartley 5, Burdette 4, Frantz 3; Pacific: Kloostra 18, Lemmon 11, Rieke 2, Kaiser 5, Hartley 5, Burdette 4, Frantz 3; Pacific: Kloostra 18, Lemmon 11, Rieke 2, Kaiser 5, Hartley 5, Burdette 4, Frantz 3.

Referee: Emil Piluso, Portland. Willamette university's fourth Northwest conference basketball championship in seven years was brought home from Forest Grove Tuesday night by Coach "Spec" Keene, his squad of hoopers and several truck-loads of celebrating students.

Willamette is now "one up" on Whitman in the distribution of basketball championships, though this year's title is unofficial. Each season since 1927 Willamette or Whitman has won and the other has been in second place. Last year Linfield was second on percentage but its standing was not recognized as the Wildcats did not play Whitman.

Success of the Willamette basketball team this year was something of a surprise, for Coach Keene started the season without any of last year's "regulars." Kaiser and Rieke were near-regulars, and Kloostra who had been a member of the starting combination a year ago, returned in mid-season.

A second unusual circumstance about the 1933 squad was that right up to the last conference game, Coach Keene was never certain of his starting lineup, never picked five "regulars." By the end of the season he had about ten men, all of fairly equal ability, and juggled them frequently in every game, depending on who was "on." Ability of any one of several combinations thus available, to work together on the floor, was the remarkable factor that resulted in a championship.

At least two more games, with Southern Oregon Normal at Ashland and Medford this weekend, remain on the Bearcat schedule. The outcome will practically settle the collegiate championship of Oregon leaving out of consideration Oregon State college.

The future of basketball at Willamette appears particularly bright, as only one member of this year's squad, Marshall Hartley, will graduate in June.

James J. Corbett

By BURNLEY

World's Heavyweight Champion—1892-1897.

"GENTLEMAN JIM"

James J. Corbett
"HE WAS ONE OF THE FINEST PERSONALITIES OF MODERN SPORT HISTORY"

THE BOXING WORLD PAYS TRIBUTE TO HIS PASSING...

JAMES J. CORBETT, after long years of retirement from the ring, has entered the Valhalla of sportsdom, there to join the great champions of the past and live anew the glamor of forgotten days.

He leaves behind, in the hearts of millions, the memory of one of the greatest figures in the American sports world. And so today our spotlight travels back over the years, to recall the chief factors in the grand career of a great sportsman.

They called him "Gentleman Jim" when he first came into prominence, preaching a code of fighting that then was deemed ridiculous. In those days, the early nineties, the term "gentleman" was not meant as a compliment. It connoted, rather, a person of dandified airs. Corbett and his brand of scientific boxing were far removed from the stuff that fight champions were made of in those days. A champ, then, was a giant of a man, rough, tough, ready to demonstrate his prodigious strength as the drop of a bottle in a bar-room. Such a man was John L. Sullivan, as nobody dared deny.

What, then, was the anguish of a sporting world that idolized Sullivan, when it learned on September 3, 1892 (the fight was NOT broadcast) that on yesterday "Gentleman Jim" Corbett had toppled the Colossus, by boxing him cleverly and by using not a little of what later came to be known as psychology—together with a powerful left jab.

That anguish turned at first to sneering distaste of the new champion; then, slowly and surely, as the wisdom of the Corbett code began to sink in—to a great love for Jim Corbett that expanded steadily through the years.

Corbett lost the title to Bob Fitzsimmons on March 17, 1897, at Carson City, but by that time his ideals of fighting fairly and scientifically had become firmly entrenched in the American tradition of the ring. As a person, well-mannered bank clerk, Corbett had taken up boxing and fought his way to championship. In that period he laid the foundation for modern methods of training and fighting. Realization of the importance of footwork in the ring, for example, dates from Corbett.

The "Irish Jim" also came nearer winning back his title than any other ex-champion in the heavyweight class. In 1900 at Coney Island, Corbett fought the then champion, Jim Jeffries, and for 23 of the scheduled 25 rounds he had Jeffries beaten, punishing him terrifically. In the twenty-third round Corbett assumed the fight was his and not one had landed. But suddenly one—just one—did land, and Corbett went down and out.

A word about Corbett the man. The writer interviewed him a year or so ago at his charming home at Bayside, Long Island. He met the lovely Mrs. Corbett, and talked with her, and the former champion in this well-kept garden. There was a happy home, if ever there was one. The couple had been married some 35 years. Smiles and good cheer were plentiful. It was the home of a gentleman; a man who loved life, cherished friendships and appreciated peace and beauty.

Lebanon Defeats Independence in Fast Hoop Game

INDEPENDENCE, Feb. 21.—In the fastest game of the season on the home floor, Independence high school was defeated by Lebanon by a score of 26 to 16. The game was close throughout, Lebanon winning in the last few minutes. At the end of the first half the score was 14 to 13 in favor of Independence.

