Toll Heavy for Banks in Oregon Last 12 Years
Fatalities in the banking business have been extremely heavy in Oregon the last 12 years, state and national records reveal. June 30, 1921, there were 287 banks in operation in Oregon, 189 being state institutions and 98 national.

Yesterday when reopening began there were only 64 national banks in Oregon and 82 state banks. Of the latter, 60 opened without restrictions, 19 with restrictions and three were closed for reorganization or liquidation. Of the 64 national banks, a number were on a restricted basis yesterday.

Millions of dollars in cash, in secured notes, in liquid securities and in first-mortgages were poured into the state and national banks of Oregon during the last 98 hours, bankers said. The sacrifices of hundreds of shareholders who were insistent their banks reopen will never be fully told, bank examiner said.

Numerous bank owners and officers, when notified of the requirements for reopening of their institutions, pledged their entire resources to guarantee the solvency of their banks.
All banks which reopened without restrictions had their assets charged down to going market values and their capital stock unimpaired.

SILVERTON, March 15—Silvertown people who were rather skeptical as to just what this banking holiday would do to things, smiled broadly Wednesday morning when the Coolidge & McClaine bank doors opened for business. Half the country-side came into Silvertown Wednesday morning to "see, become convinced, and return to their homes" satisfied that things were going on again as in "the good old days."

ing in copper, future quotations were boosted 8-10¢ of a cent a pound. Raw hide futures gained about a cent a pound, and smaller advances were registered in such staples as raw silk, sugar, coffee, cocoa, and crude rubber.
While the pronounced strength of bonds scarcely bespoke incipient inflation for the effect of inflation upon the fixed income securities is academically regarded as adverse, brokers reported that the speculative public was undeniably imbued with the idea of rising staple prices, either through inflation, or a lifting of pressure by the restoration of financial confidence, and the banishment of panic psychology.

Salem Stays in Running by Spectacular Work of Pair of Forwards

But Kelley and Wintermute were the "hottest" they had been all season, and this circumstance pulled Salem's chestnuts out of the fire. Benson scored more freely than was pleasing to Salem fans in the first half, but the two shooting forwards kept Salem ahead; and in the second half the defense tightened, allowing the Portlanders but three field goals. Benson could do nothing from farther away than the foul line, but Weichmann, veteran center, was hard to stop on close-in shots.

Tillamook Recognized As Title Prospect
Tillamook and Silverton waged a nip-and-tuck battle in the first half but the oddly-assorted boys from the cheese metropolis pulled away in the second half to win 38 to 29. The margin was wider than that prior to a neat rally by the Silver Foxes at the end, in which Scott was the outstanding performer.

The combination of two monstrous men, each effective at one end of the court, and three smaller speedy ones, with little Baumgartner right on the ball all the time and scoring from all positions, brought Tillamook into the limelight as one more certain contender for the title.
Little Athens, with but 55 students from which to draw a basketball team, loomed as a threat to the bigger towns when it rolled up a 42 to 18 victory over La Grande. Athens scored 11 points before La Grande collected one. All of Athens' regulars seemed able to connect from any distance, with Geisell, Leland Jenkins and Weber carrying most of the scoring lead.

the public interest is best served by refusing my assent thereto."
The veto also fell on Senator Corbett's bill prohibiting the sale on the Oregon market of certain goods, wares or merchandise manufactured or mined, wholly in part, by convicts or prisoners.
The governor also disapproved Senate Bill 194, by Corbett, relating counties of the responsibility of paying for the care and support of the non-violent insane.
"The effect of this act is to transfer from the various counties to the state the obligation of caring for the non-violent insane where their relatives are not able to do so," the veto message read. The state has no budget allowance and has no levy from which this payment could be made. To approve this act would throw out of balance both the state finances and the county finances.

It took 10 authors two months to write the Paramount-Liberty Magazine all-star story, "The Woman Accused," which is at the Capitol theatre today.

The manuscript of the story started with Rupert Hughes in Hollywood and ended up with Sophie Kerr in Hollywood, meanwhile crossing the continent six times during the 60-day period, and going successively to Vicki Baum, Zane Grey, Nina Delmar, Irvin S. Cobb, Gertrude Atherton, J. P. McEvoy, Ursula Parrott and Polan Banks in various cities throughout the country.

When blonde and peppy Joan Blondell, star of Warner Bros.' "Big City Blues," at the Grand theatre, wants to shed a few pounds, she goes on a three-day diet of skimmed milk and baked potatoes. Although Joan, who is five feet four inches and weighs 115 pounds, is one of the husiest players on the Warner Bros. lot, she finds it necessary to watch the Blondell avoirdupois with a practical eye.
Fannie Hurst knew what she was about when she wrote the story that is now being produced as "Hello, Everybody!" with Kate Smith playing the lead.

MEASLES SUBSIDE GRADUALLY BUT INFLUENZA GAINS
The mild epidemic of measles in Marion county is subsiding, though not as rapidly as the new state department of health bulletin indicates, according to Dr. Vernon A. Douglas, county health officer. The bulletin listed new cases last week at 65, a decrease of 68 over the previous week. A majority of the measles cases are occurring in Salem.
New influenza cases reported in the county last week jumped from 2 to a total of 21. Other communicable disease cases were: Pneumonia seven, and tuberculosis four.
Resolutions commending President Roosevelt for his insistence on broad powers to reduce payments to veterans were sent yesterday by the Marion County Medical association. Agreement to send the resolutions was made by the doctors at a meeting here Monday. Medical men generally have felt that veterans have received too much free service and compensation from the government. Private hospitals have been severely handicapped by the growth of government subsidized veterans' hospitals.

