

Senators and Elks to Vie for City Ball Honors Today

ANTLERED ONES STRENGTHENED

Hope to Knock Over City's "Official Team"; Game Set for 5:15 p.m.

There never has been much question about the Senators being the city's "official" baseball team but—supposing another Salem team proves itself better than the Senators?

The best opportunity observed in several years for such an occurrence prevails this season, for the Salem Elks have developed into quite a ball team and this afternoon at 5:15 on Olinger field, the antlered ones will attempt that proof.

Several weeks ago the Senators defeated the Elks, but since then the Elks have acquired some new players and have defeated two strong Mid-Willamette league teams, including one, Grand Ronde, which gave the Senators a terrific battle early in the season. So it looks like a ball game.

The Elks' strengthening has been particularly noticeable in the infield, where Denny Heenan, former Senator, has been acquired for third base and Ray Elliott, former American Legion Junior performer, for second base. Burch, slugging shortstop, likewise not with the club in its first attack on the Senators' prestige. Beecher, who smacked "Squeak" Wilson for two hits in the first game, has been moved to the initial sack.

On the mound the Elks will have Zorn, a Coast leaguer, who held the strong Amity team to six hits Sunday.

Manager Frank Bashor of the Senators announces that Al Johnson, his newly acquired moundsman, will probably start against the Elks, along with Bircher, the new catcher. Wilson however may be called upon for a few innings, even if Johnson is getting along well, to keep the pitcher in proper trim for Sunday's game at Eugene.

This is the first of a series of midweek games the Senators are planning to play in order to become more used to regular competition, for their Sunday State league games. A small admission charge will be made.

Yankee Pros Nosed Out by British Team

SOUTHPORT, Eng., June 27. (AP)—America's blue ribbon golf professionals, fighting from behind to the very last putt in the home game today bowed in defeat to Great Britain and lost the Ryder cup, emblematic of international supremacy, six matches to five, with one foursome halved.

Two days of the fiercest competition in the team play ended in front of the Southport club with nearly 20,000 spectators, among them the Prince of Wales, trying to see the exciting finish in which Syd Easterbrook defeated Densmore Shute, enabling Great Britain to keep the trophy in the land of its origin.

Shute, coming from behind on the last nine to first square the match and then take the lead, missed a six yard putt, then one from eight feet away to surrender the hole, the match and the series.

The burden of defeat, however, did not rest alone on the slender youngster who fought gallantly all day in one of the tightest matches of the series. He came from behind five times. With him in losing matches were Olin Dutt, who went completely off his game for a time to bow to Abe Mitchell 9 and 8, Paul Runyan, who lost to Percy Allis 2 and 1, and Leo Diegel, who was defeated by Arthur Havers 4 and 3.

Captain Walter Hagen, all square with A. J. Lacey at the end of 27 holes, made a garrison finish to nose out victory 2 and 1. Gene Sarazen, who will defend his British Open crown next week, defeated Alf Padgugan 6 and 4. Craig Wood, big blonde from New Jersey, won from W. H. Davies 4 and 3 and Horton Smith took a big lead, then held grimly to enough of it to defeat Charles Whitcombe. Ryder cup captain in 1931, 2 and 1.

