HERE WITH BARNES CIRCUS SOON

Glamorous Circus is Billed Here on Saturday, June 24; Menagerie Still has Thrills

Margorie Gay 18 years old, who turns somersaults on the broad resined haunch of her horse Cypresy, with the Al G. Barnes circus, chooses for her playmate a mammoth blood-sweating behemoth of Holy Writ who answers to the name of Lotus. The huge hippopotamus tips the scales at two tons, is 60 years of age and left his native haunts on the Nile river about the time Bryan was first running for president.

When not consuming bushels of carrots, turnips, heads of cabbage and bunches of other vegetables, Lotus does a submarine act into the bottom of the tank in the huge wagon that transports him. In fact the amphibian beast is as much at home in water as on land.

It started by the daily visit of the fair equestrienne to Lotus' cage armed with delicacies in the way of honey-coated popcorn and soon a fast bond was struck. Once a day Lotus is given a little exercise around the menagerie tent and in the backyard of the circus and Margorie is always on hand to accompany Lotus on his vagabond wanderings. When he gives voice the lions are humiliated and the tigers acknowledge defeat.

One of the world's largest traveling troupes will be seen in Salem on Saturday June 24, when the big show arrives for performances at 2 and 8 p.m. There are cages of lions, tigers, pumas, leopards, jaguars in addition to an endless array of hay-eating antelopes, tapirs and gnus. The Al G. Barnes circus has always excelled in the excellence of its menagerie and wild animal exhibit. A group of vauk vauks are shown this season, trappers spending more than three years in effecting their capture.

Sunday is fast day in the menagerie tent, and every occupant excepting the elephants and hay-eating animals, know when the day arrives. When the weekend feeding hour—four o'clock in the afternoon—approaches, not one of the animals betrays the feeling of eager anticipation on Sunday which characterizes them all the other six days. They understand instinctively that there will be no meal. The Sunday abstinence is deemed by the trainers an aid to good health, as copying to some extent the habit of beasts in their native haunts, where food is not obtainable every day.

There is little sickness in the menagerie. The animals are studied closely and given assiduous attention if the slightest indisposition is manifested.

JOBLESS PROGRAM WILL BE OUTLINED

At a meeting Sunday night at Veterans' hall, O. H. Goss of Medford, World War veteran, will outline the program of the Unemployed councils. Mr. Goss was elected organizer of the Unemployed councils at a joint meeting of delegates from the various neighborhood committees.

"The Unemployed councils," states Mr. Goss, "are based on this principle, that it is our task to see that not one unemployed worker goes without decent food, clothing or shelter. We take the stand that the workers are not responsible for present economic conditions and despite the fact that there is a shortage of funds for relief purposes, we will insist that the unemployed worker is entitled to decent food, housing and clothing."

A good deal of misunderstanding exists in Salem regarding the aims and purposes of the organization, states Mr. Goss, but this is being rapidly cleared away. At the meeting Sunday night he will emphasize the fact that the Unemployed council movement is based upon the "immediate needs of the workers — food, clothing and shelter, and cash wages for all work performed."

The Unemployed council is non-political and non-sectarian in character.

O. E. BONDHOLDERS PLAN PROTECTION

Bondholders of the $1,951,000 outstanding issue of first mortgage securities on the Oregon Electric Railroad company are forming a protective committee under the chairmanship of Ralph E. Williams, republican national committeeman. It is probable extension of the bonds will be recommended.

The railroad, operating between Portland and Eugene, recently abandoned its passenger service but net operating revenues are still far from sufficient to pay the carrying charges on the bonds. In former years, parent companies of the Hill system have advanced money to keep the road's debts paid; funds for this purpose are not now available. Total revenues in 1932 of the Oregon Electric were listed at $265,725. Funded debt charges took $860,313; expenses were $1,752,241; net deficit $1,486,516.

Boundary Board Okehs Decisions

The county boundary board Friday ratified a number of Matters which had been tentatively decided earlier this spring, and which concerned schools in the county. The five zones for non-high school districts were approved, as were plans made for the June 19 election and an earlier permission given the Bridge Creek school district to conduct school next year. Three members of the county court and three members of the county school superintendent, comprise the board.

Spouse Says Wife Drinks Too Much, In Divorce Suit

Because his wife allegedly used liquor freely and frequently "passed out" in public places, D. S. Coyner Friday filed suit for divorce from Caroline Coyner, his wife. The couple married in Woodburn last year.

Coyner alleges his wife used liquor to such an extent that she could not control herself. He also asserts in his complaint that she deserted him last fall, after he sister came to make her residence with them.

Pamphlet Filing Deadline Reached

The time for filing arguments for the measures' pamphlet to be printed and circulated prior to the special election July 21, expired at 5 p.m. Saturday. It will require approximately 425,000 of these pamphlets to meet the demands of the registered voters. The law provides that these pamphlets shall be in the mails seven days prior to the election.

FIO-RITO TO PLAY FOR DANCE MONDAY

Ted Fio-Rito, youthful song writer and orchestra leader comes to Salem tomorrow, presented by Cole McElroy.

Fio-Rito, who appeared nightly in the Garden room of the St. Francis hotel in San Francisco during the past season, is making a limited personal appearance tour before returning to the San Francisco hotel for another season. He comes to the Pacific northwest under the presentation of Cole McElroy, dance impresario who has brought to this section of America many famous band directors and their orchestras.

Arrangements have been completed by Archie Holt, who is representing Mr. McElroy and Mr. Fio-Rito, to present this attraction at the Elmore theatre for two performances tomorrow, with a matinee and first evening show. Following the 9 o'clock show the band will go directly to the Salem armory for a dance.
