300 years of the Judson clan: As told in the news columns near the time, the annual meeting of the Judson clan was held on Sunday, August 13, at the Lewis E. Judson home, at the east end of Judson street, Salem.

This clan originated in Oregon with the coming of the Lausanne, called the Mayflower of the Pacific, in 1840. But the family in America runs back 300 years less one. The original members came in 1634, and the 1933 meeting was held to hold the 1934 gathering at Silver Falls, at the home of S. P. Matheny, and it is planned to make it a notable one, as it will be the third centenary celebration of the coming across the Atlantic of the first members of the branch representatives of which arrived in Oregon when this was foreign territory—a veritable no-man's-land—and most of the inhabitants were Indians in their primitive state.

Beginning at the beginning, 142 years before the Declaration of Independence marked the birthpangs of the United States as a nation: William Judson came from England with his family to America in 1824, settling at Concord, Maine. There he married Joseph, Jeremiah and Joshua. They resided four years at Concord, then moved to Stratford, Connecticut.

Joseph, son of William, was 15 when the family came from England, and he went to Stratford with his father. There he married Sarah Porter, daughter of John Porter, when he was 25 and she 18. The children of Joseph and Sarah were: Sarah, born 2 March, 1645, John, 10 March, 1647, James, 1 April, 1650, Grace, 19 Feb., 1652, Joseph, 10 March, 1654, Hannah, 13 Dec., 1657, Easter, 29 Aug., 1660, Joshua and Ruth (twins) 27 Oct., 1664, Phebe, 29 Oct., 1666, Abigail, 15 Sept., 1669.

Joseph, father of the 11 children, died Oct. 8, 1696, and Sarah, the mother, Nov. 21, 1697. James Judson, of the 11 children, married Rebecca Wells of Hartford Aug. 18, 1680. To them seven children were born, among them David, who married Phebe Stiles of Stratford on Oct. 29, 1713, and nine children came to bless the union.

Among them was Abel, who married Sarah Burton on May 4, 1744, and into this family came seven children, one of them Nathaniel. He married Rhoda Hall on June 8, 1775. To Nathaniel and Rhoda Judson were born 12 children.

Lewis Judson, one of the dozen, married Sally Hubbell on October 7, 1804, and six children came into their home. The mother died May 30, 1824, and the father passed away Feb. 17, 1829.

The first born of the last named family was Lewis Hubbell Judson, on August 6, 1809. He married Elmira Roberts on August 13, 1831. This couple helped make early Oregon history. The second child of the six coming into the family of Lewis and Sally Judson was Adelia, born December 16, 1811. She was destined also to gain a high place in Salem and Oregon history. She was married to Robert Turkington April 16, 1835. He died Sept. 15, 1837. A child had been born to them, and the child died a little while before the sailing of the missionary ship Lausanne, as told in detail in this column several months ago. Oct. 2, 1839, nine days before the sailing of the Lausanne, she was married to James Olley. Her brother and his family and Mr. Olley had engaged to sail with the Lausanne party. She also was anxious to go, so came as a bride. James Olley was drowned in the Willamette, at the Bolla rapids, while rattling logs down to the Mission saw mill to be worked into fishery lumber for the home they were building. This was on Dec. 10, 1842. Adelia Judson-Turkington-Olley was married a third time Jan. 7, 1844, becoming the second wife of Rev. David Leslie. She thus became part owner of the Salem townsite, with her husband—the south 640 acre donation land claim. She lived a singularly useful and active life, passing away at her historic Salem home full of years, as told a number of months ago in this column.

The children of Lewis H. and Elmira Roberts Judson, Lausanne passengers, founders of the Oregon Judson clan, were: Leonard Bowdish, born Oct. 11, 1832. Helen C., born April 14, 1834. Anna Maria, July 26, 1835. (These three with their parents were the persons described by Bashford's history among the Lausanne party as "Lewis H. Judson, cabinet maker, wife and three children.") Robert Thomas, born April 12, 1842 (being the first white boy and the second white child born in Salem).

Elmira Roberts-Judson was born Jan. 22, 1811; died in Salem Dec. 10, 1844. L. H. Judson and family left New York City on the Lausanne, bound for Oregon around Cape Horn, Oct. 11, 1839. They arrived and landed at old Fort Vancouver June 1, 1840.

As readers of this column recall, the house that James Olley was building when he was drowned was finished by L. H. Judson and became the Judson home. It was the third residence for white people erected in what is now Salem, outside of some temporary log houses used by workmen building the mission mills, Indian manual labor school, etc. Before the Judson family moved into the third home erected in Salem, it was one of the four families then occupying the Jason Lee house, first home built in Salem, and still standing, at the present 960 Broadway; the home with the highest history west of the Rockies, as related to the extension of American territory to the Pacific ocean. In that house Robert T. Judson, first white boy who saw the light in Salem, was born. In that house was also born the first white child, Anna Maria Lucy Lee, daughter of Jason Lee by his second wife, and his only child that survived him. In the block surrounded by Court, Liberty, Chemeketa and Commercial streets, and it was, somewhat altered and moved up to the line of Court street, still standing, up to three or four years ago. (Continued tomorrow.)

REMOVAL OF DUDE RANCH IS DEMAND

BOISE, Aug. 31.—(AP)—Suit has been filed by the United States district attorney for removal of an alleged dude ranch from the Selway national forest in Idaho county.

The suit named J. K. Clark, George Clark and Gus Robb of Stevensville, Mont., as defendants, demanding their removal and requiring rental for the place.

Frank Griffin, assistant district attorney, said the three men were accused by the government of having secured entry to the forest on a pretense of opening a placer mine but since had operated it as a dude ranch in violation of law. The place has been operated since June 9, 1930, the complaint said, and from that date until the suit is settled the government is asking $25 a year rent.

Bonus Properties Selling, Greater Volume Recently

Sales of farm and city property repossessed by the world war veterans state air commission have increased during the past three months approximately $30,000 in excess of the sales for the previous nine months, Terrell Owen, secretary, said Thursday. He said the increase was due to a sales campaign launched by the commission.

During the nine months beginning September 12, 1932, a total of 12 farm and 10 city properties were sold for $3,115. During the past three months 15 farm and 24 city properties were sold for $80,875. There also was a material increase in collection of delinquencies in loans and rentals, Owen said. Collections in Multnomah county this month aggregated $9750 as compared with $4834 a year ago.

Denies Walkers Are Expecting Blessed Event

CANNES, France, Aug. 31.—(AP)—A close friend of former Mayor James J. Walker of New York said today that, contrary to reports published abroad, the Walkers were not expecting a child.

Their hopes, this friend asserted, were frustrated when Mrs. Walker suffered a severe illness recently.

Mrs. Walker, who often expressed a desire to have children, has been despondent since the illness, the friend said, and failed to respond satisfactorily to treatment.
