WOMAN REPORTER HAS QUAKE SCOOP

Mrs. Stella White, Once of Salem, Took First News From Shock Center

It was fully a week after the recent Long Beach earthquake disaster that Mrs. Stella R. White, newspaper woman of Huntington Beach, known in Salem 23 years ago as Stella Russel, realized the seriousness of the shocks and was really afraid. Mrs. White, waiting for the evening meal, was reading when the terrible rumblings of the earth began. Clocks crashed to the floor, dishes shot out of the cupboard, and bricks from the chimney were falling but all she was conscious of was the awful rumblings, roaring, grinding of the earth. Days later, she realized there must have been considerable pandemonium in the house but she remembered nothing of it.

Mrs. White's first impulse, as a feature writer for the Los Angeles Times, was to "beat" everybody her paper with the news of the earthquake. She rushed to the telephone office to find the switchboard twisted and in ruins. Then she rushed for her car but something had gone wrong and it would not run. She dashed over to a neighbor and hired a car. Then came a wild race over broken and twisted roads for Los Angeles. Narrowly escaping accident on the way, she passed through Long Beach and into Los Angeles and brought the first authentic news of damage from those cities.

Mrs. White stopped in Salem, Friday, to visit with Mrs. J. G. Reigelman and family at 940 Mill street. She is enroute to the national convention of the P. E. O. sisterhood, which convenes in Kansas City, October 3, 4, 5, 6, but will visit a mother and sister in Portland, and go on to visit friends in Montana, North and South Dakota, Iowa and Nebraska before going to the convention. She is one of 80 delegates from cracking.

VARIOUS MOTORING MISHAPS RECORDED

Collisions were reported Saturday from points scattered widely over the city. No injuries were listed in reports of any of the crashes, and no arrests were made.

WARRANT BASIS TO CONTINUE, STATED

There is no prospect of the state of Oregon going off the warrant basis before late in the year 1934, providing that a substantial loan is not negotiated, Fred Paulus, deputy state treasurer, announced Saturday.

The records show that the state treasurer already has indorsed warrants "not paid for want of funds" in the amount of approximately $2,000,000, of which amount 75 per cent have been called and paid. Money used in paying these warrants was obtained from the first half taxes for 1933 payable June 5, receipts of the state insurance department, and other revenues. This money is now exhausted and no more funds will be received by the state treasurer until the last half taxes are due in November of this year.

"Financial charts prepared by the state treasurer and other state department heads indicate that the general fund will be restored to a fairly healthy condition by the end of 1934," Paulus said. "This will be made possible by 1933 legislative enactments increasing receipts from the income, inheritance and other tax laws."

The reasons are worth knowing

Henry Ford Dearborn, Mich.

Last week we told you how the 8-cylinder motor made its entry into the low-price field.

But an "8" is not the whole story. There are two varieties of the "8". We have chosen the V-8—a motor with two banks of cylinders set at an angle opposite each other, instead of all eight cylinders in a line. There are good reasons for this.

When we take 8 cylinders and set them four on a side, the length of the motor is reduced about half; it becomes a sturdy and compact power plant. The V-8 motor is 4 cylinders long; if the cylinders were set in line the motor would be 8 cylinders long. This would sacrifice compactness.

One simple advantage of the V-type is that it gives more room in the body of your car. In the medium-size car that is built for economical operation this is important. And it accounts for the generous interior body room of the new Ford V-8.

Another advantage concerns the motor itself. The V-8 type of motor, with its two short banks of cylinders, cuts in half the distance which the gas mixture must travel to the end cylinders. This gives a more uniform distribution to each cylinder and makes a smoother running motor. Also, two water pumps and two streams of water cool the cylinders instead of one stream. This means more uniform cooling.

Other points of advantage I reserve for another letter. To mention one:—When we seemed to be slow in introducing the new Ford V-8 the delay was caused by our doing a very important thing in the interest of strength, long service and efficiency.

We were perfecting the V-8 cylinder block as a one-piece casting.

As a result our cylinder block is not made of two or three castings bolted together. It is one compact whole, which permanently keeps the operating parts in perfect alignment. We cannot expect the general reader to appreciate the difficulties we had to overcome before this could be done. But if you ever have a chance to see our cylinder block casting before it goes into an engine, you will marvel that it could be done at all.

We are the only manufacturers now doing it this more expensive way.

Our new car is making its way so rapidly, on its own merits, that it is worth knowing some of the reasons for its success.
