BACKING OF CIVIC CHORUS IS SOUGHT

Mayor Bespeaks Patronage For Opening Concert, Monday at Armory

Support for the Salem Civic Men's chorus was urged yesterday by Mayor Douglas McKay. "Salem has long felt the need of such a group for conventions and entertainment of a civic nature and it should have all the support needed for this enterprise," said the mayor.

He urged citizens to support the club and to attend the opening concert of the season which will be given Monday at the armory.

A varied program of music for this program is to be announced this week by Professor E. H. Hobson, director. Twenty-five local men make up the personnel, all being singers of ability. Solos and quartet numbers will add to the attractiveness of the coming concert.

McKay explained yesterday to the local chorus is to give three concerts yearly and that all proceeds from the chorus will go to its support so service clubs, civic clubs and other organizations may have musical entertainment furnished by the chorus for their own as well as convention programs.

At the luncheon meeting of the Kiwanis club, a quartet from the chorus sang two numbers which were well received. In the quartet are Richard Barton, Ronald Craven, Wendell Robinson, and Herbert Hobson. The latter sang a solo at the luncheon meeting.
