ADVERTISING HELD BUSINESS PRODUCER

Portland Ad Club President Cites Business Upturns Seen in Portland

Advertising from the standpoint of the purchaser who has been a consistent buyer of the service of advertising and is well satisfied, was discussed in interesting manner Friday noon before the Salem Ad club by Charles L. Stidd, president of the Portland Advertising club and an officer of the Mutual Benefit Savings and Loan association.

Stidd lauded the benefits of legitimate, well-conceived advertising as a business producer. In one enterprise in which he is engaged, Stidd said, gross business had risen from $15,000 to $80,000 annually in the last 18 months and he attributed advertising in Portland newspapers as a major factor in the gain.

Advertising, however, must be soundly planned with the purchaser's business status always in mind, Stidd asserted. It must be followed by the right approach to the customer and by consistently good service.

Stidd concluded his remarks with a plea for the wider advertising of the charms of Oregon to prospective tourists. He said the romantic history of the state was unexcelled and suggested the romantic background of the state should be displayed in all advertising material seeking more tourists for Oregon.

The speaker opened his talk with a recitation of numerous business cases in Portland which showed marked upturns in the last 90 days. Stidd praised the new administration in Washington and held it was responsible for much of the improvement.

MUSICAL FESTIVAL DRAWS BIG CROWD

1800 or More Attend; Well Trained Groups Present Excellent Program

By OLIVE M. DOAK
At least 1800 adults and children were in the armory Friday night to witness and take part in the brilliant musical festival sponsored by the music departments of Salem schools as a post-festival to National Music week.

Parenthood seemed even finer than everyday philosophy makes it, and the art of being a capable teacher appeared an enviable one as the clean, well-groomed youngsters took their places in well-mannered and efficient precision, and then in masterly fashion responded to the direction of either a teacher or one of their own number in music that was beautiful to hear.

From the first grade on to senior high school in song, band and rhythm orchestra, music was presented in fashion that brought round after round of applause. Little tots from the first and second grades of Washington made splendid music from instruments which in part closely allied with time-honored pieces of every well equipped kitchen. This was the rhythm orchestra and it was directed by two of the members of the class in a masterly manner.

This music festival of Salem schools has become a splendid feature of the spring music season. It has been presented as a part of Music week activities and should be continued as an annual festival. Miss Gretchen Kraemer, music director of the band deserves a hand for the excellent work accomplished.

Brown vs. Plank Case Heard Here

Testimony was taken Friday by Judge L. G. Lewelling in the case of Emma Murphy Brown against John W. Plank. Plaintiff seeks to have Plank dispossessed of a house she alleges he holds full title to. Plank asserts that he has an equity in the property, located here, having received his holdings from a claim owned him by the plaintiff, Mrs. Brown denied Plank's claim and contended that his services in building a house for her had been fully paid for and that he had given her a quit claim deed to the property in controversy.

GIN MARRIAGE LAW EFFECTIVE JUNE 9

Beginning Monday, June 9, applicants for marriage licenses in any county in Oregon must wait three full days, after the initial application is filed with the county clerk, before receiving their permit to wed. A brief of the so-called "gin marriage" law enacted at the 1933 session, was received at the courthouse here this week.

An emergency provision of the new law allows the county judge to set aside the three-day provision should he determine such exemption was of imperative necessity.

A number of other states have enacted such laws to stop hasty, ill-considered marriages and also to provide a period of time when the public may be informed of the intention of the marriage applicants. In states where the waiting period has been required, many cases of proposed marriages of persons wedded and not divorced, has been stopped through the publicity in the three-day period.

Speeders Arrested—Three motorists were arrested by city police yesterday on charges of speeding: R. A. Weiser, 445 Hood street; James A. Doller, Lobanon, and C. A. Lewis, Kato, Wash.
