Traps, Studies Birds—An extensive study of the habits of the wren-tit, a California bird, is being made by Mary Erickson of the University of California in preparation for writing a thesis on this bird for her doctor's degree. She recently read a paper to a university group summing up some of her studies, an account of which was published in the Condor, printed by the Cooper Ornithological club. Miss Erickson, daughter of Dean and Mrs. Frank M. Erickson of Willamette university, found that the birds return to their original place of nesting to build their new nests. She identified the birds and studied their habits through the use of standard bird bands furnished by the United States biological service.

Widen Sidewalks—City firemen yesterday finished digging up the sod in the north and east parkings of the city hall lot in preparation for extending the sidewalks to the curb line. The plot between the police station entry and the Model Food shop also will be paved. Despite firemen's efforts to keep the lawn in the parking in presentable condition, the grass was continually worn down by pedestrians. The lawn between the sidewalks and the city hall has been covered with new soil and fenced off for reseeding.