Stayton Reaches Top After Win From Turner 9

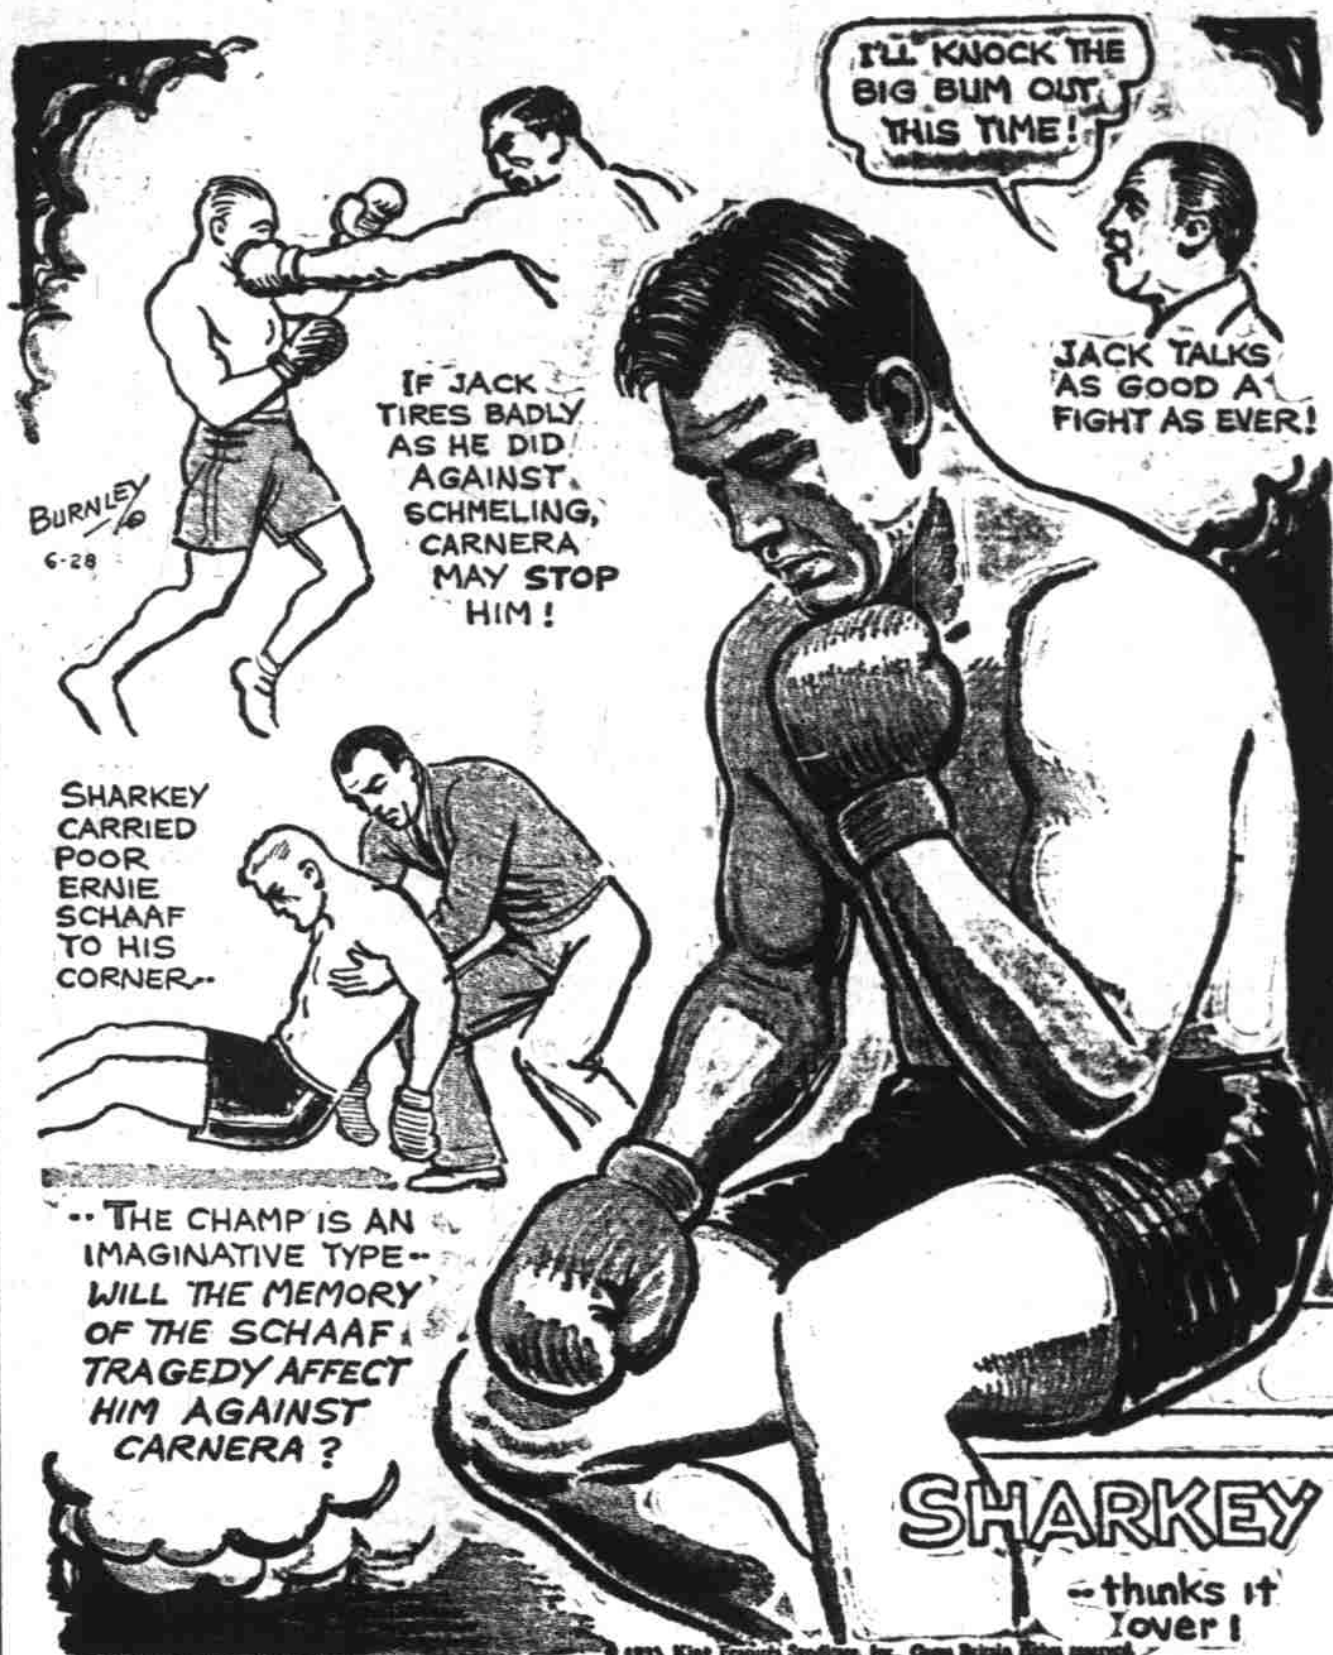

STAYTON, June 27. — Stayton was sublimed as the result of the ball game with Turner's team Sunday. The locals carried off the honor with a score of 11 to 4. This was the deciding game with Turner, for the season, former games resulting in a tie.

Stayton is at the top of the list as the result of Turner's game, and has but one more scheduled game, with Mehama, Mehama won from Stayton when they played there.

Ready To Defend His Crown

By BURNLEY

JACK SHARKEY may be getting along in years, but at least he can still TALK as good as a fight as ever. Jack has a pugilistic date with the mammoth Italian challenger, Primo Carnera, tomorrow night, and to hear the white-sailed sailor talk, Carnera is as good as knocked out already.

"That big chump can't shove that left mitt of his in my face," roars the boisterous champ. "Every time he tries to left jab me, I'll move inside and hook him in the belly, just as I did in our first fight. Then I'll switch to his head and level him out."

If you try to tell Sharkey that Primo has improved, he only laughs louder. "He still shows his punches—he doesn't know how to hit. No muscle-bound freak will ever lick me. I know his style now, and this time he'll be easier than he was in the first fight," says Jack.

Sharkey has little respect for Max Baer, either. He insists that he would murder the Californian the first time Baer wound up with his right. "As for Baer—phooey!" is the cocky champion's way of dismissing the California threat. Jack has looked good in his training workouts