OREGON GIVEN FIRST PLACE FOR BEAUTY

Edward Miller Says Scenery Of State Unsurpassed; Many Hear Address

Edward Miller, auto editor of The Oregonian, gave Oregon first place among the states of the nation in scenic beauty to inspire its citizens and to attract tourists when he spoke in entertaining fashion to the Salem Ad club Friday noon.

"I'm sincere and speak from some experience as a traveler when I say I've chosen Oregon as a state to live in because it has the most beautiful, loveliest country, I've seen," Miller declared.

Miller enumerated seven outstanding scenic wonders of the northwest in the following order: The Oregon Coast highway, which he termed one of the four marvel roads of the world, not exceeded by any of the famous European highways.

The Columbia river gorge. Crater lake, which is more inspiring to the visitor who knows the geological history of the lake. Rainier mountain whose flowers and whose glaciers are unsurpassed.

The Steen's mountain country in eastern Oregon, where cowboys and real western conditions are unique.

The canyon of the Snake river, the deepest gash made by a river in this continent.

The Willamette valley, which Miller said was as beautiful as France and greatly resembled that country.

Oregon has the major attributes of a country which attracts visitors, the speaker declared. For scenery it is unsurpassed. For interesting people, it has a variety of "natives" in tucked away spots who are worthy of tourist attention. Its roads are superb and while its resorts do not equal those of countries who have catered to tourists for generations, they will improve as tourist travel develops. The architectural beauty of the state could be improved, Miller averred. He said many cities had unattractive centers while many service stations were blots on the landscape and certain roads had far too many bill boards to be attractive.

A large audience attended the Ad club meeting where Miller spoke. This summer he is making a series of tours throughout the northwest and the weekly features he writes for The Oregonian are being used throughout the nation to advertise the state.

MARXES PROVE EASY MARX

HELENE COSTELLO MAE WEST BETTY COMPSON

While still suffering from the shock of being robbed of $37,000 worth of jewelry five months ago, Mrs. Zeppo Marx, wife of one of the four famous comedy comedians, was given reason to doubt the truth of the old maxim about hitting twice in the same place. A brace of daring gunmen, gaining admittance to the Marx home in Hollywood, tied up the comedian's servants, forced Zeppo and Mrs. Marx into a clothes closet and decamped with nearly $30,000 worth of gems. Police believe that the perpetrators of the robbery are of the same gang that robbed Helene Costello, of the film sisters, of $30,000 in jewels last year, and took $5,000 in jeweled bangles from Mae West, the "Diamond Lily" of stage and screen. Betty Compson, who was held up and robbed of $41,500 last January, was luckier than the others, for the loot was mysteriously returned some days after the robbery.

SHORT GOOSEBERRY PACK IS STARTED

WOODBURN, June 9. — The Ray - Brown cannery of Woodburn, started running this morning when 17 women were employed to work on canning gooseberries. The plant will probably have about 25 tons of gooseberries which will take only about two days' of operating time.

They do not expect to run on strawberries as the crop is almost a total failure due to the freeze of last winter. It is expected the cannery will shut down after the gooseberry run until the logans begin to ripen. A few cherries and blackberries will also be packed. No definite statement has been made in regard to the canning of pears later in the season.

Some difficulties were experienced.

Old Jewelry Being Turned In for Gold

A considerable increase in the amount of gold received by local jewelers for purchase has been observed here in the last 60 days. Many citizens have brought in old jewelry for sale and a number of church organizations are collecting the jewelry as donations.

According to estimates of a national jewelry organization, $150,000 in gold is available here from jewelry no longer used by its owners.

Jewelers are said to be handling the gold on a non-profit basis in order to create a market for new jewelry when times improve. The metal is shipped to the mint at San Francisco, where it is melted, the government paying the jewellers when the value of the value of the gold in the jewelry shipped in has been determined.

Gold in the present dollar consists of about 25 grains of pure gold or approximately $20 an ounce.

Jewelers can use the gold received for their own purpose if the government is properly notified. Otherwise the precious metal must be retained by federal authorities.

RELIGIOUS DRAMA SLATED AT PRATUM

Leisy Gets Request From India for Cartoons Used On Sundays

PRATUM, June 9. — A one-act religious drama, "Release," will be given at the Methodist church here Sunday night.

Homer Leisy, superintendent of the Mennonite Sunday school, who has for several years illustrated the Sunday school lesson at the local church by artistically arranged cartoons, received a request from a missionary in India for an assortment of cartoons to help in teaching the youth of India.

A farewell social was given at the church for Mr. and Mrs. E. Rounds, who are leaving after the conference, probably for California, where Mr. Rounds will continue his school work. Mr. Rounds has not definitely decided what school he will attend. He had charge of the Methodist work here for the past two years. Mrs. Rounds will leave for Portland within the next few days. Mr. Rounds, a senior at Willamette, will graduate with the class of '33.

A. W. Powell who had to submit to two operations since last fall and consequently was confined either to the hospital or to his bed at home a large part of the time, is getting a real thrill out of life to be able to walk about the farm again and watch the growing crops.

Fred de Vries has a supply of aster plants for free distribution to anyone who will grow them for the Sunday school booth at the state fair, where the blossoms will be given to visitors.

Tourist traffic in Chile during the past season was the heaviest in years.
