ACCEPT TAX MONEY SAYS COMMISSION

Advises Collectors to Take 1930 and Prior Taxes Sans Penalties

Persons who desire to take advantage of Senate bill 75, providing for the cancellation of penalties and interest on delinquent taxes of 1930 and prior years, will not have to wait until the law becomes effective on June 9, in case the tax collectors accept a suggestion offered by the state tax commission.

Under the proposal outlined by the state tax commission, tenders of these delinquent taxes, without penalty or interest, would be accepted prior to June 9, subject to the issuance of a conditional receipt.

"The question has arisen as to the procedure a tax collector should follow in accepting payments of delinquent taxes of 1930 and prior years, on tenders made prior to June 9," a letter issued by the state tax commission read. "Certainly a taxpayer has the right to pay before that date, but of course will not do so if required to pay penalties and interest which will be cancelled when the law goes into effect.

"We recommend that the tax collectors accept payments of delinquent taxes of 1930 and prior years without attempting to collect penalties or interest, but write or stamp on each receipt therefore a statement substantially as follows:

"'This receipt covers principal amounts only of taxes herein specified. Penalties and interest thereon, as otherwise provided by law, will be subject to collection if the law shall not become effective.'

"Since the installment payment plan provided in the act will not become effective until June 9, payments made prior to that date should cover one half or all of the delinquent taxes of a given year."

Members of the tax commission said the adoption of this plan may bring in a large amount of tax money during the next few weeks which would assist materially in relieving the present unsatisfactory financial condition of many county and local funds.

LISTING VICTIMS FOR SALARY AXE

The state board of control has instructed all state department heads to prepare a complete list of their employes, the salary of each prior to January 1, 1931, and any increases they may have received since that time.

The data will be used by the board of control in computing the April 1 payroll under the new legislative act reducing the salaries and wages of all state officials and employes in amounts ranging from five to 30 per cent.

There are approximately 50 state departments and 3000 employes affected by the salary reduction law.

The information will be compiled by William Einzig, secretary of the board of control, after it is received from the state department heads. Officials estimated that the law would save the taxpayers of the state approximately $1,300,000 during the biennium.

The board of control has authority to adjust the salary and wage schedule in cases where the revised compensation is not in line with the intention of the legislature.

Towne Chemawa Leader — William Towne, scoutmaster of troop 14 at the state school for the deaf, has been selected to lead the Chemawa Indian school, troop eight, also, it was reported yesterday. The appointment was made by the Chemawa troop committee.

SINGER OF ALLIED FORCES TO SPEAK

Harold Singer, one of the speakers of Allied Forces and national director of Allied Youth, will hold a conference at the First Methodist church Wednesday, March 22, at 7:30 p. m. Mr. Singer who is an outstanding youth leader will make an interesting and attractive presentation of the scientific and sociological truths about beverage alcohol.

This meeting is open to the public and every one interested in education is invited to attend.

Rev. Hugh N. McCallum is in charge of arrangements and is supported by the local ministers.

INTERIM WORKERS ARE APPOINTED

Earl Snell, speaker of the house of representatives, has appointed members of a number of house committees and boards pursuant to resolutions adopted during the recent legislative session.

House members of the state emergency board include Representatives Walker and Gouley. Senator Staples was appointed the senate member of this board.

Members of the house seating committee for the 1935 legislative session are representatives Childs and Wyers.

Representatives Wells and Abrams were appointed house members of an interim committee on insurance. The report of this committee will be filed prior to the 1935 legislative session.

The interim committee to conduct a study of small loans and report their findings at the legislative session two years hence is composed of Representatives Wyers, Scott and Paulus, C. C. Chapman, publisher of the Oregon Voter, and George Turnbull or the University of Oregon.

Representatives Lonergan and Paget were named to prepare an argument for the measures' pamphlet under a senate resolution referring to the voters the question of modifying the present grand jury system.

House members of the committee to prepare the affirmative argument for the measures' pamphlet in connection with the proposed constitutional amendment dealing with county managerial form of government are Representatives Ryan, Herman and Cooter. The negative argument will be prepared by Representatives McCornack, Weatherford and Scott.

Representatives Lewis and Nichols were appointed house members of the committee to prepare the affirmative argument dealing with the proposal to issue and sell bonds for engineering work in connection with the state power program.

The house committee to prepare the affirmative argument in connection with the proposal to change the date on which legislators shall assume office, is composed of Representatives Eckley, Johnson and Wells.

Representatives Kelly and Staples were selected as house members of the committee to prepare an affirmative argument on proposed constitutional amendment restricting the powers of municipal governments to borrow money and incur indebtedness.
