Exhibits of Work Done by Pupils in Dallas on Display

DALLAS, May 20. — Exhibits showing the work being done in the various classes were on display at all three of the city schools Thursday. At the primary building the exhibits were shown in each class room and included studies in arithmetic, spelling, art, hygiene and geography. Special tables containing sand exhibits were one of the feature attractions of the exhibits and attracted a great deal of attention.

A wide variety of exhibits were shown at the junior high building as the work of the upper grades. They included history, geography, poetry, penmanship, spelling, hygiene, art, arithmetic, poppy posters and samples of 4-H club work. The display at the high school was devoted to the manual training and domestic science classes. A large variety of ornamental and useful articles which were built by the manual training students were shown. The domestic science display was composed of dresses, suits and coats.

Bits for Breakfast

And why "1833 to 1843" as applied to "earliest settler," referring to Dr. McLoughlin? He was a settler until the day of his death, September 3, 1857, aged 73 years. He was more of a settler after he resigned his position with the Hudson's Bay company in the fall of 1845 and took up his residence at Oregon City, with the intention of becoming an American citizen, than he was before.

He was thereafter a good and patriotic American citizen, though he suffered many indignities at the hands of Americans in his declining years, on account of the bitter feelings that hung over from the days when he was misunderstood by both the British and the Americans, in attempting to represent the interests of his employers while giving succor to the men, women and children arriving in destitute conditions from their plains journeys, following his instincts of a gentleman and a Christian — being above all a man of character and of humanity. All this was realized later — but too late to make his last days happy ones, as they should have been, and which came to be fully realized by all honest men after he had passed on; and amends made to his heirs.

Furthermore, why "called governor of Oregon prior to 1843?" That means, of course, prior to the vote taken May 2, 1843. But that vote did not authorize the formation of the first provisional government. It merely authorized a better organization of the provisional government voted at the old Mission February 18, 1841, and that day set in motion, and which functioned until July 5, 1843, when its acts were ratified and its functions merely continued by the new officers then chosen or their choosing confirmed.

Besides, there was no man called governor, excepting Dr. McLoughlin, until 1845, when the first provisional government governor, Governor Abernethy, assumed office.

Further still, Jason Lee, with the advice of Dr. McLoughlin, assumed and performed the duties of governor, for all but British subjects, at his arrival in 1834, and, in 1838, about to leave to seek the reinforcements that came with the Lausanne party, on the same advice (that of Dr. McLoughlin), Lee named David Leslie justice of the peace, to represent interests in the country other than British, during the period of his absence.

And the wording under the painting should read, chief factor of the Hudson's Bay company, for it was by virtue of that office that Dr. McLoughlin, under theegis of British parliamentary law, was virtually governor of the old Oregon country, with reference to both subjects of that government and to the Indians; even claiming and exercising some jurisdiction with reference to American citizens and those of other countries.

LINDYS BACK FROM CAPITAL

Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh are pictured on their arrival at Newark (N. J.) airport after a flight from Washington, D. C., where the colonel testified in the suit of Mrs. Evelyn Walsh McLean against Gaston B. Means in the alleged ransom hoax connected with the kidnaping of the Lindbergh baby. The colonel is here shown as he shook hands with an old friend at the field house of the airport.

Kaiser. — A quiet wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Belleu in Portland, at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon, when Goldie Irene Weathers, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Weathers, became the bride of George N. Belleu, Dr. W. H. Rogers, pastor of the Hinson Memorial Baptist church, officiated.

The bride wore a costume of eggshell chiffon trimmed in cream lace, with accessories to match. Her corsage was Cecil Bruener roses.

Mr. Weathers accompanied his daughter to Portland. Mr. and Mrs. Belleu will make their home on the Belleu ranch near Lafayette.

Mrs. Frank Rinehart of Eugene was a special guest for the afternoon of cards for which Mrs. John Coughell and Mrs. Frank Chapman were hostesses Wednesday at the Coughell home.

Mrs. Mary Watson has as her house guest her niece, Miss Millcent Steidinger of Tillamook. The young guest expects to spend several days with Mrs. Watson.

PATCHWORK QUILT PATTERN

Melon Patch No. 430 By Laura Wheeler

Fruits of the garden gave their names to old quilts. Somehow, patchwork quilts and gardens go together. Certainly, old-time quilters make us think so, for the flowers and fruits in their gardens inspired so many of the loveliest patterns handed down to us. To the average person, a melon, though a delicious fruit, seems a prosaic inspiration for a pattern — that is, it might seem prosaic until she sees this quilt pattern, where the melons have grown into lovely, elongated ovals that are easily joined to the contrasting patch. The "melons" alternate in color, and the adjoining patches also alternate, to give a contrast. The small squares add a touch of a third color. This quilt has a simplicity and quaintness that makes it an outstanding addition to any bedroom.

The pattern comes to you with complete simple instructions for cutting, sewing and finishing, together with yardage chart, diagram of quilt to help arrange the blocks for single and double bed size, and a diagram of block which serves as a guide for placing the patches and suggests contrasting colors.

Send 10 cents for this pattern to The Oregon Statesman Needlecraft Dept., 82 Eighth avenue, New York city.

La Arca Club is Entertained

An attractive meeting of the LaArca club was enjoyed Friday night at the home of Mrs. A. A. Gueffroy, with Mrs. Gueffroy and Mrs. George Clinton as hostesses. Dr. Marlon Follis and Mrs. William E. Moses held winning scores for cards. At a late hour refreshments were served. Present were Mrs. Meme Pearce, Mrs. John Turner Moses, Mrs. Carl Andersen, Mrs. Paul Ficke, Mrs. Margaret Montgomery, Mrs. Frank Rock, Dr. Marlon Follis, Mrs. Frank Tyler, Mrs. Ernest Barker, Mrs. Earl S. McCoy of Eugene, Mrs. F. L. Andersen and Mrs. Gueffroy and Mrs. Clinton.

Of interest in flower club circles will be the announcement that comes from Mrs. Jessie B. Honeyman with regard to the educational exhibit which the Council of Roadside Beauty will sponsor at the Willamette Valley flower show, June 2, 3, 4, in Marion square. This exhibit will demonstrate what has been accomplished by the council and will advance those things it hopes to accomplish in the future.