for this fight. He had a couple of good sparring mates in big Yustin Sirutis and the capable Hans Birkle, and now that the training grind is over he is apparently in very good condition. Sharkey has paid quite a bit of attention to roadwork in his training during the past few weeks, and he knows that his wind and legs must be in good shape if he expects to whip the Italian giant over the fifteen round route. It's a cinch that he will never get into a sloppy night's bout if he enters the ring in no better shape than he was for Scheibling last year.

A lot of the wisecracks seem to be coming out of his mouth when it comes to dopping the winner of the big bout. These experts point out that Sharkey has been inactive since he won the title a year ago, while Primo has been fighting steadily—and improving all the time. Long periods of inactivity are never good for a fighter, and this is especially so in the case of a veteran like the champion. Carnera will have the advantage over Jack in size, weight, strength, youth, ambition, fighting edge and condition. Sharkey is smarter, the better boxer and the harder puncher. At his best, the skillful titleholder figures to whip even a vastly improved Carnera, but it is hardly likely that, at his age, Sharkey will be able to round into perfect condition again.

Make no mistake—Jack can't win this one if he puts one of his legs in the air, or if he goes into a sloppy fight. Billy Duffy and Trainer Billy De Foe have whipped the man mountain into wonderful condition, and he is going to put up the fight of his life to win the coveted crown from the aging sailor man.