TERROR SUDDENLY SUPPLANTS PEACE

Earthquake no Joke, Finds Son of Mrs. J. A. Mills, Housemother Here

"Twenty seconds is all it takes to turn a peaceful place into one of terror," is the way Harry I. Mills of Beverly Hills, Calif., characterizes an earthquake, in a letter received here Wednesday by his mother, Mrs. J. A. Mills, house mother at Lausanne hall. Mr. Mills is employed at Los Angeles as a pip organist.
"Never again will I hoot when someone mentions an earthquake," he says. "Fortunately I was home when the quake came. We had just sat down to dinner when the most terrific rumbling and shaking came. The lights went out and the dishes danced around the table. The big clock was swaying back and forth toward the table."

Mr. Mills' wife and their son and daughter, grabbed up coats and rushed out of doors, where they saw the automobile in the driveway "rocking back and forth about a foot each direction."
When they returned to the dinner table, "try as we would we couldn't get interested in food and just then the second shock came. It was not as bad as the first but by that time we had begun to realize what a quake really meant so we were more terrified than at the first one. After that there was no more peace in the house that night. Each time a shock would come all would start for the door but by the time we got there it would be over."

Mr. Mills describes the night of terror, in which they got little sleep, continually startled by recurring tremors. Next morning when he went to work he found comparatively few persons at their jobs. Heavy shocks coming that night and Sunday heightened the nervousness of everyone.
Fearful of further quakes Monday while writing the letter, Mr. Mills said he refused to go to his office on the 11th floor.
"Here at the store," he writes, "a lot of cracks developed and on some of the floors lots of plaster fell off but structurally the building withstood it very well." His home, he said, was not damaged.
"The awful uncertainty of the thing is worse than the actual quakes. Not knowing how long it will last or when to expect the next one," he concludes.

5500 LOCAL QUOTA FOR QUAKE RELIEF

The national Red Cross has called upon the Willamette chapter here for a $500 contribution, if possible, to go for relief and rehabilitation in the earthquake-stricken area of southern California.

"We have suffered no disaster of this kind. Many people in Salem will, without doubt, desire to make a contribution to the above-mentioned fund. Anyone desiring to do so may make his contribution to Mr. Harold E. Eakin, vice-president of the First National bank; to Mr. Lynn Smith, cashier of the United States National bank; or to Mr. H. V. Compton, vice president of Ladd & Bush bank. I hope the response will be generous."

EINSTEIN AGAINST HITLER MOVEMENT

NEW YORK, March 15—(AP)—Professor Albert Einstein announced himself as a voluntary exile for the present from Germany when he arrived here today from California.
His announcement was made in a note answering a written question of newspapers.
How long he will remain out of Germany, Einstein's message said he does not know. But he will not put foot on German soil as long as conditions in Germany are as at present.

He sails Saturday for Antwerp, there intending to decide his future course.
"I am no nationalist," he said tonight at his honor attended by some of the foremost American scientists and leaders in finance, education, art and letters.
"The meaning of a people, in my opinion," he went on, "is that it accomplishes something for humanity."
Without mentioning Germany he referred to "the prevailing disease of an exaggerated nationalism."

Yakima Sheriff Kills Escaped Check Larcenist

YAKIMA, Wash., March 15—(AP)—George A. Smith, former Mabton resident, was shot through the head by Thornton Macey, Mabton deputy sheriff, shortly after noon today near Alderdale and died 15 minutes later. Sheriff Lew Evans of Yakima reported tonight after investigating the case.
Smith was arrested near Grandview a month ago on a check larceny charge by Sheriff J. K. McFarland of Prosser, and escaped after receiving permission to drive his car to Prosser.
Macey told Evans that as he fired he stumbled over a sage brush and the bullet struck Smith in the head.

FERRAR ACTIVITIES AROUSE PUBLIC IRE

The activities of Max Ferrar, ringleader in demonstrations of the unemployed, is arousing the ire of some local citizens. It was noted in expressions about the city yesterday. Ferrar is out on bail pending trial for the assault on S. Ellis Purvine in January which resulted in Purvine's suffering a severe stroke of paralysis.

Heading many of the demonstrations, such as that at the Oregon-Washington Water Service company office Tuesday, has been Ferrar, who before his arrest last month claimed he had been sent here from "national headquarters." His latest activity is "organizing" the men on county employment projects to fight for a $3 cash wage instead of 50 cents cash and $1 in groceries.

DALLAS, Attorneys for Charles F. Longacre, 50, held on a statutory charge, the week filed a motion for dismissal of the case on grounds of insufficient evidence. Longacre was arrested last week at his home near Polk station by Sheriff T. B. Hooker.
Complaints filed here Tuesday were: Frank Bell vs. M. H. Gentleman and the First National bank of Independence seeking a judgment for $2500 on a note and foreclosure.
The other complaint was that of the Union Central Life Insurance company vs. Willie E. Carson, et al. The plaintiff seeks a judgment for a total of $6471.79 with interest, and also foreclosure of a mortgage.
