INDIANS' HOPE FOR SCHOOL IS GENERAL

resolution came on heels of announcement that Chemawa had been ordered closed.

In addition to matters above mentioned, three other salient reasons help Chemawa workers and the older students to hope that a hearing on the closing will keep the school open.

These are: First, the closing order was apparently made on the basis of report made by Dr. Ryan of the federal office about five years ago, before the vocational program was inaugurated; second, in no other Indian school do children learn the value of necessities by earning scrip with which they buy these needs; and third, health of Chemawa pupils is more carefully guarded than possible in the public school. On the grounds is a 40-bed modern hospital, only recently equipped with x-ray and ultra violet ray machines and other modern appliances.

BOARD OF CONTROL MEETING IS URGED

Holman Vents Feelings In Objecting to Giving Purchases Okeh

Governor Julius L. Meier was at Lebanon yesterday to attend the strawberry festival at which he spoke briefly. He stopped at his office here to transact routine business. Mrs. Meier accompanied him on the trip.

State Treasurer Holman vented his feelings at after yesterday morning when he was requested to approve a number of state purchases without board of control action.

"There is a large amount of current business awaiting action," he said. "There is no reason why a meeting of the board of control should not be called."

The state treasurer declared that he desired to discuss several matters with the board of control in case a meeting is held. One of these involves a contract prepared by the Portland Electric Power company and Northwest Electric company and has to do with providing electricity for various state institutions.

Most of the contracts approved by Holman involved minor improvements to state properties, purchase of brick and six road graders.

A contract for the purchase of 13 new automobiles for the state industrial accident commission is now pending before the board.