CURT COMMENTS

Robin Reed undoubtedly is in good shape, or he wouldn't have consented to risk his world 145-pound title here on the fourth of July against Henry Jones. Grappling with Henry is always a risk for anybody. However, there is further confirmation of Reed's present ability to take care of himself, in news that comes from Columbus, O., to the effect that Robin held the upper hand throughout two hours and 15 minutes of fierce battling with Stacy Hall, one of the rising young men of the welterweight ranks. Hall is a recent convert from collegiate wrestling at Ohio State college, and everybody knows these boys just out of college are rough and ambitious. They think a lot of Reed back there, for the sport writers decided, after Hall had held him to a draw, that Hall had just about arrived.

After playing the Salem Elks here today, the Senators may look forward to a really tough one—the Eugene Townies on their home lot. The Eugene boys, with Whitshire on the mound, are always dangerous. Whitshire held Schapp's to a shutout and five hits Sunday. The Senators got to him a little more freely here, but he may have had an off day.

Albany has often produced "razz-dazz" baseball, especially in the reign of Red Rupert, and last Sunday the fans there saw some more of it, though the Bend boys seem to have started the trouble. There were a couple of altercations, the liveliest occurring when Board of Bend catcher had been hit on the elbow by a pitched ball, and the ump wouldn't give him a pass. The visitors became so belligerent that the strong arm of the law had to be invoked to calm them down. So they protested the game, then went ahead to win it so the protest will be withdrawn.

It was Tommy Thompson, we are now informed, who scored an eagle two on the fourth hole at the Salem golf club, and to make it harder, he had to shoot across the trees to the right of the fairway to sink his second shot.

Jim Ford, Portland golfer who played 225 holes Monday, while he was doing it. That is, if his shots were all pretty straight. Any detours out into the rough would increase that. Peninsula turf is easy on the feet—that's one break for him. And as any golfer knows, it's much easier to walk after a golf ball that it is to just walk. In fact, you have scarcely any realization of walking at all, because your mind is all on doing things to that white pellet.

Graham Sharkey is ambitious to break that record, and he has it all planned. The test may be made some time this week, for days are already getting shorter. It hardly needs to be added that Graham will be the manager and sponsor of the affair and that somebody else will do the marathoning.

FALSE ARREST NOT PROVEN, IS RULING

The state supreme court Tuesday handed down two opinions reversing decrees of Judge Jacob Kansler and James P. Stapleton of the Multnomah county circuit court, in suits filed by Winifred McLean and Elmer Conrad to recover damages from Clyde E. Sanders, S. C. Chauvin and K. A. McDowell, Portland police officers, for false arrest. The opinions were written by Justice Kelley, who remanded the cases for retrial.

The alleged false arrests occurred on July 31, 1929, when the three police officers obtained a warrant for the search of a dwelling at 38 East Sixth street, Portland. During the search of the house for intoxicating liquors the plaintiffs were placed under arrest for disorderly conduct and taken to the police station in a patrol wagon. The plaintiffs alleged that they were detained by the police for more than two hours.

The suit for damages subsequently was filed against the three police officers in the district court, where the plaintiffs obtained a judgment for $250 each. Defendants then appealed.

NIGHT KITBALL HERE SUCCESS

Plenty of Light; Favorites Slated to Clash Tonight At 8:30 and 9:30

Night kitball was inaugurated in Salem Tuesday night and was a success both from the standpoint of attendance and ability of the teams to perform under the floodlights on Sweetland field. The lights, designed for football, provide plenty of visibility for kitball, but the players showed the need of a few games to get accustomed to them. To improve visibility for the batsman and catcher, the diamond is to be moved several yards to the north.

Parker's defeated Walt's Market 13 to 1 by getting an early lead, capitalizing on the meat cutters' difficulty in gauging the ball under the lights. In the later innings it was a tight mound duel.

Salem Linnen Mills shut out Kay Woolen Mills 15 to 0, as Serdotts limited the wool weavers to five hits.

Tonight the two winners of Tuesday night will clash at 8:30, and Pader Grocery, spring season champion, will meet the strengthened Elks team at 9:30. Finding the new league faster than those which played in the spring season, both of Tuesday night's losers are planning to recruit some additional players.
