Wolfer of Woodburn, became the bride of Jacob M. Kaufman of Molalla. The ceremony was performed by the bride's father, who is an elder in the church, and the wedding sermon was by F. J. Gingerich.

PRICE GAINS BOOST COST OF BRIDGES

Because of rising commodity and labor prices it will cost approximately $5,100,000 to construct the five proposed new bridges on the Oregon Coast highway instead of $4,000,000 which was the original estimate, it was announced Friday by R. H. Baldock, state highway engineer.

Approximately 30 per cent of the money required to construct the bridges will be received through a direct grant while the remaining 70 per cent will be borrowed from the federal government under the public works bill.

Baldock said that C. C. Hockley, public works engineer for Oregon, had approved the design and engineering features of the Waldport bridge. This bridge will span Alsea bay and will cost approximately $700,000.

Plans and specifications for the Newport and Coos bay bridges will be submitted to Hockley next Tuesday, while designs for the Reedsport and Siuslaw bridges will be completed next Friday.

Officials declared that actual construction operations on these bridges probably would get under way late in November.

REHEARING SOUGHT IN HEIDECKE CASE

The estate of the late John A. W. Heidecke was again in court here yesterday when defendants in a suit involving his will moved Judge L. G. Lewelling for a rehearing. Previously the court had held that Heidecke's will was invalid and that Ruby Clark and Grace Burns, along with Alice Christians Heidecke, all of whom reside in the east, are the deceased's true heirs.

Heidecke, it was shown in court left his wife in the east, and later married the present Georgianna K. Heidecke to whom he willed the property he left. The court held the will invalid inasmuch as it made no provisions for his legal heirs in the east.

Defendants in the suit are his western wife and Helen Ficke. They claim the eastern daughters are only entitled to their share of personal property which the law allows them; the rest should go under the provisions of the will, counsel for the defendants assert.

RELIEF FOR JOBLESS TEACHERS IS URGED

City and county school superintendents were urged to cooperate with county relief committees in providing work for unemployed teachers in a bulletin issued here Friday by Charles A. Howard, state superintendent of public instruction.

The bulletin was based on a communication issued to state emergency relief administrators by Harry L. Hopkins, federal administrator. This communication authorizes the use of federal relief funds to pay work relief wages to needy unemployed teachers who may be assigned to schools that would otherwise be closed or partially closed because of lack of funds. These funds also may be used to pay relief work wages for teaching adults who are unable to read or write English.

All employment of this kind would be under the direction of appropriate educational authorities. Howard said that while only a few schools had been closed in Oregon there were large numbers of teachers employed part-time.

The crop loss was said to be approximately $7000 while the buildings were valued at $1000. Mrs. Singer said today that the loss was partially covered by insurance. Only three days of picking remain in the Singer yard.

BRIDGE BUILDING ANTICIPATED SOON

Devers Reports on Trip to Washington; Lauds NRA; Confidence Grows

"I am for the NRA as I believe it will accomplish much good," said J. M. Devers of the state highway department in speaking at the regular weekly luncheon of the Salem Retail Credit association on Friday.

Mr. Devers told of the difficulties encountered in attempting to secure funds for the construction of five coast highway bridges for which he went to Washington, D. C. He reported that he expects to have two of these bridges under contract within the next 30 days and the other three within 60 days.

Mr. Devers told of the need for immediate action when President Roosevelt was inaugurated and how the president has gradually gained the confidence and support of the people. He declared that the NRA is bound to be abused by some unscrupulous individuals but said that these would be taken care of in time and expressed confidence that the plan would ultimately succeed.

He was particularly impressed by the increased confidence shown by the people of the east and middle west and observed that as the depression was slower in reaching the west than the east that increased confidence would likewise reach the western coast at a later date. That it would come he felt confident and was hopeful as to the return of prosperity in the near future.
