LABOR DAY THROUGH HEARS NRA LEADER

CHICAGO, Sept. 4.—(AP)—One of the greatest Labor day throngs in Chicago's history today heard General Hugh S. Johnson, national recovery administrator, appeal for a nation-wide consumers' buying campaign.

Addressing 250,000 persons through a system of loudspeakers that carried his message to every corner of the world's fairgrounds, General Johnson reassured his listeners a federally directed national campaign would start about September 20 to influence citizens to buy freely.

"We shall begin a campaign," he said, "to try to convince the people of the need to buy freely—not as a patriotic duty, but as a prudent use of money."

With labor working shorter hours, receiving more money, commodities advancing in price and industrial costs mounting, the general said, there was bound to be an increase in the price to the consumer soon.

But labor president who sponsored this recovery program is not going to see it run away with profiteering," Johnson said. He indicated the government might resort to extraordinary powers, if necessary, to enforce fair prices.

SPEED RECORD SET BY JAMES WEDELL

CURTIS WRIGHT REYNOLDS AIRPORT, CHICAGO, Sept. 4.—(AP)—A new unofficial land plane record of better than five miles a minute was set today by James R. Wedell, Louisiana speed pilot, on the final day's program of the international air races.

Wedell made four runs over a three kilometer straight-away course. He made a top speed of 316.55 miles an hour on his first dash, which was with the wind.

His average for the four laps, which probably will stand as a new official speed record after checking of the timing device, was 305.33 miles an hour.

The speeds on each of the four dashes, the higher figures being those made with the wind: 316.55, 299.32; 311.15, and 294.32 miles an hour.

The previous record was 294.33 miles an hour, held by Jimmie Doolittle, with whom Wedell had a speed feud of long standing. Wedell would have to exceed Doolittle's mark by at least 4.98 miles an hour to set a new record.

C. Hockley, engineer for the public works regional advisory board, by the end of this week. This was announced Monday by C. B. McCullough, state bridge engineer. COUNTY EXHIBITS GIVEN ATTENTION

Marion has Usual Extensive Display; Stayton Co-op Products Featured

Although the county exhibits at the state fair are not as numerous as in the past, this department of the exposition gained much attention on opening day, with special attention given to the Marion county display, which under the direction of S. H. Van Trump has been made as elaborate as in the past. Features in the Marion county space include a quantity of products from the Stayton Cooperative cannery and processed fruit from the H. S. Gile company of Salem. There also is a model farm.

Growing samples of canary grass, a special grass for pasture purposes, is shown by Coos county. It grows best on lowlands and has a capacity of grazing two cows to the acre. Dairy products, particularly cheese, predominate with attention also directed to the manufactured cedar and Myrtle wood products.

Polk county is stepping out as a manufacturing district according to its display which is showing lumber products for the first time as well as samples of various output from the Gerlinger Automotive and Iron works. Fruits are in the majority while grains and vegetables are not forgotten.

Diversity features the Lind county entry with the name of the county shining white with eggs, bordered by dried prunes. Condensed milk and agricultural products are shown in addition to a model farm.

Yamhill county follows a similar line, the huge "Y" being formed by eggs, bordered with prunes. Fine crates melons form a prominent part of the agricultural products.

Grains, grown on government projects under irrigation, predominate the Malheur county exhibit. Some vegetables and fruits, showing that other commodities can also be produced, are shown. Lane county offers a striking sunburst type of display centered about a brilliant grouping of fruits and vegetables, grains, nuts and prunes in testimony of its diversity.

Cheese and dairy products form the keynote of the Tillamook county exhibit, while also calls attention to its many beach possibilities and recreational resorts. Grand Island, in Yamhill county, has its own showing of corn, tomatoes and peaches, most of which are canned in its own community cannery. The island is in the Willamette river a boat a dozen miles north of Salem.

Manufactured rather than raw products feature the display of the Miles and Oregon Lumber mills, with twines, netting, towing, crash and luncheon sets exhibited. Bunched flax and some tow are also seen.

Only Living Quadruplets in U. S.

These four smiling beauties, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Flake Keys, of Hollis, Okla., are said to be the only living quadruplets in America. They are Mona, Roberta, Mary and Leota, all graduates of the Hollis High School. They are accomplished vocalists and pianists and plan to pursue musical studies at the Baylor University, Waco, Texas, this fall.

FOREST PRODUCTS EXHIBITED AT FAIR

Timber and other forest products are featured in the state fair exhibit arranged by the federal and state forest departments. This exhibit is in charge of W. V. Fuller, publicity director for the state forestry division, assisted by employees of the federal forestry unit. Moving pictures depicting forest activities are given daily in connection with this exhibit.

The art exhibit is in charge of Mrs. William Bell of Roseburg and includes more than 500 entries. The exhibits consist of professional and amateur oils, professional and amateur water colors, pastels, monochromes, arts and crafts. Awards in this department probably will be announced tomorrow.

Early American antiques feature the booth arranged by the Oregon Daughters of the American Revolution. Mrs. D. A. Williams has on display a rock er more than 150 years old. Another interesting antique is a sugar bowl which is owned by Mrs. C. C. Geer and has been in the Geer family for 100 years.

A special train carrying several hundred Lane county citizens arrived at the fairgrounds at 10 a. m., followed by automobile caravans from various sections of the Willamette valley. The University of Oregon band, which accompanied the Lane county delegation, gave several concerts during the afternoon. A program arranged by the Eugene citizens was one of the night attractions.

Gripping Gridiron Drama Is New Statesman Serial Beginning on Wednesday

"Boy, what a tackle! . . . Wait a minute . . . Somebody's hurt . . . It's Tommy Randolph!" Cheering in the great stadium fades to silence as doctor and trainer run out onto the field. And far away in an Indiana mill town, dread fear fastens itself in the heart of the little woman who had worked her fingers to the bone for Tommy Randolph. The broadcaster's staccato voice continues with the fatal announcement: "He's still down. They don't seem to be able to bring him to . . ."

Whether or not you know anything about football, you will enjoy "That's My Boy," the new serial which begins tomorrow in The Statesman. Written by Francis Wallace, the author of "Huddle," which was an outstanding success as a novel and as a photoplay, "That's My Boy" is a fast-moving, heart-rumping story of big time football, campus romance, and a mother's staunch faith in a lad who had to change himself from a football demigod to a real man.

The career of Tommy Randolph will take you out into the great stadium with its cheering crowds . . . It will bring you down on the field where brawn and speed strive for glory in the annual fall carnival. Francis Wallace knows football not only as a newspaper sports expert but as one who served on Notre Dame squads under Rockne.

"That's My Boy" has romance, too—young campus love in which a stalwart hero strives on the field of battle for his beautiful lady love. And back of it all is the story of Tommy's mother who had sacrificed all her life to send her boy to the big eastern college "with the millionaires."

Whether or not this mother's heart is made happy will mean more to you than the fate of any heroine you have ever met.

Don't miss "That's My Boy." Its thrills are all mixed up with heartthrobs. You'll find it at once one of the most exciting and the most touching stories you have ever read. It begins in The Statesman tomorrow.
