The "Dot" King murder in 1923 when he was a New York assistant district attorney was left with some of the committee members by John C. Hackett, who described himself as former special police commissioner of New York. Through newspapermen, Pecora invited Hackett to "go to the bottom" of his services.

STEAMBOATMEN TO GATHER, CHAMPOEG

The eighth annual reunion of the Veteran Steamboatmen's association of the west was announced yesterday for Sunday, June 25, at Champeog park. Captain Arthur Riggs is a master of the association and Judge Fred W. Wilson of the Dalles will be master of ceremonies. The public is invited to the reunion which is advertised as an "all-day, old-fashioned get-together."

In the announcement is a picture of the "City of Salem," one of the finest early boats on the Willamette river. A brief history of the boat follows:
The City of Salem was built in 1875 by Captain U. B. Scott and his associates, L. B. Seely, Z. J. Hatch, S. H. Brown and W. S. Purcell. The actual supervisor, however, was in the hands of Captain Scott.

She was the finest steamer up to that time to ply on the Willamette and made her initial trip on October 21, 1875. The City of Salem was a financial success from the start, being designed to draw very little water, and was able to reach the upper river and practically control the trade. In February, 1876, she ascended the Santiam river as far as Jefferson. On this trip her officers were: master, Capt. F. W. Spencer; engineer, Perry Scott; purser, J. W. Newkirk. Her dimensions were: length, 151 feet; beam, 22 feet, and her engine was 14 by 48 inches.

"She was retired after a long and profitable service in 1890."

SCHOOL "FACTS" TO BE TOLD TO VOTERS

school budget was H. B. Jorgenson, one of the candidates for election to the board.
Members of these two groups, who were interviewed following the meetings, stated they could see no reason for the recall as all members of the present school board were taxpayers and had no desire to pay more taxes than absolutely necessary to retain the present standard of the schools. They also remarked that a few years ago considerable protest was made to Silverton school boards because nothing "practical" was taught. And now there is considerable complaint because these "practical" subjects have been added.
These two groups were formed at the suggestion of the committee recently appointed by the Silverton chamber of commerce to investigate facts. Serving on this committee are H. W. Preston, T. T. Leonard and H. B. Latham.

Drawing room dramas are definitely out of Ruth Chatterton's life—at least for the time being. Following the tremendous success of her last picture, "Princess Jeany," the First National star elected to go still further afield and selected as her new starring vehicle the Phillip Dunning-George Abbott stage success, "Lilly Turner." Miss Chatterton will be seen in the picture at the Elsinore theatre today and tomorrow.

Nothing could be further removed from the palatial magnificence of "The Rich Are Always With Us" than the garish glamor of the carnival and medicine shows of which Lilly Turner is queen.

MIDDLE ROAD URGED BY LIONS SPEAKER

Taking a "middle road" in business, religion, education, politics and patriotism was urged by Herman E. Lafky, Salem attorney, in an address before the Salem Lions club at the Gray Belle yesterday noon. Lafky substituted for G. A. Faline, Portland attorney who was unable to make his scheduled appearance here.
"In business, during periods of prosperity we take no precautionary measures to prevent a depression; we delude ourselves into believing the millennium has arrived," Lafky declared. "When depression hits us, we say, 'I can't see how we can ever get out of this—it will take years.'"
Lafky contrasted the liquor stand of the nation during the past few years with the impending "complete reversal to the other extreme," and also pointed to variations of political and patriotic fervor in different periods.

Bank accounts of the county treasurer's office and cash on hand totalled $678,000 at the close of 1932, making Marion county's cash position one of the strongest of any county in the state. Each bank in the county has a portion of the county's funds, the deposits all being collateralized according to the auditor's report.

Justice of the Peace Hayden collected in traffic, prohibition and miscellaneous fines $2226 during the year, the audit shows, while fees for criminal and civil actions amounted to $2204.

SAYS FARMERS NOT HIT BY TRUCK ACT

The impression that has gone out that farmers will be hard hit by the new truck transportation act of the 1933 legislature is erroneous, Herbert Hauser, supervisor of transportation, said yesterday.
Hauser said the new law exempts farmers who haul the products of their farm to market, and the supervisor has wide discretion in cases where farmers haul the products of a neighbor for a nominal fee. He declared that the latter farmers were exempt from the provisions of the law when the load weighed under one and one-half tons.
"It is my opinion," Hauser said, "that the new transportation act is more lenient with the farmers than the present law regulating auto licensing trucks."
Hauser declared that licensing of trucks under the new transportation act is vested in the state motor vehicle department and not in the state utilities commission.

CHEMAWA MAY NOT BE CLOSED, WORD

McNary, Mott Present Case To Indian Commissioner; Closing is Tentative

A strong ray of hope for continuation of the Chemawa Indian school is seen in telegrams received by the chamber of commerce yesterday from Senator Charles L. McNary and Congressman James W. Mott.

Senator McNary spent an hour with Commissioner of Indian Affairs Collier yesterday, and of that interview he wires: "I feel he is now much impressed with the usefulness of the school and will express your view to the secretary of the interior."

He also states he will see the director of the budget and the secretary within the next few days to follow the matter energetically.

The chamber of commerce last Saturday wired Senator McNary additional data to use in argument in support of the protest against the Chemawa closing, and it is of this data McNary speaks in his telegram.
The chamber pointed again to the exceptional work Chemawa is doing with vocational training, to the low annual expense of $170,000. It was further pointed out that employees of the school are willing to take a three months furlough and that if the school is closed more than 200 Indian youths will be deprived of educational advantages, or placed in boarding schools which will cost, with the forest project planned for Indians, as much as it costs to keep Chemawa open.

Congressman Mott wired the chamber in part:
"Presented Chemawa's school case at hearing before commissioner of Indian affairs... hearing continued until Monday to permit presentation of five other Indian boarding schools affected by order. Statement was made by commissioner that order closing schools is tentative and may be modified by consent of budget director... Am arranging commission of members representing all states in which Indian schools are located with view to considering legislative remedy in case no relief can be had from the executive department."

More Candidates File for County Education Board

Three more candidates filed for the board of education for non-high school districts yesterday. All are against continuation of high school transportation. Michael Wehnacht, one of the most outspoken opponents of high school transportation for years, C. A. Ratcliff, zone three, who ran for sheriff last year, also is said to oppose transportation as does the third candidate, Eugene Finlay, zone five. Finlay's petition contained considerably more than 100 names.
Saturday is the final day for filing for the new board, the initial five members of which are to be elected by non-high school districts in the county this month.