Summary: Independence: H. S. Lebanon: Dunckel 6, RF 11, Campbell McElowney 6, LF 2, Sanders Hanson 2, C 2, Keith Syverson 2, LG 1, Pengran McLaughlin 1, RG 6, Simpson Carey 2, S 2, Culbertson Coon 2, S 2, Utley

On that occasion, however, we disagreed with Spec and told him he would have a better team than he had the year before. Nope, we have no disposition to brag nor to prove that our judgment in the matter was superior to Spec's. You see, we were in a different position; he was the fellow who had to go ahead and make our judgment come true. He knew the possibilities of those boys better than we did, but professionally, he had to keep them a dark secret until they were fulfilled.

What both of us knew, but only one of us could mention, was that whereas in 1932 Spec had a team that couldn't score unless it could smash through a place right under the basket, his 1933 squad was made up of fellows who could smack the open space between the rims from almost anywhere.

Now the Bearcats have a couple more games with S. O. N. S., and if they win one of them, will be champions of Oregon, in collegiate circles, except for Oregon State. Well, how about Williamette or S. O. N. S. playing Oregon State to settle that little matter? Or wait until Oregon State wins the Coast conference title and take in more territory?

The team playing in the preliminaries are coached by Floyd McCann and Clark VanOrsdell and will be playing their first games before local fans. Numbered among the young players will be the sons of Jack Eakin, Jack Hayes, "Pebble" Shaw, R. E. Van Orsdell, and Dr. C. L. Foster.

HUSKIES COME BACK AND WIN

Antoncich Juggles Sphere And Gets Winning Goal In Last 21 Seconds

MOSCOW, Idaho, Feb. 21.—(AP)—The University of Washington basketball team came from behind in the last 21 seconds of play to defeat the University of Idaho, 36 to 35, in their conference basketball game here tonight.

The score stood 35 to 34 for Idaho when P. Antoncich, rangy Washington center, dribbled the ball from mid-court, booted it with his feet, and recovered in time to make a wild but successful throw for the basket to end one of the wildest games seen here in years.

With both teams playing at a terrific pace, Idaho stepped into a quick lead on field goals and free throws by Lacy, guard, and Barrett and Wicks, forwards. With the count 7 to 0, Lee, Washington center, was fouled, and he converted the try for Washington's first count. From that point the Huskies crept steadily forward with Galer and Hanover, forwards, leading the attack. The score at half time was 15 all.

Idaho took the lead again in the second period and held it until Galer's field goal tied the count at 22. Nelson, Idaho guard, dropped another field goal. Thompson, center, converted a free throw on Antoncich's foul, and Lacy scored another field goal to put Idaho ahead, 27 to 22 before Washington started another desperate rally. This netted a single field goal by Cook, guard, before Idaho moved ahead again.

At 31 to 24 for Idaho, Heaman, guard, and Galer and Osting, forwards, dropped three quick field goals to bring Washington to a point behind. Heaman fouled Wicks, and the latter converted. Heaman and Hanover converted to bring the count to 35 to 32 for Idaho. At this point Antoncich stepped in.

The center scored a field goal off the back board with a minute to play, and then pulled his sensational shot to win the game after the tip-off.

Kaplan Too Big, Karasick Too Strong; But Abe Wins When Al Employs Strangle

Abe Kaplan was too big for Al Karasick, and Karasick was too strong for Abe, and Vern Harrington was too conscientious to permit murder right there in the ring with him, so the Abe vs. Al squabble isn't settled yet. But while it lasted, it afforded the biggest crowd since the Jones-Reed championship bout, some entertaining moments. Kaplan won on a foul when Karasick was persistent in his efforts to choke Abe to death.

Kaplan demonstrated that he was no race-horse, but a clever man at that, within the speed limitations imposed by his great bulk. After fruitfully trying to twist Karasick's neck with headlocks, Kaplan resorted to alternately rabbit-punching and sitting on the Russian, and finally pushed his shoulders to the mat for the first fall, in 20 minutes 10 seconds. Karasick bridged on the small of his back for a long time before he finally sank.

Karasick took the second fall in 7:40 by rolling the big boy around with a series of flying mares, also interspersed with rabbit punches. In the third round the Lion seemed convinced it was time to administer some punishment, and he squeezed his knuckles into Kaplan's windpipe at every opportunity. Finally he got Abe over the ropes and choked him some more, and when Harrington pulled him off, the referee decided that was enough.

That a Scandinavian skull is tougher than an Irish one was the principal thing demonstrated in the first bout. Herman Olson deliberately butted Mutt Eddy's head with his own in the second round; they both went down, practically out, but Olson recovered and fell on Eddy to win the fall. Eddy was still groggy when he came back for the third one, and fell easy prey.

WILL AVOID DELAY IN HANDLING SEED

In an effort to help the farmer get seed for sowing as soon as possible, County Commissioner Melson and County Inspector Van Trump have obtained agreement from two Salem seed houses to furnish farmers seed as soon as their applications for seed loans are approved.

While only Harley White and W. J. Lee were visited Monday, Melson says the appeal for this cooperation is to all seed dealers in the county. Such arrangement will enable the farmer to be about his planting some days earlier than would otherwise happen.

A wait is necessary this year because money will come from Minneapolis, instead of Spokane as last year.
