MIND DEEMED ELECTRIC SYSTEM

Speaking before the fourth annual conference on interpretations of physical education at New York University, Dr. George Crile, eminent savant of Cleveland, Ohio, startled his learned audience by expounding his new theory on the brain and its workings. According to the scientist, the mind is electricity, manufactured in the brain by an intricate power system of generation and distribution. Explaining, the doctor divided the brain into two sections, the grey matter and the white matter. The grey section, according to the doctor, contains four quadrillion dynamos which supply the currents which we know as thoughts and emotions. These dynamos are fed by power stations in the adrenal gland, situated just above the kidneys, which collaborates with another station in the thyroid gland in the neck. This thyroid gland, said Dr. Crile, is "the power behind the throne" which rules the human intellect. The white section of the brain, the doctor explained, is a matrix on which are recorded the patterns produced by the currents from the grey matter. When a man thinks, these currents from the grey pass through the white and are recorded thereon. And thus the trend of the human mind is traced in an infinitely delicate tracery of microscopic dimensions. Dr. Crile said if these tracings could be seen they would show a vast hook-up of lines, registering every thought and emotion that the individual has experienced since birth.
