MARCY TO SERVE PORTLAND CHURCH

Dr. Louis Magin to Succeed Him Here as District Superintendent

Appointments of Dr. M. A. Marcy, who has served as Salem district superintendent of the past four years, as pastor of the Sunnyside church in Portland, highlights the changes made by the annual conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, which closed in Portland Sunday night.

Dr. Marcy's successor as superintendent of this district will be Dr. Louis Magin, who has been pastor at Sunnyside church, Portland, for four years, going there from Spokane. Dr. Magin's move to Salem will be particularly pleasing to him, as he has two sons in Willamette, and a daughter who will enter next fall.

The change is in way of a promotion for Dr. Marcy, who came from Forest Grove to the superintendency, and now to Sunnyside, the third largest Methodist church in Oregon. The change also carries a larger salary. The Marcy's will move next week and he will preach his first sermon there Sunday, July 9.

Rev. K. K. Clark, who has been at Harrisburg the past year and prior to that was at Yoncalla for three years, is the new pastor at West Salem, succeeding Rev. C. L. Dark, who retired. Other Salem pastors continue unchanged.

The Methodist conference just closed was the best conference for many years in spiritual value, Dr. Marcy said yesterday, and the address of Bishop Lowe was outstanding in practical values. Addresses of E. Stanley Jones, missionary, drew capacity crowds to the church, and eventually to be taken to the public auditorium. Address of the bishop and Dr. U. G. Dubach of Oregon State college, also drew throngs.

Other changes of interest in this section are: Marquam becomes part of the Silverton charge instead of Canby. Rev. P. M. Hammond, who has been at Toledo, succeeds Rev. Glenn S. Hartong as pastor at Hubbard and Woodburn; Rev. Hartong was promoted to the Woodstock church in Portland.

Dr. D. H. Leach, former Albany pastor and newly retired, will live in Salem and preach at Pratum, replacing Edwin Rounds who will go to school in California. The new Albany pastor, one of the major conference appointments, is Rev. M. T. Wire, from Klamath Falls.

Addition of Keizer to the Jason Lee charge and of Roberts to the Leslie Memorial charge in Salem, are nominal appointments for supervision of the Sunday schools at these places.

Rev. W. J. Morrow, formerly field man for the Wesley hospital, goes to Sheridan, and Rev. Ed. W. T. McMinville, boy war veteran, from McMinnville, back to his home in Salem, takes the Williamson circuit.

PAULUS BROTHERS CAN AT ROSEBURG

Paulus Brothers packing company has completed negotiations which will permit it to enter the canning field in Douglas county. The Salem company has leased the North Roseburg packing plant, idle the past five years, and will install new equipment.

The R. D. Bodie company of Seattle, which does considerable fruit buying in this section, has also entered the Roseburg field and will process small fruits from the old Umpqua Valley canning company.

Paulus Brothers have in past years handled large tonnages of dried prunes from the Willamette valley, but this is the first year it has penetrated the Umpqua prune district. The firm will also do fresh prune canning at the new plant.

The Umpqua prune crop gives prospects of being the largest in history. Bodie starts this week on barreling of Royal Anne cherries in that district. Latest word from the south is that cherry offers are three cents a pound, which is under what some Salem firms have offered.

SEARCH FOR MILLER TURNS TOWARD TAFT

Penitentiary officials left Monday for the vicinity of Taft where they are conducting a search for Marion Miller, 35, who escaped from the prison annex here late Saturday. Mrs. Miller is being sought on a charge of abetting her husband's escape. Officials said she met him with an automobile near the annex, and that they left there together. Miller and his wife later went to the home of the former's brother near Chemawa, where they obtained a rifle and ammunition. The convict's brother subsequently reported his escape to penitentiary officials.

No trace of the couple has been found since they stopped at the home of a relative near Grand Ronde, for breakfast early yesterday.

Miller was serving a term of two years from Marion county for larceny of chickens.

MEASURES FACING CITY VOTERS TOLD

McKay Bespeaks Clear View Of Unemployed Matters At Chamber Luncheon

Explanation of the three city measures which Salem voters will find on ballots at the special election July 21, allusion to the city's financial situation and a plea for clear thinking and action on the unemployed situation in Marion county were contained in Mayor Douglas McKay's address to the chamber of commerce yesterday noon.

McKay's talk marked the closing of the chamber luncheon sessions until fall, and drew one of the largest crowds of the year. Anent relief, Mayor McKay pointed to the fact that the federal government sets up the relief structure, through a county relief committee, which in Marion happens to include three members of the county court. After July 1, the Red Cross will have no further dealings with relief, except as utilized by the state relief committee.

He pointed out that the 50 or 60 persons, led by out-of-town organizers, who have held forth on the courthouse lawn are a mere handful of the 12,000 persons receiving relief in this county.

Measures Explained
Brief explanation of the three local ballot measures:
1. Beer ordinance: A "yes" vote will permit the city council to draw up ordinance for regulation of 3.2 beer sale and for collection of revenue from sale of the city.

2. Charter amendment for a municipal dock: A "yes" vote will authorize construction of a $95,000 municipal dock, open to all boats on a charge fixed by the city council, on the river between Court and Chemeketa streets. No general obligation bonds will be issued; the sum will be paid out of revenue from the dock itself, or an R. F. C. loan.

3. Charter amendment for sewage disposal plant, to be constructed on city property north of town at cost of about $475,000. If this measure passes, it will put Salem in line with other cities on the Willamette, including Portland, to clean up the sewer menace. The Salem disposal plant would not entail a general obligation bond, but would be paid for from R. F. C. funds, of which 30 per cent would be an outright grant from the government.

Interest to Be Fair
The sewage disposal project will bear only 3 1/2 per cent interest, instead of the 6 per cent at first indicated, the mayor said he had learned, unofficially.

"Salem people don't need to be ashamed of the finances of Salem, for no city of its size in the state is in better shape, financially," the mayor said, "and this in spite of the fact that $195,000 outstanding warrants are drawing 6 per cent interest. Although there is no actual working capital, the bonded indebtedness is agreeably low."

A regular procedure in retiring the bonds, rather than refunding, is one of the great needs of the city, and one toward which the present council is working, McKay said.

The mayor urged Mr. Average

PUTTING THEIR HEADS TOGETHER

FUNERAL FOR RUBY MORRIS IS TODAY

CHEMEKETAN CAMP SITE IS SELECTED

A scouting party went to Lost Lake on the flanks of Mt. Hood Sunday to locate a camp site for the annual outing of the Salem Chemeketas August 6 to 20. The party was met at Hood River by several outdoor enthusiasts of that city who accompanied the Salem men to the lake. Autos could be driven to within two miles of the lake, the remainder of the journey being made afoot over the snow drifts which blocked the road in places.

Campsites were examined in spite of the steady drizzle of rain, which obscured the mountain. A site was tentatively selected, on the northwest side of the lake, opposite the mountain. Those making the trip were Dr. C. A. Downs, W. M. Hamilton, Ed Hoffnell, Charles Sprague and Wallace Sprague.
