Kovitz has written to Southern Pacific company officials relative to erection of a crossing signal at 14th and Mission streets, as petitioned by the city council two weeks ago, he said yesterday. The colored eggs were available yesterday and until noon today at Associated Charities headquarters, 219 Court street, for all kiddies whose parents are unable to supply them with Easter eggs. Prizes for best-colored eggs were awarded as follows: First for boys divided between Robert Smith who received a rabbit and Marvin Hurley who received a baseball mitt; Dorothy Johnson won a rabbit for the best colored egg presented by a girl. MUMMIES PROVE TO BE MADE OF PAPER

Yesterday wasn't April Fools' day by the calendar but by circumstance it was that for Salem police. Called to the old Dan J. Fry warehouse on Front street, officers prepared to investigate the reason for the "mummified bodies of a woman and child" being found there. Chief Frank Min-to led in conducting the probe.

It developed that the "bodies" were of paper mache and had been stored there after a state fair 20 years ago by a man whose name Mr. Fry does not recall. Fry said the man had exhibited the "mummies" at the fair, advertising them as brought from Egypt, and had done a land office business.

The coffin containing the "bodies" was discovered and opened by a group of Community service workers to whom Fry had given permission to salvage some old furniture stored in the warehouse. The box with the surprising contents lay under some chairs.

The "child" was lying on the woman's breast, its head resting on her shoulder.

OREGON PRODUCTS DAYS PROCLAIMED

Statewide observance of Oregon products days during April 21 to May was urged yesterday by Governor Julius L. Meier in a formal statement issued at the capital.

"Statewide pride in Oregon products and a state-wide determination that, price and quality being equal, we will use the output of our forests, factories and farms, will do much to speed return of normal prosperity," the governor's statement read.

"Oregon products days will give merchants a chance to acquaint the public with the high quality and favorable price of Oregon made and Oregon grown merchandise. The public, in turn, will learn of the products that keep our manufacturing plants in operation and maintain our lumber, agricultural, fishing and other industries."

"I hope that buyers and sellers alike will enter wholeheartedly in the observance of Oregon products days and that the beneficial effects of this observance will make themselves felt throughout the year in better business for Oregon and more work for Oregonians."

The new production schedule provides for a substantial increase in working hours of the factory's employes.

GERMANY SITUATION DESCRIBED BY GATKE

LIBERTY, April 1. — A large crowd turned out for the regular meeting of the community club Friday night. The women entertained at dinner in honor of the men, with good attendance.

The major part of the program was put on by talent furnished by Doollittle's service station of Salem, with Hobart Smith master of ceremonies of his broadcasting station. Their program included guitar quartet numbers, blues singer and yodeler with guitar accompaniment; wisecracks, a recitation by Mrs. Stevenson, etc. All numbers were enthusiastically applauded.

Dr. Robert M. Gatke spoke, explaining the political situation in Germany, stating that economic conditions were responsible for events there following the trend in other countries in seeking a way out.

In a short business session the matter of starting a Girl Scout or Camp Fire Girls organization was brought up and it was voted to call a special meeting to discuss the subject further. An authority on such girls' work is to be brought before this meeting.

The club will enter the public speaking contest with other clubs, and tryouts will be held here Wednesday night, April 19. The history contest is also to be entered.

The quilt made for sale to benefit the school athletic fund was won by Mrs. Bruce Cunningham. Over $16 was realized on it.

HOW DOES YOUR GARDEN GROW?

LILLIE L. MADSEN "To lime or not to lime" is one of the big questions of lawn owners whose lawns have been more or less ruined during the past winter. The answer depends entirely upon the basic grass planted on the lawn. If it is clover or Kentucky Blue grass, give it some lime; if it is one of the creeping bentis do not lime it.

While the general advice—and in most cases the best advice—is to rake the moss from the lawns, rework the barest parts and reseed, there are those who disliked to take off the little grass still surviving the winter. Particularly is this true of those who have not sufficient water for irrigation during the dry summer months. One lawn grower of this group mixed a commercial fertilizer, creeping bent and a little sand and spread the mixture over his entire lawn. He tells me that he believes the experiment will prove successful. Already the old creeping bent is gaining sufficient headway to choke out much of the moss. If the grass can be made to grow strong enough it will take care of the moss. Those who kept their lawns well fed last year did not have quite as much bother with moss as those whose lawns went hungry. That is something to remember for this year. You should fertilize your lawn at least twice during the growing season. If your lawn is coming along nicely now, fertilize it well and repeat again later in the season. If you use the ammonium sulphate fertilizer be sure to soak the ground well with water so that the fertilizer will not burn.

And after the new grass has begun to grow, others complain. Slugs certainly didn't suffer from the cold weather of the winter. There are several things on the market which will kill slugs. Copper sulphate or blue vitriol sprinkled around plants which the slugs bother will do away with them. Oregon State college has experimented with the use of blue vitriol in pasture lands and clover fields where slugs were destructive and the college reports that the blue vitriol is successful as a slug poison. It also kills the earthworms and cut worms. I have found that snail is one of the best commercial preparations for controlling slugs. It is none too early to begin watching for rust on those of your perennials which are subject to it. Particularly the hollyhock and perennial phlox suffer. Leaves that show the rust spores should be removed and the plants sprayed with a solution of sulphide of potassium at the rate of one ounce to two gallons of water. A diluted Bordeaux mixture is also very effective. Spray the ground well around the plants also.

DATE OF PLUMBER'S MEETING CHANGED

Ed O. Pratt, president of the Salem branch of the Oregon State Association of Master Plumbers, announced yesterday that the state meeting of plumbers to be held in Salem has been advanced two weeks from the original date and will be held in Salem May 26 and 27.

Change of date was made due to the fact that on May 26 and 27, E. B. Klein, president of the National Association of Master Plumbers, will be in Oregon and has accepted an invitation of local plumbers to attend the Salem sessions.

The presence of the national president of plumbers will add greater interest to the program to be presented, and according to Mr. Pratt, will naturally increase attendance at the Salem state meeting.
