MacDowell Program Will Feature Piano Artist Thursday

THE annual spring program of song and instrumental works which will be presented Thursday night in the Grand theatre by the Salem MacDowell club is calling wide attention. It is said to be a program in keeping with the gay brightness of spring and those who have heard the chorus numbers are enthusiastic concerning the excellent work it is accomplishing in the numbers to be presented, numbers largely representative of American composers.

David Campbell, the soloist, appearing in two groups of solos is not only well known to a large circle of friends and music lovers in Salem, but also has a large following throughout Oregon, and up and down the Pacific coast, in the many cities where he has appeared. Among the numbers on the Salem program are several which have elicited high praise from critics elsewhere. Redfern Mason, distinguished writer on musical matters for the San Francisco Examiner, made special mention of the skill evidenced at a recent Campbell recital in San Francisco, in the playing of the serious legato octaves of the Chopin octave etude. Alexander Fried on the San Francisco Chronicle, speaks of the fine sympathetic feeling shown in the delivery of the songlike passages of another Chopin Etude. These two beautiful and difficult numbers, making great demands on both technical and interpretative ability, are included in Mr. Campbell's first group for Thursday evening. In response to a request, Mr. Campbell has consented to speak briefly, preceding his second appearance on the program, saying a few words as introduction and in explanation of the numbers comprising his second group. Of these numbers, no doubt the most appealing to the general listener will be the ever popular and spectacular "Campanella", of Liszt, with its striking imitation of tinkling, chiming and pealing bells. Varied in appeal, the choice of piano numbers for the program covers a wide range and will interest not only music students, but all who enjoy the performance of good music.

Mrs. C. P. Bishop was a Portland visitor Saturday and while there attended a meeting of the Children's Farm Home board.
