Ratification of Amendment Completed in Record Time; no Oratory want is temperance and a return of respect for the law.

The seconding address was given by Mrs. Carlton Smith of this city, a member of the 1931 legislature and prominent in women's affairs in Oregon.
"In seconding the nomination of Mrs. Honeyman I represent the Oregon Hop Growers' association, the citizens of Marion county and many of the outstanding women's organizations of the state," Mrs. Smith said. "Mrs. Honeyman is a natural leader and she is deserving of recognition in this convention."

Ben R. Littin, publisher of The Dalles Chronicle, then was nominated for temporary chief clerk by Seneca Fouts of Multnomah county. Fouts said that the ways had been opposed to the prohibition laws, and that his publication was one of three newspapers in Oregon which had consistently fought for repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

Dan J. Malarky of Portland, who called the convention to order, suggested the appointment of a special committee of attorneys to draft the repeal resolution. Members of this committee, other than Malarky, were Oscar Hayter of Polk county and E. C. Prestbye of Umatilla county.

Outlawing Saloon Proposed, no Action

The credentials committee was composed of Walter B. Gleason, Multnomah county; C. J. Van-Biorcum, Clackamas county, and Clark Hadley, Tillamook. Members of the committee on permanent organization were Howard Waddell, Douglas county; Thomas Mahoney, Multnomah county; and Mrs. Carlton Smith, Marion county. A general resolutions committee was appointed composed of C. C. Kelly, Jackson county; W. B. Snider, Lake county; and Barge Leonard, Multnomah county. Mrs. Honeyman appointed Joe Singer of Portland, sergeant-at-arms without compensation.

Following a brief recess during which the committees prepared their reports, Chief Justice Rand of the state supreme court administered the oath to the delegates.

Just prior to adjournment Mrs. C. S. Jackson of Portland moved that it be the sense of the convention that the saloon be outlawed in Oregon and that the state legislature enact such legislation. Two delegates protested the proposal, whereupon it was moved to adjourn. The motion carried almost unanimously. At a caucus of up-state delegates Monday morning Mrs. Honeyman was endorsed as first choice for president of the convention while Littin was unanimously approved for the office of secretary. J. B. Bedinger of Coos county served as chairman of the caucus.

of the council for later in the week when facts about the utility, not known to all the aldermen, could be discussed. Vandevort interposed that while the water company asked $1,000,000 for the plant, he thought $500,000 would buy it. Committee With Full Power Not Backed Alderman Wilkinson expressed himself as opposed to negotiation. He said Vandevort's sheep-buying methods did not apply to an expenditure of public funds. "Why did we hire engineers to set a figure if we are not willing to use these appraisals?" he inquired.

Alderman Paul Hendricks moved that Alderman Vandevort, Wilkinson and McKay be constituted a committee of negotiation with the water company with power to act but his motion failed to receive a second.

As the water purchase matter stands, the council is marking time. While it has passed a resolution for an application to borrow money from the federal government to build a competing plant, many of the councilmen have privately expressed themselves as doubtful if such a loan would be granted.

Further executive sessions to plan a course of action to be determined at an open meeting, are expected.

DOZENS KILLED IN DISORDER IN CUBA

From the third police station 50 uniformed policemen rushed hurriedly to the capitol, before which thousands of the demonstrators had gathered. Mounted officers quickly joined them.

Pistol, rifle and sub-machine gun fire rattle, roared and echoed from around the great white capitol. Dozens fell, dead or wounded.

In other parts of the city similar scenes occurred. Many of the jubilant throng carried Cuban flags. Their demonstrations met the same quick, tragic end.

The city was grimly quiet tonight while almost hopeless efforts to count the dead and wounded went on. A hasty check showed 15 dead and more than 100 wounded. Many of the latter were struck by bullets which ricocheted from the pavement and from the sides of buildings.

BROADCASTING ON STREETS OPPOSED

dinance now exists against street advertising for dances, although the ordinance is thwarted by advertising a band's appearance instead of the dance.

The proposed ordinance would not interfere with radio receivers in private or police cars or with broadcasts of events in which the public has an interest, provided in the latter case that a special permit was obtained from the chief of police.

Early in the campaign, when it appeared that N.R.A. supplies for Salem were going to be plentiful, signers received as many of the window stickers and placards as they could reasonably use.

Monday, Gibbard got tired of waiting for a new shipment of posters so he checked his list of early signers to find those who could spare some of their surplus. In this way 35 business organizations were supplied with the insignia.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—(AP)—Greater speed in blanketing all industries under codes fixing wages and hours for employes was directed today by Hugh S. Johnson as he swung back from strike-settling to the broad program of the national recovery administration.

The administrator set himself to the task of reaching every employer within two weeks, hopeful that by then he will be able to ask consumers not to purchase from any business establishment not displaying the blue eagle of N. R. A.

Testimony at the inquest showed that Weatherly shot Sullivan at the latter's scuffed with a Mountain Home man by the name of Brown Roberts. The fight was said to have been over payment for a glass of beer. The shooting occurred early Sunday morning in a pool hall where Sullivan was helping to serve an after dance crowd.

SHOWDOWN LIKELY OVER COAL STRIKE

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., Aug. 7.—(AP)—A call to striking miners to reconsider their refusal to resume work under the Roosevelt truce, tonight presented a showdown between leaders of union locals and higher officers of the United Mine Workers of America.

While charges of alleged communist agitation flew through the soft coal fields as thousands of workers turned a deaf ear to pleas to return to the mines, William Feeney, president of District 4, U. M. W. A., called a "reconsideration" meeting for tomorrow morning.

Immediately Martin Ryan, local union leader, sent word to his followers—the officers who voted Saturday night against acceptance of the truce—to refuse to attend the meeting.

He assailed Feeney and John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, charging they had tried to "trick" the striking miners by not accurately presenting terms of the truce.

Spuds Need Ventilation

Ventilation of pitted potatoes appears to be an important element in successful growing of the seed pieces the following season, judging from observation in the Powell Butte section near Prineville this year. One farmer had considerable trouble with seed pieces rotting in the ground some 10 days after planting. Investigation by the county agent showed that these were from stock that had heated badly in the pits. Tests elsewhere have also shown the importance of adequate ventilation of stored seed stock, particularly where it is pitted.
