

TEACHING SAVINGS ESTIMATED $22,442

Uniform 10 per Cent Salary Cut Considered 1933-34 By School Board

A uniform ten per cent reduction in salaries of all principals, supervisors and teachers in the Salem school system for 1933-1934 will bring a saving of $22,442 according to figures just prepared by the office of George Hug, school superintendent. This reduction would bring the budget outlay for instruction and supervision next year to $205,312, in comparison to $227,754 set aside for this item in the year 1932-1933. Prior to this year, teachers', principals' and supervisors' salaries in the city aggregated $246,182, the reduction projected for the coming year thus amounting to 17 per cent from the 1932-1933 level. The salary lists prepared by the superintendent's office are entirely tentative, the school board not yet having determined upon its policy regarding teachers' salaries in 1933-1934. The Salem school system has consistently paid low salaries compared to those given teachers in other schools in the state. If salaries are reduced ten per cent in 1933-1934, some elementary teachers will be receiving $90 a month for a nine-months' term while high school instructors will receive as low as $119 a month based on a nine-months' service.

Teachers Applying In Vain for Jobs

Teachers seeking jobs in 1932-1933 continue to apply at the county superintendent's office at the courthouse. Thus far few new teachers have been placed, most teachers keeping their present jobs. Salary reductions are quite prevalent in the county. Some boards are following the 5 to 30 per cent reduction scale adopted by the state.
