

CURVES HER IDEA MAE WEST AVERS

By HUBBARD KEAVY
HOLLYWOOD—The return in Parisian fashion circles to curves, large hats, feathered, jeweled and other ornaments comes as no surprise to Mae West, who's credited with having had a great deal to do with it.

"I always knew that men—and women, too—preferred to see our natural curves," Mae says. "It was all a mistake, a great, fatal mistake, to give women's clothes a straight line. It started during the war—yes, that is another thing you can blame on the war. They had to conserve, so they had to cut down on women's clothes."

"Then, dieting was brought about because of the shortage of food. That created the slender, boyish figure. Then some of those effeminate Paris dressmakers began putting over mannishly slim health clothes. Women had to reduce so they could get into those clothes. "But now that's over," and Miss West emphasized the "that's." We can all get back to normal again, and be comfortable."

Reports from Paris say that dressmakers have gone Mae West-ian. The new fashions, or at least many of them, will emphasize a return to the ample feminine curves popular in the early days of the century.

Hoss' Office Says He'll Return Soon

CORN CROP HELPS IOWA'S RECOVERY

LE MARS, Ia. — (AP) — The northwest Iowa farmer, four months ago in bitter revolt against hardships of reduced income and fixed debt charges, has placed his hope of economic recovery on a bumper corn crop this fall.

And the yield promises to be the best in 10 years.

The spirit of rebellion that flared up in this town and other communities and was given national-wide prominence because of farmers' battles with sheriff's deputies at mortgage foreclosure sales and the threatened hanging of an attorney and a judge has given way to quietly-voiced optimism.

Looking at his corn, many a Le Mars farmer is hopeful that the lean days are past, and that farmers are waiting for promised benefits of a $108,000,000 mortgage refinancing project in Iowa, cash payments for wheat acreage reduction and the possibility of similar benefits for curtailed hog and corn production next year.

Northwest Iowa's estimated corn yield this fall is 65,000,000 bushels, says Leslie M. Carl, federal agricultural statistician. This estimate, totaling 16 per cent of the state's yield, is about 7,000,000 bushels above the 10-year average.
