This weekend, for the first time in many years, Willamette will meet the horsehide tossers of one of the big state schools on a basis of full equality insofar as the importance of the contest is concerned; the games with Oregon State will not be "practice" games for the Beavers, but major competition with an unoffi-cial state championship at issue. The first game will be at Corvallis Friday afternoon, and the secend here on Olinger field Saturday at 2:30 p. m.

Coach "Slats" Gill of the Beavers has been forced to build anew in baseball this season with only five lettermen to depend upon: Biancone and Jensen in the outfield, Clarke at third base and Keems and Schneider, catchers.

Gill has found a couple of dependable pitchers in Jack Woodard and Carl Rasmussen, but so far the hitting has not been noteworthy, Treadway Charles of Oregon Normal having held the Beavers to three hits recently. However the hitting strength has been augmented by the presence of Mitols and Clarke who were busy with spring football until last

In the series with Willamette Oregon State will probably have Mitols on first base, Callen at second, George Hibbard, former Salem Senator, at short, and and Jensen will be in the outwith Keema behind the bat.

More than 7,100 fans paid to sented by Keith Brown.

> The Seattle tournament last Saturday was hard fought and the Salem team considered itself fortunate to emerge with a record of eight games won and only two lost. Portland, considered the strongest contender, having two legs in the cup as well as Salem, played Salem first and was defeated 15-8, 15-9. So demoralized was the Portland outfit that it finished the tournament with one win out of eight games. Salem was defeated 16-14 by Seattle, playing on its home court and by Wenatchee 15-5 when Salem entered its second-string players. Wenatchee proved to be the dark horse of the tournament, participating in its first class A competition. It previously had won the class B tournament.

At a dinner following the games, Nile W. Hilburn, captain of the Salem team, was presented with the silver trophy cup by Frank Shea of Seattle, chairman of the Pacific Northwest Physical Education committee. Members of the five teams voted on an allstar Pacific Northwest team to be composed of the outstanding members of the competing sextets. Players were not permitted to vote for members of their own outfits. Two Salem men won recognition on the all-star outfit, Jerry Owen and Elmore Hill. Clarke at third. Biancone, Ward Others were A.
