DAYTON, July 19-The 30 acres of fall sown wheat that survived the freeze last winter in the E. M. Alderman farm in Unionvale is thriving and beginning to turn golden, indicating that harvest is near.

Representatives from Gray brothers feed store in McMinnville, prompted by the evident shortage of the locally grown hay crop because of the general loss by freezing last winter that killed the vetch and oat hay acreage, have inspected and made a bid on the 27 acre field of fall sown wheat belonging to D. Lynn Gubser to cut for hay 275 to bale.

Some baled clover hay has been sold for $13 a ton and some loose hay has sold for $10 a ton. Because of the general shortage of hay in the Willamette valley some farmers here are holding for a higher price which if the milk price advances they feel sure they will receive.
