

SCHOOL ATTENDANCE STILL IS 'UP IN AIR'

Due to Transportation Matter; fee Granted Held Insufficient

SCIO, July 13—High school attendance at Scio during the 1932-33 school year is considerably "in the air" at this time, in view of the uncertainty as to whether this district again will have the advantages of high school bus transportation.

Under the new law, contracts for such transportation must be arranged between high school and non-high school district boards not later than July 15 of each year, if at all.

It is understood that the non-high school board at a recent meeting in Albany went on record as favoring tuition to the maximum amount of last school year's cost per student. While this action is more liberal than had been anticipated by some, and while in some cases it may still provide adequate tuition costs, it is stated that in other cases such allowance would be insufficient.

It is pointed out that many districts operated last year on a minimum budget and curtailed in many respects which can not be repeated next year without positive detriment to educational interests. This is said to be particularly true at Scio, and for that reason it is considered doubtful whether the high school could be operated another year on the basis of last year's budget.

The cost per high school student at Scio last year was $68.22, according to official figures. Equipment, repairs, incidentals, etc., for another year will not permit such a record next year, it is stated, without deteriorating the school.

The total enrollment last year was 111. Without transportation facilities, it is estimated the attendance would be between 60 and 75.

Much of the cement work on the court was done through the courtesy of the construction company holding the contract for the paving of the relocated highway through Aurora.

Mother Love Brings Cow Near Death

SCIO, July 13—Outstanding mother instinct and devotion were shown by a young Holstein cow at the farm of O. A. Hall on Thomas creek a mile west of Scio a short time ago.

The cow delivered her first born near the bank of the creek; in fact, nearer the dangerous embankment than seemed prudent to an ordinary farmer.

The calf in due time got its peddled extremities in such position that it found itself standing on terra firma. The next thought and effort were to ramble around somewhat. The calf with the unsteady stride tumbled down the bank and was no doubt very wet within a few seconds.

"The waters closed above her and went rippling on their way," in the language of the old family old song. But the calf did not succumb to a watery grave without effort to cheat it. Although the current was deep, the calf swam and floundered several feet to more shallow and more calm water. The odds were too great, however, and the weak little bovine chilled and drowned.

The young mother cow entered the stream. Across the cold, swift current the cow made a bee-line to the spot where the calf lay cold in death. She "bedded down" by the side of the dead calf and was chilled and almost drowned when rescued by Mr. Hall and Marley Sims, who waded and swam and "hosed" and dragged the cow to safety.

Ordinary Cleansers

This is a magnified drawing of a gritty particle such as is present in ordinary cleansers. Obviously, such cleansers are destructive because the jagged, rough material scratches the surface with its sharp, hard points; wasteful because it does not contact the surface completely and thus cleans inefficiently.

Can't Clean

This is a magnified drawing of a particle of Old Dutch—the only cleanser made of pure "seismatite," the safest, most efficient and most economical cleaning material. You can see that these particles are flaky and flat-shaped. They clean quickly without scratching, cover more surface, and go further. That's why Old Dutch costs less to use.

Like Old Dutch

Package for package, Old Dutch does more square yards of cleaning per penny of cost than anything else you can buy. And it offers an extra saving because it cleans so many things perfectly that it is the only cleanser you need in your home. Old Dutch cleans quicker, is kind to the hands, doesn't clog drains, is odorless and removes odors. No wonder millions of smart, thrifty women have made it the largest selling cleanser in the world. Its quality cannot be imitated or its economy equalled.
