CANBY TULIP DAY TENTATIVELY SET

Event Will Likely be Sunday, May 14; Large Crowds Are Expected

CANBY, April 24.—Despite the fact that below zero temperature and frigid winter winds succeeded in destroying thousands of tulip bulbs planted in this vicinity last fall, nothing can destroy the wonder and beauty of those millions of buds now springing into bloom in and near Canby. Nature, that clever old artist, aided by American efficiency and expert cultivation, has produced upon Canby prairie a trowler's paradise where thousands of people pause to admire the grandeur and beauty of the landscape in all its varied colors.

The Canby chamber of commerce will sponsor the annual tulip festival early in May. The date has not been definitely determined, but it is generally conceded by growers that tulips will not be at their best before the middle of May and it is very probable that the annual event will be held Sunday, May 14. Under the bright sunlight of the past week buds have made rapid progress and in a few days more the fields will be literally covered with tulips in all their colors, shapes and sizes.

At each annual tulip show in Canby thousands of people from Portland, Salem and other cities of Oregon visit Canby on tulip day to view the farms and buy the flowers. The chamber of commerce has made arrangements for state police officers to direct traffic during the day and they will be aided by local Boy Scout troops.

Peter Hornig and Max L. Bostlager, local bulb growers, head committees who will manage the coming festival.
